Preface

WE read that "conscience doth make cowards of us all," but sometimes it makes other things of us as well; leads us on to efforts that perhaps we would never have made, had it not been for the uneasy stimulus of remorse which incited us to work out our repentance with a visible act of atonement.

. Years ago there came into my custody the private papers of an old family. These papers for four generations, perhaps for more, had been carefully preserved and handed down from father to son. They were old and musty, and I had not learned to appreciate the value of records of all kinds in genealogical research, and so had them burned to save the care of keeping them, not realizing that, by so doing, I had destroyed links in the chain connecting the past with the present that no amount of thought or search could replace. The burned papers I could never restore, but when this old Journal accidentally came into my hands, it afforded me an opportunity to make some amends for my rash deed.

The Journal, so carefully kept for twenty years, is a mine of names and dates, and a record for a part of New York which is deficient in public records of marriages and deaths. To transcribe the crabbed handwriting, and place in historical libraries the valuable facts that the Journal and its accompanying records contain, has been my pleasant task. To the simple diary has been added notes on many of the families of whom Mr. Constant wrote, though the half of those he mentioned have not had this additional attention, because of the natural limitation of a book of this character, however unlimited the items which could be connected with it.

Genealogy is not usually an unselfish study. Many investigators, at cost of time and money, delve into records, public and private, rummage in libraries, and decipher tombstone legends, and yet preserve from the tangled web but the one thread that belongs to their kin, leaving valuable information which pertained to neighbors and friends and which ran along with their own family history, to be secured anew at a like expense, or to be lost, possibly forever. Sensible of this, I have tried to preserve and make generally accessible to the descendants of many of the families of Mr. Constant's parish, information relating to their ancestors or connections, which could not have been obtained from the old book itself.

In the prosecution of this work I have become indebted to many persons, among whom I desire to mention the Rev. William J. Cumming, now the pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Yorktown, who contributed the sketch of Mr. Constant; Mrs. John Rutherford Mathews, of Van Cortlandt Manor, who furnished the notes on the Van Cortlandt family; and Franklin Couch, Esq., of Peekskill, the learned antiquarian of that locality.

Mr. Constant's diary is a curious study. He chronicled so many unimportant, petty details of his daily life, and yet made no mention of the historic fact of the first inauguration of President Washington, although he was in New York City preaching at that date. It is a simple record of twenty years of patient toil in the service of the Master, and has a pathetic interest, quite apart from its value genealogically. The weary miles he rode in snow and heat, over wretched roads, sometimes so ill he could scarcely sit on his horse, and his gentle summing up of his own shortcomings, at the beginning of each year, bring his goodness and unselfishness so vividly before us, that it would be difficult to read the Journal through without adding after the name, Reverend Silas Constant, the title, "A soldier of Christ."

The Reverend Silas Constant

THE Reverend Silas Constant was said to be a son of Colonel Joseph Constant, an officer of the French army, who, in March, 1749, married Susan Tirrell, a daughter of Elijah Tirrell, of Salem parish, in Waterbury, Connecticut. Soon after his marriage Colonel Constant sailed for France for the purpose of arranging his affairs there. The ship in which he took passage is supposed to have foundered at sea, as no tidings were ever heard of it. On 15 January, 1750, at Waterbury, Connecticut, a fatherless boy was born and named Silas, and the young mother died shortly afterwards, bequeathing her son to the care of a married sister, Mrs. Beebe. His birth is recorded with that of the family of Lieutenant Jonathan Beebe, who in his will bequeathed him "fifty pounds when he comes of age." It is said that he married his "second cousin," Amy, daughter of Captain John Lewis, of Salem parish, Waterbury, in 1769. The exact relationship is somewhat doubtful. Mrs. Jonathan Beebe and Captain John Lewis were, however, second cousins.

After his marriage Mr. Constant appears to have resided at Waterbury, where he owned a farm, until past his thirtieth year. In 1777, with Stephen Warner and others, he operated a mill on Long Meadow Brook, at Naugatuck, and in 1778, and again in 1781, he loaned money to the town, to hire soldiers for Horseneck.

It is conjectured that he pursued his theological studies under the direction of the Reverend Jacob Green, of Hanover, New Jersey, and on 29 May, 1783, at the age of thirty-three years, he was ordained an evangelist by the Presbytery of Morris County, New Jersey, afterwards known as the Associated Presbytery of Morris County.

Mr. Constant's first charge was at Blooming Grove and Smith's Clove, now Monroe, Orange County, New York. At these places he preached on alternate Sundays until his removal to "Crompond," now Yorktown, New York, 3 November, 1785.

It is quite probable that he became acquainted with the people of Crompond, or Yorktown, and they with him through his journeys from his field of labor to his old home in Waterbury, Connecticut. He preached his first sermon at Yorktown on 20 November, 1784, and on 2 August, 1785, he was engaged by the Yorktown Presbyterian Church for one year, at a salary of fifty pounds and a parsonage, and began work on 3 November, 1785. On 8 November, 1786, the church invited him to become their pastor at a salary of sixty pounds and a parsonage, and he was soon after installed by a council, composed partly of members of the Associated Presbytery of Morris County, New Jersey, of which he was a member, and partly of members of the Presbytery of Dutchess County, New York, to which the church belonged.

Mr. Constant is described as a tall, well-proportioned man, of commanding presence. He had received a very limited education; but had gathered much information from books. He possessed great shrewdness and personal force, was a ready speaker, a power in the religious life of the community, and the prime mover and leading spirit in the Associated Westchester Presbytery, an ecclesiastical body affiliated to the Associated Presbytery of Morris County, New Jersey. In his intercourse with his neighbors he was kind and obliging, and his daily walk and conversation were above reproach. He preached without notes. As a pastor he was very efficient, his visits combining in a happy way the social and pastoral. His labors were abundant both within the parish—which had at least two out stations, Red Mills and Peekskill, where he preached—and without, and his ministry successful.

Mr. Constant's prosperous pastorate at Yorktown was unfortunately marred by a division in the church in 1806. As before said, it is supposed that he studied theology under the Reverend Jacob Green, of Hanover, New Jersey, who, while clinging to the Presbyterian name, was Congregational at least in church polity. Mr. Green was the father of the Associated Presbytery of Morris County, New Jersey, which held and advocated his views. Mr. Constant was ordained by this presbytery, and was a member of it for nine years. He became one of the founders and the leading spirit of the Associated Westchester Presbytery, a presbytery "associated" with Morris County Presbytery, and of which he remained a member until his death. He was, as described by one who wrote in his defence, "a Presbyterian of the Congregational order." The Yorktown Church, when he began his ministry, was Presbyterian both in name and polity. It had four elders, who with the pastor composed the session. It was connected with the Presbytery of Dutchess County. The deed by which it held its property specified that it was "for the use of a Presbyterian congregation and to be used as a public place of divine worship by the neighbors and inhabitants thereabouts exercising their religion and public worship of God Almighty after and according to the form of worship used and exercised by the now established Presbyterian church government in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, and for no other purpose or intent whatsoever." Shortly after the beginning of Mr. Constant's pastorate at Yorktown, about four months, according to a record kept by himself, he began to undermine Presbyterian polity by teaching Congregationalism. To quote from the manual of the Yorktown Congregational Church, the fragment of the disrupted church composed of Mr. Constant and his friends, "During Mr. Constant's ministry the church which had before been Presbyterian, gradually assumed the Congregational form of government." After a time the elders, as such, took no part in the government of the church. Three of the original four died and the vacancies, thus created, were not filled; but instead deacons were elected. The public announcement from the pulpit, in 1805, that the church was not Presbyterian, but Congregational, is said to have precipitated the rupture. The majority sided with the pastor. The minority, after investigation by a committee, was reorganized by the Presbytery of Hudson as a Presbyterian Church. Metaphorically, both parties flew to arms. Three pamphlets were written, two in defence of Mr. Constant and one in opposition. Appeal was made to the civil courts, and the Circuit Court, Chief Justice (afterwards Chancellor) Kent presiding, awarded the property to the Presbyterian minority. Mr. Constant and his adherents organized the Independent or Congregational Church, of which he was pastor until his death, 22 March, 1825. The division, as is usual in such cases, produced dissension in the community, which only the lapse of threescore years could remove. In 1865 the Congregational Church disbanded, the church edifice was taken down, and most of the members united with the Presbyterian Church. And now only the church-yard with its graves remains to tell the story of Mr. Constant's theological wandering. And here, surrounded by his followers, the old pastor sleeps under a stone which reads: "In / memory of / the Rev / Silas Constant / who departed this life / 22 March, 1825 / aged 75 years, 2 months and 7 days."

As already stated, Mr. Constant married (1) Amy Lewis, the eldest daughter of Captain John Lewis, by his second wife Ame, daughter of Captain Samuel Smith, of New Haven, born at Salem in Waterbury, 24 May, 1751; died at Yorktown, 4 January, 1805, and was buried in the Presbyterian church-yard. He married (2) Mrs. Jane D. Robinson, born 2 October, 1748; died 4 January, 1830; by whom he had no issue, and who is buried beside her husband in the Congregational church-yard, now known as the east yard of the Presbyterian Church of Yorktown.

Children of Reverend Silas and Amy (Lewis) Constant:

1. ST. JOHN CONSTANT, born at Waterbury, Connecticut, 7 May, 1770; died at Peekskill, New York, 13 February, 1847. He married, 2 July, 1792, Jane, daughter of Nathaniel Hyatt,<sup>1</sup> born at Yorktown, 22 February, 1770, and died 3 April, 1817. Both husband and wife are buried in the Van Cortlandt Cemetery at Peekskill.
2. JOSEPH CONSTANT, born at Waterbury, 7 October, 1773; died 25 August, 1819. He was an officer in the United States army, colonel at the battle of New Orleans, and was also sheriff of the county of New York; married Eliza Ackley, and had son Joseph Anthony Constant, and a daughter who married Mr. Kuphausen, of Philadelphia.
3. CHLOE CONSTANT, born 7 July, 1776, probably in the town of Waterbury, and died at Yorktown, 28 April, 1853; married, 17 May, 1792, David Hyatt, born 4 September, 1769; died 4 May, 1844.<sup>2</sup>
4. SALLY CONSTANT, born probably at Oxford, Orange County, New York, 8 September, 1785,<sup>3</sup> and died at Yorktown, New York, 20 June, 1806; married, 20 March, 1805, Dr. Henry White. Two gravestones mark the date of Mrs. White's death, one in the Presbyterian church-yard and the other in the east yard.

<sup>1</sup>One of the interior towns of Orange County, New York, and originally a part of Cornwall. Its early settlers were largely from Suffolk County, Long Island. In the sketch of the Presbyterian Congregation of Smith's Clove, as given in Ruttenber and Clark's "History of Orange County," it is stated that, "It was as late as 1783 before we read of any minister of Christ turning his attention to this region, and then Silas Constant, a licentiate under the care of Morris Presbytery, came to Blooming Grove, and on April 20 preached his first sermon at Blooming Grove. He was ordained May 29, 1784. In his journal he mentions Smith's Clove, or Monroe, as one of his preaching stations. Probably as early as 1783 he visited the Clove. The first sermon he delivered here was in the presence of a congregation assembled in an orchard belonging to the Fowler farm, and under an apple-tree which is still standing and brings forth fruit in old age. The fruit of this tree is large and delicious, and is called the Presbyterian apple. Thus it can be said of the church whose nucleus was gathered there, 'I raised thee up under the apple-tree; there thy mother brought thee forth.'"

<sup>2</sup> James Finch, the first of the Finch name in Orange County, came from Horse-neck, Connecticut, and settled at Goshen, where the family tradition makes him the first person buried in the Goshen church-yard. His son James was married to Catharine Gale, by the Rev. Mr. Kerr, and about 1768 located on land now covered by the village of Middletown. In 1774 he removed to what is known as Finchville, which was probably the place of Mr. Constant's preaching. The former James served in the French and Indian War, and the latter in the Revolution. The family doubtless descended from Daniel Finch, who died at Fairfield, Connecticut, in March, 1667.

<sup>3</sup> So called from the family Smith, early resident in this section, whose first settler was said to have been from Long Island, and the ancestor of Claudius Smith of "infamous memory." The word clove is of Saxon origin, from cleopan, to split asunder, and means valley. Smith's Clove extended from Highland Mills along the Ramapo River. In 1802 the name was changed to Smithfield, and in 1808 to Monroe, in honor of President Monroe.

(New Jersey Wills, xxxix. 487.) Obadiah Ayers, the grandfather of Thomas, and the progenitor of the Woodbridge family, married Hannah, daughter of Captain John Pike, of Salisbury, New Hampshire, and Woodbridge, New Jersey, one of Governor Carteret's Council of 1671, "President" of Woodbridge, and captain of its militia.

<sup>7</sup>Concerning this matter, Mr. Constant elsewhere wrote: "May, 29, 1783, in Roxbury in New Jersey by the advice of the Presbytery of Morris County and under their administration I received ordination and was solemnly set apart by fasting and prayer and the laying on of hands to the work of an evangelist. The solemnity appeared great, the work important and my obligations increased by this renewal of my vow. God grant that I may always feel my bonds to be his, and cheerfully discharge the important trust." Mr. Lewis, who preached the ordination sermon, was probably the Rev. Samuel Lewis of Salem parish, Waterbury, Connecticut, Mr. Constant's former pastor.

He was later settled over the church in Bristol, New York, where he died. His brother, Stephen Grover, was an eminent evangelist.

<sup>10</sup> Few names are so frequently alluded to in the record of Mr. Constant's ministry in Orange County as that of Claudius Reynolds, who at that period was of Smith's Clove, but later, of the Walkkill, where he died in April, 1832, leaving a widow Mary; children Elizabeth, wife of Ebenezer Mead; Mary, wife of Daniel Corwin, and grandchildren George Washington Corwin, Elmarena Corwin, Harriet Newell Corwin, Eliza Jane Corwin, Hannah Maria Corwin, and Charity Ann Corwin. <sup>11</sup> Elihu Marvin, the great-grandson of Matthew Marvin, one of the original proprietors of Hartford, Connecticut, was born at Norwalk in that State, 10 October, 1719. About 1743 he removed to Orange County, New York, and settled in what is now Blooming Grove, where he died 17 August, 1803, and where his descendants still reside. He was chairman of the Committee of Safety for Orange County in 1776, and was subsequently in active service in the Revolution as lieutenant-colonel and colonel of the militia of that county. He married Abigail, daughter of John Yelverton, of Chester, by whom he had Seth, who also served in the militia as lieutenant and captain, Abigail, Elihu, John Yelverton, Elizabeth, Hannah, John, James, Keziah, and Anthony.

<sup>12</sup> It was in the northeast portion of this town that N. P. Willis spent his declining years on a small estate called by him "Idlewild," near the present Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, and not far away is the erstwhile home and last resting-place of Edward Payson Roe, whose ancestors were among the early settlers of this district. On the top of Storm-King Mountain, Mrs. Amelia E. Barr has made her summer home, "Cherry Croft," so called from its cherry-trees.

February 24.—Rode to Mr. John Garner's, preached at his house in the evening.

<sup>40</sup> The first settlement in the present town of Chester was made in 1716 by Daniel Cromline, from Long Island, who for years afterwards kept a tavern known as the Cromline House. Its sign was the king's coat of arms, and as the colors became dimmed with age it was called the "Gray Coat," and later still, after the monthly courts were held in the house, "Gray Court," which name was applied to the stream, meadow, and locality thereabout.

<sup>41</sup> Hezekiah Howell was born at Southampton, Long Island, 6 May, 1709, from whence he removed to Orange County, where he took up some two thousand acres of land in Cornwall Precinct, his home farm being at Blagg's Clove. He was buried 29 September, 1784, when Mr. Constant preached the funeral sermon. By his wife Susanna, daughter of John Sayre, whom he married in 1735, he had Hezekiah, Charles, Stephen, Phebe, Jane, Susanna, and Abigail, all of whom, except Stephen, who had previously died, are included in his will probated 30 September, 1784. (New York Calendar of Wills.)

Edward Howell, the first of the Howell name in Southampton, came from Westbury, Marsh Gibbon, County Bucks, England, to America in 1640; being first of Lynn, Massachusetts, where he had five hundred acres of land. He, however, removed to Southampton, of which he was one of the founders, and a member of the Governor's Council of Connecticut from 1647 to 1653. His son, Major John Howell, prominent in the civil as well as in the military affairs of Long Island, was baptized at Marsh Gibbon, 20 November, 1624, and died at Southampton, 3 November, 1696, where his tombstone in the old graveyard bears a still legible coat of arms,—three towers tripple towered.

<sup>42</sup> Vincent Mathews, one of the sons of Colonel Peter Mathews, who accompanied Governor Fletcher to New York, and who, according to the Earl of Bellamont, "had been brought up from a child with Colonel Fletcher." According to the census of 1703 for New York, "Captain Mathews" had five children, three sons and two daughters. He was major, and commanded the Independent Fusiliers in 1711, in which his son Fletcher Mathews was lieutenant. In 1714 he commanded a company of the Albany County militia, and in this also his son Fletcher was lieutenant and his son Vincent, above, a private. Peter Mathews died at Albany in 1719, where his will, proved 27 December of that year, made his wife Bridget his sole legatee. Her will, dated 8 January, 1721, proved ten days later, named son Vincent, grandson Peter, and daughters Catharine and Flora. The grandson, Peter Mathews, who was living in 1739, but who probably died unmarried and without issue, may have been the son of Lieutenant Fletcher Mathews, who died 14 February, 1714. Vincent Mathews became one of the patentees of a tract of land near New Windsor, Orange County, which he called Mathewsfield. He was taxed at Newburgh in 1718, was clerk of Orange County from 1726 to 1763, member of Assembly from that county from 1729 to 1739, Judge from 1733 to 1737, and was commissioned colonel of the Orange County Regiment of Foot, 20 June, 1738. He died in June, 1784, having married (1) Catalina, daughter of John Abeel, Mayor of Albany in 1694-95, 1709-10, by his wife Catalina Schuyler, and (2) Elizabeth Wileman, who survived him. His children were:

1. Catalina Mathews, baptized at Albany, 18 August, 1723.

2. David Mathews, married 6 November, 1758, Sarah Seymour. He practised law in Orange County as early as 1760 and in New York in 1769; was Mayor of that city before the Revolution; became a loyalist, and removed to Nova Scotia. Had issue.

3. Fletcher Mathews, married, 24 January, 1758, Sarah Woodhull. He resided in Ulster County, where he followed the legal profession until his death about 1799. His children were Catharine, who married (1) — Evertson, and (2) — Baldwin; Bridget, who married Thomas Waters; Elizabeth, who married Henry A. Williams; and Mary.

4. James Mathews, born at Mathewsfeld, 1742; died at Elmira, 1816, married, 18 February, 1762, Hannah, daughter of Selah Strong by his wife Hannah Woodhull. He had: Vincent, who was admitted to the New York Bar in 1790, settled in practice at Elmira, and was elected to Congress as a Federalist, serving from 1809 till 1811; Selah; Peter, who removed to Michigan; Fletcher, who settled at Romulus, Seneca County; James; Nathaniel Strong; Catharine, who married Libbeus Tubbs; Elizabeth, who married John G. Christopher; Juliana Strong, who married Hon. Lazarus Hammond; Sarah, who married General Samuel Haight, several of whose children carried on the traditions of the Mathews family, her son Fletcher Mathews Haight being United States judge for the District of California, and her grandson also filled the same office, as well as that of governor of the State of California, 1867-71; and Bridget, who married William Lowe.

5. Elizabeth Mathews, married Theophilus Beekman.

6. Bridget Mathews, married — Jones.

<sup>43</sup> Hezekiah Howell, Jr., born 4 September, 1741; died 9 March, 1815, was a prominent man of his time, first supervisor of Cornwall, and High Sheriff of Orange County; was commissioned, 5 January, 1776, Second Major of the Orange County Minute Men, commanded by Colonel Isaac Nicoll. He married, in October, 1767, Juliana, daughter of Nathaniel Woodhull, born 6 April, 1736; died in April, 1816.

<sup>44</sup> Daniel Miller was the donor of the land upon which the meeting-house at Smith's Clove was erected. His will, dated 12 February, 1799, proved the following month, gave lands in Ovid, Seneca County, to son Abraham, on which the latter then resided, and made division of other property to children Elizabeth, Nancy, Mary, Sally, Phebe, John, Zachariah, Daniel, Philip, Israel, William, Zebud, and Anthony, the youngest not yet seven years old. His executors were son Daniel and brother Abraham Miller. (Orange County Wills.)

<sup>46</sup> Elijah Reeve, one of the trustees of the First Presbyterian Church of Mt. Hope. The minutes of the Congregational Church of Howells Depot (New Shawangunk), under above date, 18 April, 1784, notes that "Mr. Constant preached as a candidate; highly approved." And on May 2, that "Mr. Shepherd preached; esteemed as a promising gospel minister, but Mr. Constant bears the greatest sway in the minds of the people." It is probable that this religious body was in its earliest years Presbyterian, or acted, to some extent, with the Morris County Presbytery. The records of the Church make this mention of Mrs. Reeve's death: "August 6, 1783.—Departed this life, Mary, wife of Elijah Reeve, a member of this church, remarkable for patience, piety, and resignation." His will, dated 13 December, 1813, proved 20 December, 1817, shows that he married again. It mentions sons George Fox Reeve, Elijah Conklin Reeve, and Gabriel, and daughter Fanny Newkirk, the latter of whom, according to the church records, was baptized 12 February, 1783.

<sup>70</sup> The Sayres of Orange County descend from the early settlers of that name in Southampton, Long Island. The brothers Thomas and Job Sayre, copartners of Mr. Edward Howell in the settlement of Southampton, were sons of Francis Sears and Elizabeth Atkins, of Leighton Buzzard, Bedfordshire (married 15 November, 1591), and their baptisms are recorded on the parish register of that place. James Sayre, of the text, married Susanna, daughter of Ebenezer Seely, of Goshen Precinct, by whom he had James, Job, Ebenezer, Elizabeth, Susanna, Hannah, and Mary. He died in April, 1788. One of this name practised law in the courts of Orange County as early as 1770, and one James Sayre was commissioned, 18 August, 1778, first lieutenant of the Light Horse Company of Blooming Grove, Cornwall Precinct. (For information on this family, see Sayre Genealogy.)

<sup>82</sup> The Seelys of Orange County descend from Robert Seeley, of Watertown, Massachusetts, who was a passenger in the fleet with Winthrop, and who took the oath of allegiance, 18 May, 1630. He removed to Connecticut, where he was second in command under Captain John Mason in the Pequod War, and one of the signers of the original agreement entered into by the first settlers of New Haven in 1639. He settled finally at Huntington, Long Island, where he was at the head of the militia force. Josiah and John Seely, of the text, were brothers, and the sons of Ebenezer Seely, of Goshen Precinct, who, in his will, dated 16 May, 1763, probated 7 March, 1767, made bequests to wife Eunice, sons John, Bezael, Israel, Josiah, and Nathaniel, daughters Mercy Bartlett and Susina Sayre, and grandchildren Bezael, Ebenezer, Mercy, Hannah, William, Jonas, Thadeus, Elizabeth, Hannah, Susanna, Sarah, and Mary. The grandson William Seely is frequently referred to by Mr. Constant, and the records of Orange County show that on 9 April, 1777, he "suffered by fire the loss of his house with almost all the household furniture, together with all his writings, deeds, etc." Josiah Seely, above, made his will 2 July, 1802, and named wife Abigail, children Josiah, Jonas, Susanna, Mary, Martha, Ebenezer, and Henry, and granddaughters Abigail McLaughlin and Joanna Seely. The wife Abigail was the daughter of Henry Smith, to whom he was married by Mr. Constant, 11 May, 1784. This was doubtless a second marriage. He died in August, 1808. John Seely, brother of Josiah, died in February, 1796, leaving children Ebenezer, Elizabeth, Abigail, James, John, and Thadeus, to three of whom, Ebenezer, James, and Thadeus, he gave lands in Romulus, Oneida County, New York.

<sup>83</sup>Henry Youngs, grandfather of Henry of the text, was an early settler in Goshen Precinct, where he was captain of a troop of horse for Orange County, 20 June, 1738, and where he died in September, 1743, survived by wife Ruth, sons Henry and Birdsey, daughter Ruth, and brothers Abimal and Selah. The son, Henry Youngs, married Abigail, daughter of Barnabas Horton, and had but two children, Henry and Eunice, to whom by will of 23 February, 1767, he left his "home farm land in Connecticut government in New England." The latter Henry is he of the text. His will, dated 14 October, 1803, proved 30 January, 1804, named wife Elizabeth and children Henry, Hiram, Oliver, Mary, Eunice, and Juliana. 9 December, 1824. He married, 3 February, 1778, Phebe, daughter of Sylvanus White, Esq., of Blooming Grove, by whom he had Ruth, Eunice, Brewster, Phebe, Mary, Deborah, Nathan W., and Joseph W. Of his daughters, Ruth married Samuel Denniston; Eunice, Samuel Strong; Phebe, Joseph Decker; Mary, Apolos Halsey; and Deborah, Thomas Moffat.

<sup>99</sup> Daniel Burt was born at Ridgefield, Connecticut, 8 July, 1716, and died at Warwick, New York, 18 January, 1810. About 1760 he located at Bellevale, in Warwick, where he erected flour- and saw-mills. He married Hannah Benedict, by whom he had Phebe, Daniel, Martha, Hannah, Ruth, Lydia, Sarah, Esther, Anna, and James, the latter of whom was born in Orange County, 25 October, 1760.

Thomas De Kay, the testator and eldest child of Jacob De Kay by his wife Sarah, daughter of Colonel Thomas Willett, was baptized 4 December, 1696. (New York Dutch Church Records.)

<sup>102</sup> The Rev. Amzi Lewis, pastor of the United Congregations of Warwick and Florida, over the latter of which he continued until 1787, was born at Canterbury, Connecticut, 18 October, 1746, was graduated at Yale in 1768, and died at North Stamford, Connecticut, 5 April, 1819.

<sup>103</sup> Peter and Benjamin Earl were sons of John Earl, of Smith's Clove, whose will, proved 31 August, 1786, named children Samuel, Richard, Benjamin, Peter, Ezra, Jonathan, and Elizabeth, and grandchildren Joseph and Mary Holloway. Peter married (1) Elizabeth, daughter of John Bull, and lived at the south point of Schunemunk Mountain. His will, dated 14 June, 1818, proved 27 March, 1819, makes bequests to sons Elmer, Daniel, Ezra, and John, to wife Lois, to daughters Rachel Payne, Hannah Payne, Nancy Knowlton, Polly Weeks, Elizabeth Galloway, Martha Mapes, Sally, and Susanna, and to grandson Ithamer Bloomer.

<sup>105</sup> Probably John Carpenter, of Blooming Grove, whose will, proved 27 June, 1787, had been executed 17 September, 1767, and then named wife Rachel, sons Elijah and William, and grandson Matthew. A son of the testator, John I. Carpenter, who, in his will of 13 January, 1766, described himself as "of Blooming Grove, merchant," and left his property to wife Jane, son Matthew, daughters Juda, Rachel, and Amira, brothers Elijah and William, and brothers- and sisters-in-law, surnamed Howell, the children of Hezekiah Howell, whose daughter Jane he had married. William Carpenter, son of John Carpenter above, made his will 24 April, 1788, proved 22 September, 1789. His legatees were brother Elijah, and his son Matthew, sister-in-law widow Jane Carpenter and her two daughters, Rachel and Amira Elizabeth, the daughters of Jonathan Deboise.

June, 1670, and died there 4 January, 1747. He married (1) Hester, daughter of Captain Jonathan Horton, who died in 1709, and he married, shortly afterwards, Abigail —. In 1733 he married his third wife, Mary, the daughter of Uriah Terry. Of his children, Jonathan and William were certainly by the first wife; Samuel, Daniel, and Thomas by Mary Terry; while Bethuel, Benjamin, and Lemuel were doubtless by the second wife. William Mapes, the second son, removed to Orange County, where he purchased, under date 26 February, 1729, from Madam Elizabeth Denne, a tract of eleven hundred acres, and subsequently conducted there an Indian trading-house and frontier tavern known as the "famous Mapes tavern." He was commissioned, 20 June, 1738, lieutenant of the Orange County Troop of Horse, under Captain Henry Youngs. He died 26 February, 1788, in his eighty-fourth year. His tombstone, erected long after his death, gives the year as 1798. His children were William, Thomas, Henry, Mary, and David of the text, who resided at Goshen, and there died about January, 1795, in which month his widow Mary and his son James administered on his estate. Besides James, he had John, Catharine, Hannah, Edward, and William. The widow Mary was probably his second wife.

<sup>125</sup> Samuel Mapes, eldest son of Jonathan Mapes by his third wife Mary Terry, was born at Southold, 14 February, 1735, and removed in early manhood to Orange County, settling first at Blooming Grove, where his name and that of his eldest son Smith appear in the list of signers of the Revolutionary Pledge in 1775. Later in life he removed to the locality now known as Howell's Depot, but for many years distinguished as Mapestown. Before his death he deeded a plot of land near the site of the present Congregational Church at Howell's Depot, for a family burying-ground, and there he, his wife, and several generations of descendants are buried. His will, proved 10 February, 1820, named sons Smith, Enos, Samuel, Selah, Erastus, Seth, and Silas Haines; granddaughter Harriet Carpenter and her daughter Eliza Ann Vail; wife Mary, and Mahala, wife of Nathaniel Coleman. His wife Mary, surname unknown, was born 8 April, 1739, and died in 1825. Of the sons, Smith and Silas Haines settled in Western New York and Seth in Ohio.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Mapes Dodge, daughter of Professor James Jay Mapes by his wife Sophia Furman, descends from Thomas Mapes, the emigrant, through Jabez, brother of Jonathan, previously referred to. (For further details of this family, see the "Family Record" for 1897, published by C. H. Weygandt, of Newburgh.)

<sup>127</sup> All traditions concerning this locality seem to agree that, at the village of New Windsor, a ferry was maintained to Fishkill at a very early period.

<sup>128</sup> Often written "Crom Pond," the Dutch term for crooked pond, and is so called in the County Records as early as 1732. It was near this place that the French forces under Rochambeau were encamped in 1781-82, on an elevation since known as French Hill. Just after the Revolution popular feeling was against all that recalled the rule of the House of Hanover, and in 1788 the township in the Manor of Cortlandt known as Hanover was changed to Yorktown, in honor of the overthrow of British power, or it may have been in compliment to the patriotism of the Van Cortlandts, and in consideration of the gallant services of Colonel Philip Van Cortlandt at Yorktown, in Virginia, on which occasion he was advanced to the rank of brigadier-general. The first entry of a town meeting for Cortlandt Manor is under date of the first Tuesday in April, 1760, and the book of town proceedings is styled a "Record for the Manor of Cortlandt and Yorktown," which title, however, would seem to have been added in a later hand.

<sup>129</sup> The eastern section of Yorktown still bears the name of Amawalk, probably an abbreviation and corruption of the Mohegan term Appamagh-pogh which had been applied to the whole Indian territory within the manor west of Cortlandtown, and it was under this name that the grant from the Indian sachems to Stephanus Van Cortlandt was made in 1683. (Bolton's History of Westchester.)

<sup>130</sup> Joshua Hyatt was a son of John Hyatt, of Cortlandt Manor, one of the first trustees of the Presbyterian Church at Crompond, and who, by his will of 22 April, 1760, named sons John, Joshua, and Sylvanus, wife Sarah, and daughters Elizabeth Strang, Sarah, and Hannah. Few names are more troublesome to the genealogist than this of Hoyt, Hoit, Hyatt, and Haight, which doubtless had a common root, but which certainly had a number of stems, and each of these a variety of spellings. Throughout the Journal Mr. Constant's spelling of the name is adhered to, and it is usually incorrect. Daniel Haight, Esq., of Rochester, New York, writing, 10 September, 1891, says, "There can be no doubt that the name Haight is derived from Hoyt being at different times spelled in different ways: Hoyt, Hoit, Hoyght, Hoight, Haite, Hait, Haight. . . . The name became settled as Hoyt in Danbury and Norwalk, Connecticut; Hait in Stamford, Connecticut, where the name Hoyt has been resumed in the present century; and Haight in Westchester County, New York, where the English and Dutch families met."

<sup>137</sup> The Lees of Yorktown descend from William Lee, of Hempstead, Long Island, who, on 10 May, 1680, received certain lands in Hempstead from his father-in-law, Robert Marvin (Hempstead Town Records), which latter was one of the residents of Hempstead who were made freemen of the Connecticut government, 12 May, 1664. William Lee had died before 13 October, 1701, on which date Thomas Lee conveyed the lands previously purchased in Hempstead by William Lee, to his brothers John and Joseph, and described them as lands "of which my father died possessed." His children were Thomas, Joseph, John, Robert, and possibly others, but not the "seven daughters" given in Bolton's invaluable History of Westchester County, page 529, for some of these "daughters" must certainly have been born after his death. Joseph<sup>2</sup> Lee, the second son of William Lee, and the immediate progenitor of the Yorktown family, had among other children, Joseph<sup>3</sup>, John, and Thomas; and of these,—

Joseph<sup>3</sup> Lee, the eldest son, was doubtless the pioneer in Westchester County, though the date of his arrival is difficult to fix. He died at Crompond, 10 May, 1790, aged, according to his tombstone, seventy-seven years. The funeral sermon was preached by Mr. Constant, who styled him "Elder Lee." The first wife, Sarah —, died 20 August, 1759, aged forty-three years, and is buried beside him, as was his second wife, Phebe, who died 26 June, 1812, aged ninety years, one month, and sixteen days. His children, very frequently referred to in these pages, were by his first wife:

1. Joseph<sup>4</sup> Lee, born 1740; buried 22 September, 1790; married Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Curry. She was married by Mr. Constant, 23 October, 1794, to Robert Wright.
2. William Lee, named in his father's will of 13 April, 1790; died 3 January, 1800.
3. Anna Lee, married Captain Samuel Haight.
4. Hannah Lee, born May, 1745; died 4 September, 1810; married Dr. James Brewer, q. v.
5. Abijah Lee, born 1746; died 30 April, 1786; married Dorcas Woolsey, who died 15 January, 1805, in her fifty-sixth year. Under date of 30 April, 1786, Mr. Constant notes: "Deacon Lee died last night." The date given is from his tombstone. He is the Deacon Lee referred to in the text.
6. Phebe Lee, married Daniel Horton.
7. Elizabeth Lee, married Joseph Ingersoll.
8. Elijah Lee, born 1751; died 23 June, 1829. He married four times,—
  - (1) to Sarah Conklin, who died 19 August, 1779, aged twenty-five years;
  - (2) to Mary, daughter of Hackaliah Brown, of Somers, by his wife Abby

10. Sarah Lee.

John<sup>8</sup> Lee, the second son of Joseph<sup>2</sup> Lee, and by his wife Abigail, was baptized at St. George's, Hempstead, Long Island, 25 September, 1726; died 12 March, 1816, and is buried in the church-yard at Crompond. He married Sarah, a daughter of Peter Perine, of Staten Island, and is named in his will of 10 March, 1752. (New York Wills, xx. 131.) She died 31 July, 1796, aged seventy-one years, and is buried beside her husband. Their children were:

1. Thomas<sup>4</sup> Lee, born 1749; died 24 June, 1791.

2. John Lee, removed to Somerset County, New Jersey. Under date of 26 April, 1786, Mr. Constant notes: "John Lee moved from here."

3. Sarah Lee, born 30 November, 1751; married John Horton.

4. Henry Lee.

5. Margaret Lee, born 29 May, 1759; died 21 May, 1836; married Jonas Williams.

10. Robert Perine Lee, born 16 April, 1766; died 19 November, 1848; married (1) Caroline C. Hawkins, born 26 May, 1771; died 20 May, 1812; (2) Elizabeth, daughter of Elijah Lee, born 19 July, 1794; died 24 March, 1851. He was for many years one of the leading members of the Westchester County bar. His estate lay on the main road from Crompond to Somers.

Thomas<sup>3</sup> Lee, the third son of Joseph Lee, also by wife Abigail, was baptized at St. George's, Hempstead, 21 July, 1728, and died at Morristown, New Jersey, 7 January, 1805. He married Dinah, a daughter of Peter Perine, of Staten Island, and the sister of his brother John's wife, who survived him. The date of his removal to Morristown is not clear, and he had probably resided for a short time at Woodbridge, New Jersey, but both himself and wife were members of the first Presbyterian Church of Morristown about 1770, and several of his children later became members. For some details of his family, see The Record of First Presbyterian Church, Morristown, New Jersey.

<sup>137b</sup> Mr. John Jones, of Peekskill, whose daughter Phebe married, according to his will of 7 March, 1806, Joseph Jones. The list of marriages in the Journal gives the names of the contracting parties as James Jones and Phebe Jones.

<sup>142</sup> Rev. Ichabod Lewis, who was ordained as colleague of the venerable Rev. John Smith, of the White Plains Presbyterian Church, 11 October, 1769. After the burning of that church, in 1776, Mr. Lewis removed to Bedford and from thence to Philippi, now Southeast, in Putman County, where he succeeded the Rev. Elisha Kent, grandfather of the illustrious chancellor, James Kent, of New York, and great-grandfather of Elisha Kent Kane, the Arctic explorer. Mr. Lewis died 8 April, 1798, aged forty-nine years, and lies in the Sears burying-ground in Southeast. The Church has been known as the Presbyterian Church of Doansburg, Kent's Parish, the First Church in Philipse Precinct, East Church of Philippi, Eastern Society of the South Precinct, and Union Society of Southeast. It was Presbyterian until 1809, when it became Congregational, and so remained until 26 April, 1826, when it returned to the Presbytery.

His charge also embraced the church at Fredericksburg, now Patterson, Putman County. In the absence of the Rev. Mr. Sackett during the Revolution, Mr. Burritt also served the Church at Crompond, and while so engaged was captured by the British.

<sup>146</sup> According to the duplicate list of marriages, found at the end of this Journal, Daniel Haight married Sarah Barret. He was the son of John Haight of Cortlandt, by his wife Sarah Searles, born 26 July, 1765, and is named in his father's will of 11 May, 1809, with surviving brothers and sisters: Moses, John, Solomon, Elizabeth, wife of William Fowler, and Phebe, to whom is given "land on the road that leads from Yorktown to Peekskill, west of Mr. Gregory's bridge." The wife of Daniel Haight was a daughter of John and Elizabeth Barret, of Cortlandt, born 10 November, 1766; died 28 April, 1827. (See note 201.) She and her husband were legatees under her father's will of 23 April, 1799, as were also their children John and Elizabeth Haight. Their children were: John B., born 20 December, 1796; died 24 December, 1830; who married (1) Jemima McCord, born 23 March, 1800; died 9 February, 1818; and (2) Aletta, daughter of Peter Goetchius; Elizabeth, married John Chase; Hester, married Henry Dickinson, and Abraham.

January 23.—Cloudy and cold, went to Mrs. Budd's ; in the evening to School meeting at Esq<sup>r</sup> Lee's.

January 24.—Unwell ; went to Mr. Likely's ;<sup>148</sup> preached Matthew <sup>148</sup> The first mention of John Lickley, or Likely, as the name is sometimes spelled, in New York, appears to be that of his marriage to Martha Barret, under date of 15 April, 1770, when both are described as "of Van Cortlandt's Manor" (Records of the First and Second Presbyterian Churches of New York), and shortly afterwards—in 1772—he was appointed pound-master for Canopus Hollow, in Philipstown. Canopus was the name of a tribe of Indians who lived in Westchester County, near the line of Putnam, and extended up into the hollow which perpetuates their name in the western part of what is now the town of Putnam Valley. John Lickley is said to have come from Scotland, and was, after a residence in that part of Dutchess now Putnam County, a man of local influence. He was also a man of education and one of the early town clerks of Philipstown. The town meetings were frequently held at his house. Just what relation he bore to the Peter Likely who also appears on the records of Philipstown, between 1772 and 1782, cannot now be determined, for the entire existence of the latter seems to be based on the casual entry of his name on the town records. The names of Joseph Lightley and William Lightley appear on the roll of Captain William Gilchrist's company of Westchester County militia, dated 15 May, 1761. (New York Colonial Series, vol. ii.) The former was registered as twenty-one years of age, the latter twenty-four, and both as born in "Old England." This is doubtless the same name, and probably the original form. The name Lightlie is an ancient one in England, where the family bore for arms, Argent, on a fesse sable an annulet of the field ; and Lickley, which must be but a corruption of this, is found in no work on surnames. Before the Revolution John Lickley was a tenant of Colonel Beverly Robinson, under the system of rental practised in the manors. Actual sale of manorial lands in fee to settlers was rare, it being almost the invariable rule that the persons residing upon them did not acquire possession of the soil occupied, at least until the Revolution had brought about the disintegration of the manors. So, when peace had once more settled upon the valley of Canopus, Mr. Lickley purchased, on 27 October, 1783, from the Commissioners of Forfeiture, ninety-six and three-quarters acres of land in Philipse Precinct, "already in his possession" (Dutchess Deeds, ii. 117-118), to which he added eighty-seven acres, 9 April, 1787 (ibid., xi. 399), two hundred and seventy-six acres on 16 April, 1795 (ibid., xiv. 394), and small lots purchased from Abraham Baker and Mary his wife, and from Levi Owens and Sarah his wife, in 1797. (Putnam Deeds, F, 166-168.) Some of his land adjoined that on which the Croft Iron Mine is situated. From the frequency of Mr. Constant's visits to the house of John Lickley, he would appear to have been a Presbyterian, though his last resting-place was in the Episcopal ground of St. Peter's, Peekskill. He died intestate, 17 November, 1807, aged seventy-three years. He married, as above, Martha, daughter of John and Elizabeth Barret, born, according to her tombstone at St. Peter's in 1750; died 19 March, 1831. Issue:

1. Henry Lickley, who, with wife Sarah, executed a quit claim deed, 19 April, 1809, to Martha, widow of John Lickley, of sundry lands of which the latter died possessed.
2. Elizabeth Lickley, born 29 May, 1772; died 27 July, 1816; married, 27 October, 1789, Frederick Bell, whom Mr. Constant incorrectly calls William Bell, in his marriage entry.
3. William Lickley, born 18 December, 1773; died 1 October, 1805.
4. Absalom Lickley, married Rachel Meeks, and had Michael, Hannah, and John.
5. Margaret Lickley, born 17 November, 1779; died 3 December, 1820; married Isaac Anderson, and removed to New York.
6. Abraham Lickley, born 16 March, 1781; died 3 December, 1801.
7. John Lickley, born 6 October, 1790; died 14 January, 1843; married Mary Cole.

3. William Lickley, son of John and Martha Lickley, was born in Philipstown, 18 December, 1773; died 1 October, 1805, and was buried in St. Peter's church-yard at Peekskill. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Bell by his wife Jane Jones, born 22 October, 1776; died 30 July, 1867. She married, before 13 April, 1808, Stephen Mekeel, born 29 July, 1777; died 2 May, 1859; by whom she had: 1. Jane Mekeel, born 5 August, 1809; married Henry, son of Joshua Haight by his wife Mary Warren. 2. John Mekeel. 3. Mary Mekeel. 4. Michael Mekeel. The children of William and Elizabeth (Bell) Lickley were:

1. Daniel Odell Lickley, married (1) Jane Katselides; (2) —
2. Sarah Lickley, married Sylvanus Ferris.
3. Abraham Lickley, died unmarried.

4. Phebe Lickley, born 13 August, 1804; died 15 December, 1870; married, 15 February, 1824, Sylvanus Warren, Esq., of Cold Spring, born 15 November, 1799; died 19 February, 1859. (See Warren family, in Appendix.)

7. John Lickley, born 6 October, 1790; died 14 January, 1843. Under date of 2 December, 1820, he purchased from Isaac Anderson and Margaret his wife, of New York, property in Philipstown bordering on lands already in his possession; and on 8 January, 1830, his mother, Martha Lickley, also conveyed to him various tracts of land in Philipstown (Putnam Deeds, A, 357-359; F, 166-168). He married, 20 April, 1809, Mary, the daughter of Ebenezer Cole, born 14 December, 1791; died 18 July, 1876. Their children were:

1. Martha Ann Lickley, born 28 January, 1810; died 15 May, 1834.

He was the son, and probably the only one, of Abraham Van Tassel, of Cortlandt, whose will of 10 October, 1794, proved 10 March, 1795 (ibid., B., 287), named daughters Mary Males, Winchy Lent, and Catharine Tice. The name was originally spelled Van Texel, "after the place in Holland which gave birth to this heroic line," and suggests "Wolferts Roost," the "Van Tassel House," and "Sunny Side," near Tarrytown, than which there is scarcely a building in America more replete with poetic interest, through the fame of its chronicler, Washington Irving.

February 24.—Studying; thawing weather.

February 25.—Rode to Peekskill, preached Revelation xxii. 17; at Isaac Lent's, 1 John iii. 1. All night at Peekskill.

February 26.—At John Horton's, preached [at] Bells,<sup>150</sup> Acts xiii. 41; to visit Cornelius Tomkins's; <sup>151</sup> staid at Duzenbury's.

<sup>150</sup> Peter Bell was born in Dutchess County, New York, in 1743, and at the age of nineteen years entered Captain Peter Harris's company of Dutchess County militia, 30 March, 1762, for service against the French and Indians. At the time of his enlistment his personal appearance is partially described on the muster rolls of his company,—“brown hair, blue eyes, brown complexion.” Another of the name Bell—William—was also of this company, and enlisted 5 April, 1762, aged twenty-one. They may have been brothers, and the sons of William Bell, who was plaintiff in a suit in Dutchess County in May, 1744. Peter Bell also served in the Revolution, and it is said that he was famous for his stories of camp life at Valley Forge.

A canteen which belonged to Peter Bell is now in possession of Mrs. Washington A. Roebing. It was, until recently, the property of Henry Van Tassel, of Wappinger's Falls, New York, who is now over ninety years of age, and who owned and used the canteen for upward of seventy years, it having been given to him by his father, Henry Van Tassel, who married the youngest daughter of Peter Bell. It is possible that the canteen and his musket, owned by Mr. Van Tassel, are relics of his earlier campaign of 1762-1763. Before the Revolution, Mr. Bell held a farm in the Philipse Patent, containing one hundred and thirty-six and one-half acres, under a lease from Colonel Roger Morris and the beautiful Mary Philipse, his wife, which, after the act of attainder and forfeiture of estates was passed, Mr. Bell purchased outright, under date of 24 October, 1783, the property being thus described:

<sup>151</sup> Cornelius Tompkins, Esq., of Philipstown, Dutchess County, now the town of Putnam Valley, in Putnam County, son of Nathaniel Tompkins, born 18 July, 1756; died 30 January, 1826. His will, dated 2 August, 1825, named wife Susanna, to whom he left a life interest in land in Peekskill Hollow, with remainder to son George W. Tompkins; son Samuel, to whom was given the right, title, and interest in farm formerly owned by Nathaniel Tompkins, deceased; sons Cornelius J. and Jones, the farm called the Odell farm; grandson Cornelius J., daughters Sarah, Elizabeth, Polly, Hannah, Abigail, and Susan, six shares in farm formerly owned by Peter Bell; son-in-law John Wardwell and son Samuel executors. He married Susannah Jones, born 28 May, 1760, and died 31 July, 1851. Their children were: Hannah, died young; Sarah, Cornelius, Samuel, Mary, Jones, Elizabeth, Hannah, Abigail, Ananias, George Washington, died young; Susannah, and George Washington.

February 27.—Rode home, snow two inches, then to Dr Cornelius's monthly meeting, preached Revelation xxii. 17; rode home, warm, cloudy.

"All that certain tract or parcel of land situated in Philipse precinct in Dutchess County, now in possession of Peter Bell, beginning at a Sassafrax sapling on the west side of Lain's Brook and on the south side of William Colegrove's land and runs from thence along the said Colegrove's land north 42 degrees, 30 minutes, West 33 chains, 80 links to a white oak tree, thence along the land of John Horton, North 68 degrees West 22 chains 40 links to heap of stone, the beginning a corner of Henry Post's land, Isaac Odel's land and along the same and the land of Esther Van Tassel South 17 degrees West 35 chains 53 links to heap of stones, thence along the land of Gabriel Archer South 72 degrees East 43 chains to a black ash tree on the west side of Jones' brook, thence running up said brook to place of beginning, one hundred and thirty six and one half acres, exclusive of Highways." (Dutchess County Deeds, E, 106.)

Mr. Bell died between 23 May and 3 December, 1795, as his will was executed on the former, and proved on the latter day. (Dutchess County Wills, I, 504.) He married, at New York Dutch Church, 30 September, 1765, Jane, only daughter of Ebenezer Jones, of Yonkers, who made his will 26 April, 1764, and, after providing for his wife Martha, left the bulk of his estate to his daughter Jean or Jane. Ebenezer Jones resided in the vicinity of King's Bridge, "which lies in a beautiful vale near the confluence of the Hudson and Haarlem Rivers. It is almost surrounded by high rolling hills, whose tops are crowned by hill forts and fine spreading woods. This spot was first chosen as the city of New Amsterdam, on account of its secure and inland position." (Bolton's Westchester.) He was the grandson of Ebenezer Jones, of Eastchester, who, together with Francis French and John Westcott, purchased, before 1 March, 1685, from Elias Doughty, of Flushing, lands called "The Mile Square" (Westchester Deeds, A, 67), and who conveyed the same lands, which were exempted out of the great Philipse Patent of 1693, to his sons Benjamin Jones, Joseph Jones, Ebenezer Jones, Jr., and William Jones, 29 May, 1714. (Westchester Deeds, F, 85, 124.) The Mile Square lay northwest of Eastchester, in the eastern part of the old town of Yonkers, sheltered by picturesque hills and bordering the Bronx, along whose banks Joseph Rodman Drake, the author of "Culprit Fay," was later wont to wander, and whose lines on the "gentle river" have endeared it to many. Ebenezer Jones, Sr., father of the above sons, was born 20 August, 1646, and was the eldest son of Cornelius Jones, of Stamford, Connecticut, who married at that place, as second wife, 6 October, 1657, Elizabeth, widow of Thomas Hiat. (Stamford Town Records.) The will of Cornelius Jones, dated at Stamford, 2 June, 1690, names sons Joseph Jones and Ebenezer Jones, daughter Mary Hiat, and granddaughter Ruth Hiat. (Probate Records of Fairfield, Connecticut.)

March 21.—Rode to Mr. Wright's; married Seth Whitney<sup>152</sup> and Elizabeth Wright and Henry Lounsbury and Elizabeth Wedan.

<sup>152</sup> Seth Whitney, son of Nathan and Sarah Whitney, was born at Ridgefield, Connecticut, 8 February, 1726, and was living at Crompond as early as 23 December, 1758, where he later bought a farm and erected a house on Pine's Bridge road, leading south from Crompond. The house, which is still standing, was the scene of the capture of Seth Whitney of the notorious freebooter, Joseph Hueson, who during the Revolution was a scourge and terror to this part of the country, and the bayonet and staff with which he was silenced forever is still shown. He married (1) Sarah Mow or Moe, who died at Yorktown; (2), as above, Elizabeth Wright; (3), Anne Smith, the widow of —— Jump and Captain Trowbridge, of Bedford. She was born 10 July, 1730, O. S.; died 29 June, 1819, and is buried in Crompond East graveyard. Mr. Whitney died between 1 January and 13 May, 1807, as his will was dated the former and proved the latter day. (Westchester Wills, F, 292.) This instrument names wife Anne, son Silas, and daughter Mary Bedle. His children, all by his first wife, were:

1. Sarah Whitney, born 3 April, 1750; died 7 October, 1822; married, 3 October, 1776, Joseph, son of Jesse Fowler, born 27 November, 1753; died 22 May, 1797. Both buried in the Presbyterian church-yard at Yorktown.
2. Mary Whitney, married, 4 February, 1790, Samuel Bedle. He died at Yorktown, 25 May, 1827, without issue. She was living 28 May, 1835.

March 22.—Rode to Macajah Wright's; preached Ezekiel xviii. last; in the evening at Arche Reed's, Psalms xxix. 23; staid at O. Purdy's.

March 23.—Rode to Red Mills; preached funeral of * * * * Badeau <sup>153</sup> cold and high wind.

3. Ezra Whitney.

4. Abijah Whitney, married Milicent, daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Hyatt. He died about 1803, and his widow married, 1810, John Lounsbury, of Yorktown.

5. Seth Whitney, born at Yorktown, 3 May, 1765; died 20 May, 1835; married, 17 November, 1792, Elizabeth, daughter of Henry and Margaret (Hazard) Strang, who died, according to the family record, 6 November, 1858. Her tombstone, however, says "6 December, 1857, aged 91 years, 2 months, and 17 days." Mr. Whitney followed Mr. Constant's religious wanderings and became deacon of the Congregational Church at Crompond, in Yorktown, sometime before 2 May, 1806, and he left, by his will of 20 May, 1835, a legacy of five hundred dollars to this church. His will also names wife Elizabeth, daughter Eliza, wife of Cornelius F. Ferris; son-in-law Bernardus Montross, daughter Margaret, wife of Ezra Kipp; and sister Mary.

6. Amos Whitney, born at Yorktown, 15 December, 1767; died 2 February, 1844; married, 1 January, 1800, Rosetta, daughter of the Rev. Amzi and Betsy Lewis, born at Salem, in Waterbury, 3 April, 1779; died 3 September, 1868. They both lie in the Crompond East graveyard where the old Congregational Church once stood. (For additional information concerning this family, see the Whitney Genealogy, from which the above is mainly taken.)

<sup>153</sup> John Badeau, from New Rochelle, probably a son of Elias Badeau, who was a freeholder of that town in 1708, settled at Red Mills, then in Fredericksburg precinct, Dutchess County, now in Carmel, Putnam County, about 1775, where, until after the Revolution, he held a farm as a tenant of Colonel Roger Morris. He died about 21 March, 1787, aged eighty-eight years, and was buried as above. His children were Peter, Elias, John, and Frances, wife of Isaac Coutant, of New Rochelle. Of these, Peter Badeau was born 1728; died at Red Mills, 9 August, 1816. His farm included all the land in the vicinity of the Presbyterian church at Red Mills, for which he gave the land in 1784, and his son Isaac gave the land for a parsonage. He married (1), Katharine, daughter of Isaac Coutant, of New Rochelle, by his wife Catharine Bonnefois; born in 1726; died February, 1790. He married (2), 1 December, 1794, Elizabeth Secor, born in 1794; died 29 October, 1826. His children, all by the first wife, were: 1. Peter Badeau, born 1749; removed to Albany. 2. Isaac Badeau, born 13 May, 1750; died 7 September, 1842; married (1) Susanna, daughter of Henry Coutant, of New Rochelle; born 14 December,

June 3.—Preached at Red Mills,<sup>155</sup> Joel ii. 12-13, Isaiah lv. 25; rode to Henry Carman's—preached 1 John iii. 1; home.

<sup>155</sup> The Red Mills were situated at the outlet of Lakes Mahopac and Kirk, now in Carmel, Putnam County, and were built in 1756, of massive timber and covered with cedar, and from the color were known in all that vicinity as "Red Mills." They appear on Erskine's military map as "Robinson's Mills," and were doubtless on the site of the "Kirkham Mills" of 1746, mentioned in the laying out of the roads. It is stated that prior to the Revolution Colonel Roger Morris and his wife had a log residence near the mills, to which they came during the summer months to visit their Highland estate and tenants. A portion of this early summer home of the former owners of all this section of country is still standing west of the old mill-site. This was a preaching station as early as 1761, when Mr. Constant's predecessor, the Rev. Samuel Sackett, officiated, and continued so to do until his death in 1784. The first building erected for church services was dedicated in 1784, and stood upon land given by Mr. Peter Badeau. It was during Mr. Constant's pastorate that the sacrament of the holy communion was celebrated for the first time at Red Mills, 5 February, 1789, and from the following year the church was a separate organization. Under date of 5 February, 1789, the minutes of the Hanover Church note: "The church met at Mr. Crosby's (Red Mills), where they celebrated the Lord's Supper,—this was the first time it was ever celebrated in that place." And on 12 September, 1790, "the members of the Church at Red Mills becoming sufficiently numerous to make a distinct church, and desirous of incorporating by themselves, the church agreed to their separation, [and] they accordingly embodied by themselves and became a distinct church." To this Mr. Constant adds in his Journal: "Preached at Red Mills, 1 Corinthians v. 7; administered the Sacrament; the members of the church belonging to Red Mills incorporated in a church."

<sup>156</sup> Captain Jacob Romer's, in Greenburgh, near Tarrytown. It was here that the captors of André partook of breakfast on the memorable morning of 23 September, 1780, and it was here they tarried with André in their progress to North Castle, where Lieutenant-Colonel Jameson was stationed. Captain Romer was married, at the Old Dutch Church of Sleepy Hollow, 20 August, 1754, to Frena Haerlager. The record of their marriage states that they were born in Switzerland, and lived in Philipsburg. Their children, baptized at the above church, were: 1. Henry Romer, 17 June, 1755. 2. Elizabeth Romer, 3 May, 1757, and it was possibly she who was married, 6 November, 1799, by Mr. Constant, to Stephen Spock. 3. Frena Romer, 13 September, 1760. 4. Catrina Romer, 30 April, 1763. 5. Jacob Romer, 4 November, 1764. 6. John Romer, born, according to his tomb-stone in the Greenburgh Presbyterian church-yard, 1 November, 1764; died 27 May, 1855; married Leah, daughter of Lieutenant Cornelius Van Texel, or Van Tassel, by his wife Elizabeth Storm; born 20 May, 1775; died 2 January, 1843. They resided on the Saw-Mill River road about a mile south of the present Elmsford Station, and here Jacob Romer, Sr., and wife, and Lieutenant Van Tassel and wife also spent their declining days, on the site of the old Van Tassel house, burned by the Cow Boys in November, 1777; and here, too, were held the town meetings of Greenburgh for upward of fifty years. 7. Maritie Romer, 2 September, 1769. 8. Annatie Romer, 9 May, 1772. 9. Sarah Romer, 16 November, 1773. 10. Femmetje Romer, born 20 February, baptized 17 August, 1777. The three sons of Jacob Romer were all Revolutionary soldiers, and the reminiscences of John Romer, who became a captain in the war of 1812, as given in Mr. Raymond's Souvenir of the Revolutionary Soldiers' Monument dedication at Tarrytown, 1894, are most interesting.

ingburgh, sons William, Joseph, Jacob, and grandsons Thomas and Robert. The son William is believed to be he of the text. Thomas Halstead was a son of Thomas Halstead, of Harrison's Precinct, who, by wife Charity, had Thomas, Jacob, Timothy, Joseph, and daughter Charity, who married Thomas Huggefurd. At the execution of the will of this last named Thomas Halstead, the son Thomas was also of Harrison Precinct, but by deed of 21 March, 1786, in which wife Abigail joined, he sold lands in that place and shortly afterwards removed to Bedford.
Thomas Halstead, Sr., was a son of Jacob Halstead of "New Hempstead," Long Island, whose will of 23 September, 1756 (New York Wills, xx. 161), made bequests to children Thomas, Isaac, Henry, David, Jacob, Heler [Eleanor] Seamen, Rebecca Secord, John, Abraham, Timothy, and Abigail, and to wife Sarah. Son Thomas was made executor with kinsman Jonah Halsted.

<sup>164</sup> Elijah Buckbee, of Bedford, who is elsewhere mentioned. His will of 20 April, 1808, proved 15 March, 1809, states that his wife is buried in the orchard of his dwelling-place, and that he desires to have head- and foot-stones to mark her resting-place and his own. His children were: 1. John Buckbee. 2. Elijah Buckbee, who married, 5 December, 1782, Anne Ketchum (Bedford Presbyterian Church Records). 3. Phebe Buckbee, who married Ebenezer Purdy. 4. Ezekiel Buckbee, who died before his father, leaving Samuel, Ezekiel, John, Eunice (who married Nathaniel Bayley), and Charlotte (who married John Basset). 5. Samuel Buckbee, who married, 29 December, 1769, Sarah Palmer. He also predeceased his father, and left Philip Palmer Buckbee, David Jenner Buckbee, Samuel, Sarah, Mary, and Phebe. All of the above are named in Mr. Buckbee's will, as are grandchildren Stephen Montross, Sarah, wife of Joseph Halstead, Elizabeth Randolph, and Elizabeth and Abigail, children of son Elijah. November 4.—Preached Acts ii. 37; iii. 22; rode home.

November 5.—At home shingling the house.

November 6.—Rode to John Conckling's; preached Matthew xxv. 6; attention to preaching.

November 7.—Rode to Stephen Horton's; married William Beadle and Sarah Horton.

November 8.—Rode to Arche Reed's;<sup>167</sup> preached; married Thomas Baker and E[leanor] S[ecord]; Mr. Thomson here.

<sup>167</sup> Archer Reed was a son of Robert Reed, of Yonkers. The latter's will, proved 18 September, 1770 (Pelletreau's Westchester Wills), provided for wife Jane and gave legacies to children Isaac, Jacob, Archer, John, Phebe, Elijah, Jane, and Robert, to the last named of whom he left his "farm with the consent" of his "Land Lord." According to his tombstone, Archer Reed was born in 1752, but in 1817, when a subscriber to the certificate issued by the citizens of Westchester County, in vindication of the character of Major André's captors, and in refutation of the statement made by Colonel Benjamin Tallmadge, then in Congress, that the so-called patriots had but yielded up their prey in the interest of gain, he gave his age as sixty-four years. He served as a private in the Revolution in Colonel Drake's Regiment of Westchester County militia, and his brothers Jacob and Isaac were also soldiers in the American army. Both he and his wife Hannah were on Mr. Constant's early membership roll, but on the incorporation of the Greenburgh Presbyterian Church, 25 April, 1790, he became one of the trustees and elders of that church. He was the owner of the old house, later known as the Landrine House, to which André was taken after his capture, and on the steps of which André is known to have eaten a bowl of bread and milk before starting again with his captors towards North Castle. He died 29 May, 1833, and lies in the Greenburgh church-yard near the monument erected by the citizens of Westchester County to Isaac Van Wart, the patriot, and his friend, in whose behalf he had testified in 1817. And he was doubtless among those soldiers of the Revolution, citizens and invited guests, who gathered in the little church-yard on that June day in 1829 to commemorate with appropriate service the erection of that stone which still bears silent witness to the fact that republics are not always ungrateful. He married (1) Hannah, daughter of John Archer, of Eastchester, by his wife Mary Leggett, born 6 May, 1750 O.S.; died 10 April, 1812. He married (2) Sarah —, born 9 April, 1771; died 26 August, 1836. Robert Reed, eldest brother of Archer Reed, remained at Yonkers, his farm being on the Saw-Mill River road near Boar Hill. In the winter of 1780, while Colonel Thompson was stationed at Four Corners, in Mt. Pleasant, on the road from Tarrytown to White Plains, Mr. Reed learned from Kingsbridge that the British were equipping an expedition against Colonel Thompson, and were on the eve of starting. Whereupon he immediately rode to the American quarters and gave timely warning of the approaching enemy. The Four Corners is familiar to readers of "The Spy," as the site of the famous hotel of Betty Flannagan, "a house of entertainment for man and beast," and which has the honor of the invention of that beverage "so well known at the present hour to all patriots who make a winter's march between the commercial and political capitals of this great State, and which is distinguished by the name of 'cocktail'."

<sup>168</sup> Abraham Depew, descended from François Depuis, who was living at Boswyck, now absorbed in the city of Brooklyn, in March, 1661, and whose marriage banns, as published in the Reformed Dutch Church of New Amsterdam, 26 August, 1661, declared him to have been from Calais, in France, and his prospective bride from Amsterdam. According to "Bergen's Settlers of Kings County," his bride, Geertje Williams, was the daughter of William Jacobs Van Boerum, who removed from Amsterdam with his family in 1649 and settled in Flatbush, Long Island. William<sup>2</sup> Depuy, probably the eldest son of François and Geertje (Williams) Depuis, was of Menagh, now Verplank's Point, as early as 10 August, 1688, at which time he was married to Lysbeth Weyt (White), of Barbadoes, but then living at Kitchawan, near the mouth of the Croton River. Their son, Francoys<sup>3</sup> de Puw, baptized 20 August, 1700, married, 3 June, 1727, Maritie Van Thesel, or Van Tassel, both entered in the records of the Old Dutch Church of Sleepy Hollow, as having been born in the manor of Cortlandt, and they were both living 3 April, 1752, when they appear as sponsors at the baptism of their grandson Abraham<sup>5</sup>, son of Hendrick<sup>4</sup> Pue, their eldest son, who had been baptized 27 April, 1728. Under date of 17 November, 1782, Henry Depew approved, on behalf of his son, Henry Depew, Jr., of a transfer of bounty lands in Onondaga County, for six years and three months' service in the Revolution, in Van Cortlandt's Regiment. It was probably he who died in May, 1788, on the 19th of which month Mr. Constant preached the funeral sermon from the text, "But the end of all things is at hand; be ye therefore sober and watch with prayer." Abraham Depew, of the text, was born in October, 1762, and died at Peekskill, 26 December, 1838, aged, according to his tombstone in the old Van Cortlandt, or St. Peter's, graveyard of that town, seventy-six years and two months. After his marriage Mr. Depew lived at Peekskill, and at the time of his death was residing on the Post Road and Mill Street.

Mr. Constant gives the name of Abraham Depew's wife as Catharine Cronk in three entries. The family records, however, state that she was the daughter of Captain James Kronkheit. She was born 6 August, 1765; died 17 August, 1848. The children of Abraham and Catharine Depew were:

1. Esther Depew, born 27 June, 1789; baptized at Cortlandtown, 18 September, 1791; married Isaac Denike, Jr.
2. James Kronkright Depew, born 25 August, 1791; died 28 July, 1848; married Mary Denike, born 1793; died 1 May, 1849. Issue: Catharine, married Lewis Jessup; Elizabeth, married Caleb Haight Sutton; Robert A. Depew, married Mary, daughter of William Denike of Peekskill; Mary Eliza, married Henry Dusenbury, and removed to St. Louis; Eveline, married James M. Frear.
3. Nancy Depew, born 12 September, 1794; died unmarried, 6 January, 1868.
4. Elizabeth Depew, born 6 February, 1796; died unmarried, 19 December, 1869.
5. Henry W. Depew, born 18 May, 1798; died 2 September, 1850; married (1) Mary W. Tier, born 3 January, 1808; died 3 March, 1839; married (2) Mrs. Louise Hait, who survived him. His will named daughters Mary and Sarah Louise.
6. Isaac Depew, born 9 August, 1800; died 15 March, 1869; married Martha, daughter of Chauncey R. Mitchell by his wife Ann, daughter of Judge Robert Johnson, of Putnam County, born 2 May, 1810; died 26 March, 1885. Their children were: Chauncey Mitchell Depew, born 23 April, 1834, United States Senator from New York, married (1), 9 November, 1871, Alice Hageman, (2) May Palmer; William Depew; Lawrence Depew; Catharine Depew, married, 2 September, 1868, Albert Strang, M.D., of Yorktown; Anna Depew, married William H. Paulding, born 1 August, 1833, died 4 December, 1897.
7. Charles Augustus G. Depew, born 6 September, 1804; died 4 November, 1877; married (1), at Peekskill, in 1833, Matilda Akin Doty, daughter of John Ferris Doty, descended from Edward Doty of the "Mayflower," born at Albany, New York, 19 March, 1811; died at Peekskill, 26 November, 1869. Mr. Depew married (2), in 1871, Harriet, a sister of his first wife.

<sup>171</sup> Dr. David Stanley, one of the early physicians in the vicinity of Peekskill. Under date of 4 November, 1761, the records of Cortlandt Manor note that Dr. David Stanley enters cattle-marks for Caleb Hall. He married (doubtless a second marriage), 9 April, 1772 (New York Marriages), Catharine, daughter of Michael Mekeel, of Yorktown, by whom he had Nathaniel, who is named in the will of his grandfather Michael Mekeel, dated 8 August, 1807 (Westchester Wills, K, 116), as Dr. Nathaniel Stanley. The latter was married by Mr. Constant, 11 November, 1797, to Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Curry, Jr., of Cortlandt, by his wife Sarah Ferris, by whom he had Joseph C. Stanley; Thomas P. Stanley; William Stanley; Catharine Stanley, who married Stephen Curry; Sarah Ferris Stanley, who married (1) Nathaniel Brown, (2) Benjamin B. Gray. Mrs. Stanley's father, Richard Curry, made bequests in his will of 1 June, 1830 (ibid., R, 1-3), to his daughter and grandsons above and to his great-grandson Richard Henry Stanley. The codicil, which bears date 28 May, 1833, states that his daughter Elizabeth Stanley was deceased.

February 21.—At Amawalk, preached Lamentations iii. 12; married Samuel Baker<sup>173</sup> and Nancy Highat; preached at P. Carman's Romans i. 16; paid to Capt. Strang, 2£.

<sup>172</sup> Richard Curry was doubtless the son of Richard Curry, of Eastchester, to whom was granted 26 February, 1707, the administration of the estate of his father-in-law, Robert Stivers. (Pelletreau's Westchester Wills.) Tradition says that he early settled in Peekskill Hollow, below what has since been known as Adam's Corners. His ear-mark for cattle was, however, recorded in Cortlandt Manor, 5 April, 1763. He died 20 March, 1806, aged ninety-six years and four months. His wife Elizabeth, died 14 February, 1778, aged sixty-six years and two months, and both are buried in St. Peter's church-yard at Peekskill. His children, named in his will of 13 February, 1802 (Westchester Wills, F, 286), were: 1. Joshua Curry, called "the eldest." 2. Stephen Curry, who married, according to Bolton, Frances Moore. He lived in the vicinity of Peekskill. Mr. Constant was a frequent guest at his house, as well as at that of his father's and brother Richard's. Both he and his brother Richard served in the Revolution as privates in Captain Boyd's company, Colonel Drake's regiment of New York militia. 3. Sarah Curry, married, as first wife, John Jones of Peekskill, and died 31 December, 1770, aged thirty-one years and eight months. 4. Rachel Curry, married William Lane, and died before her father. 5. Martha Curry, married — Sherwood. 6. Mary Curry, married John Smith, and predeceased her father. 7. Jemima Curry, married Elijah Horton. 8. Elizabeth Curry, married (1) Joseph Lee, of Yorktown; married (2), by Mr. Constant, 23 October, 1794, to Robert Wright. 9. Phebe Curry, married John Sherwood. 10. Richard Curry, married Sarah, daughter of Jonathan Ferris, of Yorktown. He died in August, 1835, and she in May, 1833. The legatees under his will (ibid., R, 1-13) were wife Sarah, daughter Elizabeth, wife of Dr. Nathaniel Stanley, grandchildren Joseph C. and Thomas P. Stanley, Sarah F. Brown, wife of Nathaniel Brown, and Catharine M. Curry, great-grandson Richard Henry Stanley, and Sarah and Jane Eliza, the daughters of Jonathan Ferris, Esq.

<sup>173</sup> Samuel Baker of Somers executed his will 4 January, 1833, proved 25 February next following (ibid., O, 214-215), under which he made bequests to son Horace, wife Ann, daughters Hester Ann Reynolds, Jane Eliza Forman, Irene Baker, and to grandchildren in the West, Alva and Cadelia Mead, they under age. The duplicate marriage list gives Nancy Highat as Nancy Hyatt.

<sup>177</sup> Dr. Nathaniel Drake was fifth in descent from Samuel Drake, who married, in Fairfield, Connecticut, 13 September, 1650, Ann, daughter of John Barlowe, and who, after representing Fairfield in the General Assembly of Connecticut in 1662, removed to Eastchester, New York, in 1665, and died there in May, 1686, leaving, according to his will, probated 2 June of that year, sons John, Samuel, and Joseph and several daughters. Joseph<sup>2</sup> Drake, probably the youngest son, as he is mentioned last in his father's will, died at Eastchester in May, 1732, leaving, inter alias, Captain John<sup>8</sup> and Benjamin, the former of whom was the grandfather of Dr. Nathaniel Drake of the text, and the latter the great-grandfather of Joseph Rodman Drake, M.D., the poet, born 7 August, 1795; died 21 September, 1820. Nathaniel Drake<sup>5</sup>, the son of Gilbert<sup>4</sup> Drake by his wife Elizabeth Underhill, was born at Yorktown, 27 August, 1763, and died at Peekskill, 1 February, 1851. His wife Jane died 27 March, 1834, aged sixty-two years. Through his mother, Dr. Drake was a grandson of Nathaniel Underhill, of Westchester, and great-great-grandson of the famous Captain John Underhill.

January 21.—Set off for White Plains; staid at Mr. Tompkins's.<sup>186</sup>

<sup>186</sup> Judge Jonathan Griffin Tompkins, who was named at birth Joshua Tompkins, for his father, who removed from Westchester town to Scarsdale, where one of his neighbors, Captain Jonathan Griffin, became interested in the young Joshua, adopted him, and had him baptized Jonathan Griffin Tompkins. Judge Tompkins was born at Scarsdale, 8 June, 1736, and died at White Plains, 22 May, 1823. He made his entrance into public life with Gouverneur Morris, as a member of the Westchester County Committee, called 8 May, 1775, to elect delegates for the Provincial Congress. He was commissioned adjutant of the Second Regiment, Westchester County militia, under Colonel Thomas Thomas, 19 October, 1775, and recommissioned 20 May, 1778. He was a member of the State Convention which adopted the Declaration of Independence, and the first constitution of the State; of the New York Assembly of 1780-82, and of that of 1786-87, also for many years first judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Westchester, and one of the Regents of the University of New York from its foundation in 1784 until his resignation in 1807. He was also one of the trustees of the Presbyterian Church at White Plains at its incorporation, 13 February, 1788. He married, 27 October, 1758, Sarah, daughter of Caleb Hyatt, who died 22 April, 1816, and by whom he had:

1. Caleb Tompkins, born 22 December, 1759; married Deborah Varian. He inherited from his father the "Fox Meadow" estate in Scarsdale. He was commissioned judge of the Westchester County Courts in 1808.
2. Dorothy Tompkins, born 21 January, 1761.
3. Joshua Tompkins, born 4 April, 1762; died young.

<sup>201</sup> Samuel Barrett, the emigrant ancestor of John Barrett of the text, was settled at Vredeland, afterwards Westchester, as early as 16 March, 1656, when he joined Thomas Wheeler and others in submitting to the government of New Netherland, and in asking for certain privileges, which were duly granted. He was living 29 October, 1685, when, with a second wife, Leah, he conveyed certain lands in Yonkers. His first wife was Hannah Betts. Her father, William Betts, came to America in the "Thomas and John," Richard Lombard, master, from Gravesend, 6 January, 1635, aged twenty years. He joined the church at Scituate, Massachusetts, 25 October, 1635, and married there, 23 November, 1638, Alice, a "maiden of the Bay." In the following year he removed with Mr. Lothrop and the church to Barnstable, where he remained some years, and where three of his children were baptized. He later removed to Westchester County, New York, where he was one of the patentees of Westchester, and one of its magistrates as early as 13 September, 1662, and where, on 6 July, 1668, in partnership with his son-in-law, George Tippetts, and Joseph Hadley, he purchased about two thousand acres of land extending across the country from the Hudson to the Bronx, and about five hundred feet from the present city of Yonkers. His will, dated 12 February, 1673, styled him of "Yonkers Plantation," and named wife Alice, sons Samuel, Hopestill, and John, daughter Mehitable Tippetts, and John, son of Samuel Barrett. His children, baptized at Barnstable, were: Hannah, 26 January, 1639/40, who married Samuel Barrett; Samuel, 5 February, 1642/43; and Hopestill, 16 March, 1644/45. His daughter, Mehitable, married George Tippetts. Under date of 23 November, 1688, Samuel Betts and John Betts, "now of Yonkers," made a deed of gift to their "sister's son John Barrett," and by deed dated 28 December, 1691, Leah, widow of Samuel Barrett, conveyed to her "son-in-law, John Barrett," the real and personal estate of her deceased husband. This John<sup>2</sup> Barrett, called of Yonkers, recorded the mark of his cattle 8 March, 1685/86. In 1713 he was collector of Lower Yonkers, and in this year he deeded to Jacobus Van Cortlandt land which his father Samuel Barrett had purchased. He died before 23 October, 1722, on which date Samuel<sup>3</sup> Barrett conveyed to Abraham<sup>3</sup> Barrett "land of which their father John Barrett, deceased, was seized." The grantor, Samuel<sup>3</sup> Barrett, removed to Bedford, in Westchester County, and was the founder of the Barrett family in that place. Abraham<sup>3</sup> Barrett, the second son, "continued the cattle-mark of his father, John Barrett, late of Yonkers, deceased," 30 October, 1722. Under date of 5 January, 1722/23, he and wife Martha conveyed some ten acres of land in Rye bounded westerly by the Kings Road," etc. He made his will, 26 February, 1732, proved 10 September, 1733, and named therein wife Martha; eldest son John, not yet twenty-one years of age; son Abraham, and daughters Mary, Ann, and Martha.

He was captured and confined in the prison-ship "Jersey," but escaped in March, 1778, and became surgeon in the Third Regiment of Westchester County militia, under Colonel Samuel Drake. He quitted the army in 1781 and settled in that part of Hanover, or Yorktown, which on 7 March, 1788, became Stephentown, and in 1808 Somers. He is said to have attained to great respectability in his profession, and to have been distinguished for his energy and benevolence. He was chosen deacon of the Yorktown church 2 October, 1787, and one of the trustees of the first Presbyterian Church of Carmel [Red Mills] at its incorporation, 7 April, 1806. He died 13 June, 1823, and is buried in the old graveyard in Carmel, near what was the Red Mills church. By his will of 3 December, 1821, he left bequests to brothers John and Daniel B.; sister Sarah; daughters Sally, Betsy, Polly, and Nancy; son Elias; grandsons Elias and Eli C. Tompkins, and to wife Rachel. (Westchester Wills, K, 128-133.) He married (1) Sarah, eldest daughter of Dr. James and Hannah Brewer, of Yorktown. According to her tombstone in the church-yard at Crompond, she died 5 February, 1784, aged nineteen years, six months, and six days. He was married (2) by Mr. Constant, 12 July, 1791, to Rachel Stocker, who survived him. He had by his first marriage one son, James, born 1 April, 1782, died 3 April, 1789. His only son Elias Cornelius, born at Somers, 31 July, 1794; died at Hartford, Connecticut, 12 February, 1832; was graduated at Yale in 1813 and sent to the Cherokee and Chickasaw Indians as a missionary. He was ordained as an evangelist 9 April, 1817, and travelled through the South raising funds to found Indian missions. In 1819 he was installed as colleague-pastor of the Tabernacle Church in Salem, Massachusetts, where he remained until 1826, when he resigned to take the office of secretary to the American Education Society, and in 1831 he accepted the secretaryship of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. In 1829 the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred by Dartmouth College upon Mr. Cornelius, and the professorship of Divinity in that institution was also offered him, which latter was declined. A Memoir of Dr. Cornelius was published by Bela B. Edwards (New York, 1833). (For further details, see Bunker's Long Island Genealogies and Sprague's Annals of the American Pulpit.)

<sup>226</sup> Mrs. Hannah Sackett, daughter of Nathaniel Hazard, by his wife Deborah Alsops, and widow of the Rev. Samuel Sackett, Mr. Constant's predecessor at Yorktown. Mr. Sackett had labored as a missionary in Westchester County, before his installation as pastor of the Presbyterian Society of Bedford, in 1743, and it was under his ministry that the church at Hanover, or Crompond, appears to have been organized. From 1747 to 1749 he preached at Crompond one-half the time, and from 1749 to 1753 mainly at Bedford. In 1765 he was again at Hanover, where he remained until the close of his life, except during the occupation by the Continental troops of the church and parsonage in the Revolution. In the churchyard a stone with the following inscription marks his grave: "Rev. Samuel Sackett, / who died June 5th, 1784. / aged 72 years. / He was a judicious, faithful laborious and successful minister of Christ." His children, most of whom were buried near here, were: 1. Joseph Sackett, born 18 April, 1733; died 1 December, 1757, married Elizabeth, daughter of Daniel Strang, born 7 June, 1733; died 30 January, 1773. 2. Nathaniel Sackett, born 10 April, 1737, died 1805; married, 3 January, 1757, Mary, daughter of Anannias Rogers, born 28 August, 1743. He was a Revolutionary patriot and prominent in public affairs of that period. 3. Samuel Sackett, died in the service of his country, 15 April, 1780, in his thirty-fourth year. At the time of his death he was captain in the Fourth Regiment, New York Line. He married Hannah, daughter of Joseph Pierpont, of New Haven. 4. Deborah Sackett, died 14 July, 1769, in her twenty-third year; married Benjamin Peck. 5. Hannah Sackett, married Stephen James, son of Hon. James De Lancey. 6. James Sackett, died, probably unmarried, since his will makes no mention of wife or children, 8 August, 1791, aged thirty-six years. He studied medicine and practised in Ulster County. His will, executed 19 March, 1789, styled him of Frederickstown, Dutchess County.

November 16.—Rainy day, some part of day.

November 17.—Rainy day; Mr. Baldwin here; most out of wood.

November 18.—Mr. Baldwin set off for home; married John Paulding<sup>229</sup> and Esther Ward.

1. Abraham<sup>2</sup> Paulding, baptized 7 April, 1689; died young.

6. Margarita Paulding, baptized 12 October, 1701; died young.
7. Margarita Paulding, baptized 5 September, 1703; married, 13 November, 1726, Jan Uitenbogert.
8. Joseph Paulding.

Joseph<sup>2</sup> Paulding, the youngest son of Joost and Catharina (Dûyts) Paulding, was baptized at the New York Dutch Church, 3 November, 1708. He married Susanna White, and resided in New York, until about 1753, in which year he and his wife were entered as members of the Tarrytown Church. In the census of the northern part of Philipsburg for 1755, he appeared as the owner of two slaves. His homestead was at the present East View, some two miles east of Tarrytown. His will, executed 17 September, 1782, proved 12 February, 1787, named sons William, Joseph, Peter, and John. His children, most of whom were entered on the baptismal records of the New York Dutch Church, were:

1. Joseph<sup>3</sup> Paulding.
2. William Paulding, baptized 7 December, 1735; died at Tarrytown, 10 February, 1825; married, 25 July, 1762, Catharine Ogden, of New Jersey.
Issue: 1. Catharine<sup>4</sup> Paulding, born 1 June, 1764. 2. Henrietta Paulding, born 9 October, 1766; married Adjutant Isaac Requa. 3. Julia Paulding, born at the Paulding homestead, near Tarrytown, 16 October, 1758, and died near Lake Mohegan, 18 February, 1818. His tombstone in the graveyard of St. Peter's Church, Peekskill, erected by the corporation of the city of New York, gives briefly the story of his life, and is printed in full in Bolton's History of Westchester County. For some years after marriage he resided on a farm on the Crompond road, three miles east of Peekskill. He later removed to Lake Mohegan, where he died. He married (1), 21 April, 1781. Sarah Tidd, of Salem, born 5 April, 1767; died 23 October, 1789. He married (2), 18 November, 1790, Esther, daughter of Caleb Ward, born 1 April, 1768; died 6 March, 1804. His third marriage was to Hester, daughter of Isaac Denike, of Peekskill. She died 27 October, 1855, aged seventy-one. She married (2) Elisha Serrine, of Shrub Oak. By his first marriage he had:

1. Sarah Paulding, died young.
  2. Nancy Paulding, born 12 September, 1786; died 30 August, 1863; married, 15 September, 1805, Nathan Dusenbury.
  3. Elizabeth Paulding, twin of above, died 13 September, 1792.
  4. George Washington Paulding, born 1789; died young.
- The children by second marriage were:
5. James Paulding, named in aforesaid will; removed to Louisiana.
  6. Sarah Paulding, married John Hyatt.
  7. Hiram Paulding, naval officer, born in New York City, 11 December, 1797; died at Huntington, Long Island, 20 October, 1878.
  8. George Paulding resided in New York City; married twice.
  9. John Paulding, named in his father's will; removed to Louisiana.
  10. Susanna Paulding, not of age at the execution of her father's will.
  11. Mary Paulding, born 19 April, 1802; died 23 March, 1803.
  12. Caleb Paulding, born 8 February, 1804; died 3 May, 1890; married Carolina A., daughter of John Conklin, of Yorktown.

Children by third marriage:

13. Joseph Paulding, married Martha Elmendorf, of Kingston.
14. Isaac Paulding.
15. Phebe Paulding, born in October, 1808; died 16 June, 1843; married Thomas J. Darling.
16. Mary Paulding, born 31 March, 1812; died 20 March, 1883; married Henry J. Hallock, of Yorktown.
17. Hannah A. Paulding, born in July, 1812; died 27 February, 1850; married Henry W. Ingersoll.

The joint will of Peter<sup>3</sup> Paulding and his brother John Paulding, dated 3 June, 1835, described the testators as of Mt. Pleasant, and gave their estate to Jane, wife of Peter Paulding, and to John Paulding and Susanna E. Conway, the children of Peter Paulding. The will was probated 10 November, 1847, and the citation which was served on the following, as "heirs of and the next of kin to John Paulding, late of Mt. Pleasant, deceased," is interesting as showing the then known descendants of Joseph and Susanna (White) Paulding; William Paulding, Junr.; Henrietta Requa, widow; Henry Ogden Irving; Maria, wife of Frederick Paulding; Catharine and Alexander Paulding, of Greenburgh; James C. Hale; Josephine, the wife of William Woods; Joseph Paulding; Samuel Paulding; William Conway and Charles W. Conway, the latter minors, of Mt. Pleasant; Caleb Paulding, of Peekskill; Lewis G. <sup>230</sup> St. Philip's, then a chapel of ease to St. Peter's, Peekskill, and the only church building between Peekskill and Fishkill, was at what is now Garrison's. After the Revolution the Presbyterian Society endeavored to get possession of St. Peter's Church, and so far succeeded as to elect trustees. The attempt was, however, frustrated, and the two were made an episcopal corporation 26 April, 1791, under the title of St. Peter's Church, Peekskill, and St. Philip's Chapel in the Highlands. Some years later Mr. Constant applied for permission to preach in St. Peter's, Peekskill, but leave was not granted.

<sup>268b</sup> In Delaware County and called after Stamford in Connecticut, from which town, and Fairfield, many of the first settlers came. It later became Stamford. The first male child born in the town was John Burr Gould, 16 October, 1792, son of Abraham Gould, grandfather of the New York millionaire, Jay Gould, whose history of his native county was written before his majority was reached, and was published at Roxbury, originally Stamford, Delaware County, 1856.

<sup>269</sup> Also in Delaware County, and named for John Harper, an early proprietor and settler. About 1754 John Harper, his sons William, John, Jr., James, Joseph, and Alexander, and seventeen others secured a patent of twenty-two thousand acres in what was then Tryon County, and which included the present town of Harpersfield. John Harper, Sr., is said to have married Abigail Montgomery, of Hopkinton. His will, proved 19 December, 1785, however, named wife Rebecca, and children William, John, Alexander, Joseph, Abigail, Mary, Margaret, and Miriam. His eldest son, William, was a member of the Committee of Safety for New York, and of the Provincial Congress; his son John, above, was made colonel of the Fifth Tryon County Regiment before 1777, and the remaining sons served with distinction as officers in the Revolution, as did also William McFarland, who married Abigail Harper, and John Moore, who married Mary Harper. <sup>272</sup> Robert Weeks studied medicine with Dr. Elias Cornelius, of Stepentown, now Somers, and was graduated at the Medical Department of Columbia College in 1792. After his marriage he settled at Carmel, where he practised his profession for twenty-two years, and where he died 14 May, 1816, aged forty-four years. He was buried in the old Carmel graveyard. His will of 16 February, 1816, with codicil of 6 May following, provided for the support of his mother, Jemima Holmes, wife Naomi, and children Susan, Emily, James, Edward, and Chauncey. His first wife, Hannah Crosby, above, died 18 July, 1795, aged twenty-nine years, and was buried with her family near the Presbyterian Church at Red Mills. His youngest son, Chauncey R. Weeks, of Carmel, born 12 March, 1812, was a member of the State Legislature in 1847 and 1856. He married, 20 December, 1837, Ada, daughter of James Raymond, by his wife Julia Smith, born 11 December, 1819, died 10 May, 1895.

James, above, served as private in the Continental troops under Captain Daniel Williams. According to James Mandeville's account, taken 23 September, 1845, of the surprise at Orser's, in Sing-Sing, by a force of British cavalry, he was sixteen years old at the time of the skirmish, 24 January, 1783, and wore the uniform of his brother, who was a captain of a Westchester troop of horse and then ill. Both John and James Mandeville were innkeepers at Peekskill. The inn of John Mandeville stood on the lot now occupied by the hardware store of S. C. Wilson, Main Street.

<sup>277</sup> The will of James Travis, of the Manor of Cortlandt, proved 6 March, 1784, named wife Phebe and children James, Susanna, Gilbert, Jesse, Phebe, and John. The son Gilbert was he of the text. He married (1), 1 November, 1791, Rachel, daughter of Jacob Lent. She died 21 May, 1792, and was buried in the Presbyterian church-yard at Crompond. He married (2), as above, her sister Sarah, who predeceased him. He was called Gilbert Travis, Jr., by Mr. Constant, doubtless to distinguish him from Gilbert, the son of David Travis (see note 263). He died without issue in November, 1848. His will, proved 27 November of that year, made provision for his brother Jesse, sister Phebe, the children of his brother John, deceased,—viz., Joseph and Elias W. Travis, Pamela Hallock, Catherine Clement, Susanna Cunsicker, Betsey Chew Horton,—and also to nephew Gilbert T. Sutton, niece Phebe Cuninghame, great-niece Augusta Travis, and great-nephew William Travis. His brother Jesse Travis married, 16 January, 1791, Abigail Smith.

<sup>297</sup> The Rev. John Townley, one of Mr. Constant's associates in the Westchester Presbytery, was, like Mr. Constant, Congregational in feeling. He served the Presbyterian Church of Greenburg, now Elmsford, which was first organized under his ministry in 1790, until about 1802. In 1804 he organized the first Presbyterian Church of Newport, Rhode Island, which erected a house of worship on Elizabeth Street and occupied it until 1809, when the Society became embarrassed and the church building sold. Mr. Townley returned to Westchester County and resided at Yorktown, ministering to the churches at Peekskill and Greenburg. He died 1 March, 1812, aged seventy-two years and two days, and is buried in the graveyard of the church he founded. His will, bearing date 14 January, 1811, describes him as "a minister of the gospel," gives to wife Rachel "the farm on west side of Crompond Street in Yorktown," and makes provision for son John T. W. Townley, daughters Jane D. and Ann I., the latter not eighteen, and granddaughter Mary Summers Nicoll. He married (1) Lydia —, who died 11 November, 1795, in her fiftieth year, and was buried, as above, at Greenburg. He was married (2), by Mr. Constant, to Rachel Williams, 7 May, 1797. She died 2 August, 1840, aged seventy-six years; and their daughter Janet D. Townley died 15 February, 1831, aged twenty-five years; and both were buried in the church-yard at Greenburg.

<sup>298</sup> According to George W. Tompkins, Esqr., of Newark, New Jersey, who has devoted much time to the study of the Tompkins, or Tomkins, family, Phebe Griffin married, as above, Gilbert Tompkins, son of John Tompkins, by his wife Sarah Barker, born near Croton Dam, about 1766, and died in Yorktown in 1838. Gilbert Tompkins died childless, and a contest over his will followed, during which Mrs. Sarah Montross testified that Gilbert's wife was her sister. Joseph Montross married, 19 February, 1787, Sarah Griffin. Her will of 26 July, 1838, divided her estate between Jacob Montross's children, David Montross's children, Pamela Flewellen and her heirs, Samuel Tompkins and his heirs, and Catharine, wife of Samuel Tompkins.

<sup>303</sup> Jane, the widow of John Conklin, who was a tenant on the Philipse Patent, 13 October, 1768, when Beverly Robinson, Esqr., in a letter to Margaret Philipse, mentioned him among other settlers on the Patent. The will of John Conklin, dated 29 June, 1787, described him as of Crompond, and named sons Jeremiah, John, who was to have lands in Westchester County, Drake, and Timothy, to the latter of whom he bequeathed lands in Dutchess County at his majority. His daughters, Jane and Abigail, wife Jane, and grandchildren John, son of Jeremiah Conklin, and John, son of Annanias Jones, were also provided for. Mr. Conklin was buried 3 March, 1790, when Mr. Constant preached the funeral sermon. (See note 174.) His widow, Jane, above, executed her will 30 December, 1802, proved 17 October, 1811. Her legatees were the sons before given, daughters Abigail Forman, Phebe Jones, and Jane Lee, and grandchildren Jane, daughter of Jeremiah Conklin, Jane Knapp, Jane, and Abigail, daughters of Drake Conklin, Sarah, daughter of John Conklin, Hannah, daughter of Timothy Conklin and Eliza Lee. Mrs. Conklin was a member of Mr. Constant's church, as were several of her children. Of these latter, Drake Conklin married, 13 December, 1792, Esther Knapp, who died 3 August, 1838, aged sixty-nine years, three months, and twenty-seven days. He died 10 February, 1839, aged sixty-nine years, eight months, and nineteen days. John Conklin married, 11 January, 1794, Anna Hadden. Timothy Conklin, born 24 September, 1775; died 15 January, 1814; married, 9 December, 1797, Hannah, daughter of Deacon Abijah Lee by his wife Dorcas Woolsey, born 12 February, 1780; died 28 November, 1798. Timothy Conklin was a quartermaster in the war of 1812, and died at Clinton, New York, in the discharge of his official duties. Jane Conklin married, 31 December, 1797, Joseph Lee, who died 12 April, 1866, aged ninety-one years, three months, and twenty-four days. She died 28 March, 1829, aged forty-four years.

<sup>313</sup> The Knapps of Yorktown descend from Nicholas Knapp, of Watertown, who came to Massachusetts in 1630, probably with Winthrop and Saltonstall, and who, by wife Elinor, had Jonathan, who died young, Timothy, Joshua, Caleb, Sarah, Ruth, Moses, and Lydia. He removed to Stamford, Connecticut, about 1646, where his wife died 16 August, 1658, and he married (2), 9 March, 1658/9, Unity, widow of Peter Brown, and also widow of Clement Buxton. He died in April, 1670. Moses<sup>2</sup> Knapp, the youngest son, was admitted freeman of Connecticut in May, 1670. He, however, probably lived at Stamford when he married, in 1669, Abigail, daughter of Richard Wescoat. His grandson Moses<sup>4</sup>, born at Stamford, 4 October, 1710, accompanied his father, Moses<sup>3</sup>, to New York, where the father was one of the patentees of White Plains, 13 March, 1721. <sup>341</sup>Dr. Peter Huggerford, probably the first regular physician in the north-western portion of Westchester County. He was a loyalist, and a portion of his confiscated estate was conferred upon Major John Paulding. His will, bearing date 28 July, 1796, was proved 5 October, 1799. It described him as of White Plains, and made bequests to daughters Frances, wife of Benjamin Field, Martha Hardy, Jane Dickinson, and Esther; to sons Tertullus and Joseph, son-in-law John Titus, and grandson John Huggerford. The daughter Martha had married Elias Hardy, 27 October, 1781. John Huggerford, a surgeon and also a loyalist, went from New York to Shelburne, Nova Scotia, at the peace, where the Crown granted him land. He was twenty-four years of age and unmarried. His losses in consequence of his fidelity to the mother country were £1000. Thomas Huggerford married Charity, the daughter of Thomas Halstead, of Harrison Precinct, who is named in her father's will of 16 April, 1783. He, too, was a loyalist, and received one hundred acres of land in Digby township, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia. These latter were probably sons of Dr. Huggerford, and some further account of them may be found in "Sabine's Loyalists."

— Ingersoll and —.....	21	September

<sup>11</sup> The entry of this marriage is found only in the Journal list, and is undated. It, however, probably took place on 13 April, as Mr Constant was at Mr Earle's on that day, and noted in his Journal of that date that he "married a couple this day."

<sup>14</sup> James and Esther Wright were children of Captain Daniel Wright, of the Manor of Cortlandt, by his wife Rachel, daughter of Daniel and Esther (Lane) Horton. His will of 8 February, 1777, proved 3 March, 1781, named wife Rachel and children Daniel, who was dead at the probate of the will, Macajah, James, Sarah, Hannah, Esther, Fanny, Milicent, Rachel, and Phebe. Captain Wright's lands are mentioned as bounding those of Stephen Hopkins, of Crum Elbow, 29 June, 1749 (Dutchess County Deeds, iv. 332), and he and his brother Jacob Wright purchased lands in Cortlandt Manor 22 May, 1762. Daniel, the eldest son of Captain Daniel Wright, left but one child, Gloriana, who died unmarried. Macajah, the second son, was of Stephentown, where he made his will 9 October, 1798, and gave his estate to wife Ruth for the benefit of his children. Milicent married, 30 April, 1788, David Beadle. Phebe married, 17 January, 1792, Gilbert Haviland.

<sup>17</sup> The list of marriage fees gives John Highby and Phebe Hadden. And, as confirmatory of this, Abigail Lane, widow, of Yorktown, by will of 19 October, 1837, makes bequest to Phebe, wife of John Highby, and to the daughters of Moses Hadden, deceased.

Record of Church Meetings, etc., held at Hanover, afterwards called Yorktown

JANUARY 5, 1786.—The Church and Elders met at Hanover; after prayer, the following question was discussed.

Ought a person to make a particular confession for any one sin more than another which was committed before his public profession of religion?

Answered in the negative, extraordinary cases excepted. The church agreed to commune in the Lord's Supper four times a year. Concluded with prayer.

March 8, 1786.—The Church met. Agreed to take up a number of questions relative to the Church of Christ, and inquire after light respecting them.

Question 1st: Why ought Christian Brethren to imbody into a visible church? The reasons given.

Question 2d: What is a Christian Church?

Answer: A number of visible Christians united together in the profession of the faith of the gospel and covenanted to walk in the ordinances of Christ.

Question 3d: What are the qualifications of Church Members?

Answer: A visible profession of saving faith in Christ, and a life of conformity to the gospel. Concluded with prayer.

March 24.—Church met, etc.

Question 4th: Is every Body of Christians that is incorporated, a distinct Church according to the word of God?

Answer: Every Church of Christ that is properly furnished with officers is complete, and may properly attend to all cases for their own edification and purity. Yet the Church ought to call in advice when needed.

Question 5th: What officers has Christ appointed in his Church?

Answer: Elders and Deacons. Concluded with prayer.

March 31.—Church met, etc.

Question 6th: What are the duties incumbent on Church members in relation to each other?

Answer: To pray for each other, and to exhort and reprove according to the Laws of Christ.

Question 7th: How ought they to treat an open offending Brother?

Answer: They ought to take the rules of Christ to bring to repentance,—Matthew xviii.

Question 8th: May the Church put off and suspend cases of discipline for scandalous conduct before the offender is reclaimed or excommunicated?

Record of Church Meetings

---

Answer: Due moderation and Christian forbearance must be observed, but the subject must not be neglected.

Question 9th: How ought the Church to treat an Excommunicated Brother?

Answer: They ought to universally bear testimony against his conduct, and to withdraw the usual testimonies of friendship.

Question 10th: Is there any such thing as suspension, short of excommunication?

Answered in the negative.

Question 11th: By whom is sentence of excommunication to be declared and in what manner?

Answer: By the Pastor or Elder, with the concurring voice of the whole Church. Concluded with prayer.

April 28.—Church met, etc.

Question 12th: In what cases ought a church to call a council?

Answer: In all cases of difficulty which cannot be settled without.

Question 13th: Is the Church bound to receive the advice of a Council in all cases as decisive?

Answer: The Church ought not to take the council for her rule, but ought to examine the ground of its opinions and advice, with due respect to its judgment.

Question 14th: Is it right for one Brother to sue another before the Civil Magistrate?

Answer: It is not right to sue a Brother in ordinary cases. Concluded with prayer.

May 26.—The Church met for prayer and conversation, etc. Nothing special for matter of record. The Church uniformly opened and concluded with prayer.

September 3.—Church met for divine worship and preparation for Sacrament, etc.

A charge was laid before the Church against John Horton for intemperance, the charge being supported, and he refusing to give evidence of repentance, the Church proceeded to excommunicate him from their Communion; However he offered a confession to the Church, which was not satisfactory, but the Church agreed to read his confession in public and consider him as a candidate, and wait further evidence of his repentance and reformation.

July 6.—The Church met, etc., no special business done at this meeting.

Appendix

---

October 26.—The Church met, etc.

February 16, 1794.—Church meeting and sacrament attended as usual.

March 17.—The Church met at John Carman's; entered on the subject of our duty to our children as baptized members of the Church.

April 19.—The Church met, etc. Resumed the subject of baptized children: resolved that we feel that there is a care due to them as such.

July 12.—The Church met, etc., spent the time in worship and conversation.

October 24.—The Church met, etc., no special business done at this meeting. Some conversation respecting Jane Gillet, who was about to be married to a man, she having an husband.

January 17, 1795.—The Church met, etc. A sermon preached and other exercises as usual.

April 18.—The Church met, etc. A charge was laid before the Church against Jane Gillet, for the sin of adultery, and the charge supported and she refusing to give suitable evidence of repentance, the Church proceeded to excommunicate her from their Communion. A charge was laid before the Church against Jesse Owens, for intemperance, the case deferred to the next meeting of the Church and some means prescribed to reclaim him, more than had been used.

July 11.—The Church met, etc. The Church resumed the subject respecting Jesse Owens, and finding all means proved ineffectual to reclaim him, and his crime as a drunkard proved to their satisfaction, proceeded to excommunicate him from their fellowship.

December 4.—The Church met at Deacon Knap's. The question discussed was: Is it the duty of a Church to excommunicate baptized members who have not made a visible profession of religion and joined the Church by their own act, if they become scandalous by open acts of sin? Left for further consideration.

January 30, 1796.—The Church met, etc. A sermon preached, and other religious exercises occupied the time.

April 23.—The Church met, etc. Nothing special at this meeting as matter of record.

July 16.—The Church met, etc.

November 18.—The Church met, etc. The Church discoursed the following Question: Ought a woman to obey her husband's unlawful commands? The subject left for further consideration. Attended to the confession of Jemima Carman, approved the same, and agreed that it be public the next Lord's Day.

February 11, 1797.—The Church met, etc. Discoursed on the subject of Communion. The Church took into consideration the low state of Psalmody in the Church; and proposed as a means of reviving the same, that David Hyatt open a school and teach the youth and others the practice of singing by rule, and that all the Church members who can sing, to sing in public. Agreed that the Deacon purchase a suitable book to contain the record of the Church.

May 5.—The Church met, etc. Discoursed on the importance of Christian watchfulness.

---

August 6.—The Church met, etc. The Church took into consideration the expediency of appointing another Deacon in this Church. Voted. It is expedient.

October 21.—A rainy day, but few of the Church met.

February 3, 1798.—The Church met, etc. No special business; the time spent in prayer and religious exercises.

April 28.—The Church met, etc. Took into consideration the importance of calling delinquent members who live at a distance and absent themselves from the worship of God in this Church, and from the communion, to give the reasons for their neglect.

June 16.—The Church met, etc. Nothing at this meeting as matter of record.

October 19.—But few of the Church present.

October 20.—The Church met at Peekskill. Examined Betsy Ferris and voted her reception into the Church.

January 26, 1799.—The Church met, etc. The Church took into consideration, whether it is consistent to commune with Methodists who are apparently pious, if they should desire occasional communion. Voted. After proper manifestation of their piety to the Church, it would be consistent.

April 20.—The Church met, etc. Discoursed on the nature and method of fasting under the gospel. Agreed to spend Thursday next as a day of fasting and prayer.

May 18.—The Church met by special notice at Deacon Lent's. Took into consideration a charge against Charles Duzenbury, laid before them by Deacon John Lent, for wicked and scandalous conduct, which was proved against him before the Church, and he refusing to confess his faults and reform, the Church declared by vote that he should no longer be a member in their communion.

August 3.—The Church met, etc. Nothing at this meeting as matter of record.

October 26.—The Church met, etc. No special business done.

April 19, 1800.—The Church met, etc.

July 11.—The Church met at Jonathan Owens's. Mrs. Betsy Hubbel offered herself for examination as candidate for Church fellowship, approved; but her circumstances forbid her attending immediately to join in covenant with Church.

July 26.—The Church met, etc. Conversed on the subject of infant baptism.

January 31, 1801.—The Church met, etc.

August 8.—The Church met, etc. A sermon was preached, etc. The Church conversed on the question: Ought a Church to support a member of another Church, who may be in the vicinity and become needy? Answered in the negative. Agreed to make a collection for the relief of Eleanor Marvin, who resides in this neighborhood and is a member of the Church in Bloominggrove.

October 10.—The Church met, etc. No special business done at this meeting.

January 23, 1802.—The Church met, etc. Nathaniel Wright offered himself for examination for Church fellowship. He was approved by the Church.

of Robert Long, Sylva Long, Phebe Thorn, for fellowship in this Church. They were all approved.

March 27.—The Church met, etc. A sermon was preached, etc. After Divine Service examined Henry Miller, Hannah Miller, Milicent Carl, Rosetta Whitney, Kate Johnson, Thomas Barton, Hannah Bishop, who were approved.

June 9.—The Church met, etc. The Church examined Seth Whitney, Jemima Ferris, Chloe Hyatt, Elizabeth Hart, Daniel Teller, who were approved.

July 11.—The Church met, etc. The Church examined Alvan Purdy, Lydia Purdy, Milicent Whitney, David Hyatt, Mary Hyatt, Hannah Perry, Lydia Pullen, Mical Mix, Mary Mix, who were approved.

October 23.—The Church met, etc. The Church examined George Lane, Daniel Horton, Nancy Horton, Phebe Lee, who were approved.

January 8, 1803.—The Church met, etc. The Church proceeded to the examination of Benjamin Wright, Junr., Deborah Beadle, Sarah Whitney, who were approved.

April 2.—The Church met, etc. Proceeded to the examination of Hester Denne, who was approved.

July 23.—The Church met, etc. The Church took into consideration the case of Massy Purdy, a sister in this Church, who needs some assistance for her support. Agreed to take a collection in the Church for her present relief which was accordingly done.

October 8.—The Church met, etc. The Church proceeded to inquire into the state of the Church, the application of the money, collected from time to time, and various other subjects.

January 7, 1804.—The Church met, etc. The Deacons made report to the Church that there was a necessity for further provision for Massy Purdy. The Church made inquiry whether she was a person whose situation, and circumstances rendered her one for whose support the Church ought to provide; according to the Apostolic rule, Timothy v. 16, and not having before them all the means of information necessary to determine the question, appointed Elijah Lee, Peter Lane, Obediah Purdy, as a Committee to inquire into the subject, and gain all necessary information, and make report at the next meeting.

January 13.—The Church met, etc., and took into consideration the subject respecting Massy Purdy. The Committee were not prepared to make report, etc.

January 15.—The Church met, etc. The Committee reported that they had inquired into the subject respecting the interest of Massy Purdy. Your Committee on inquiring found that Massy had received in Continental money to the value of Fifty Four dollars and fifty cents toward Bond, then in her hands, amounting to Three Hundred Pounds; and that she had given up the Bond, and receipted the money, and that this was done in the year 1779. After conversing on the subject, the Church agreed to pay Twelve Pounds per year toward the support of Massy Purdy, on condition that Alvan Purdy (who was the man that took up the before mentioned Bond.) take the said Massy, and provide for her, in all respects as her case may require; to which he agreed, accordingly she was removed to his house.

April 21.—The Church met, etc. Took into consideration the subject of supporting the poor of the Church, and other things relating to the welfare of the Church.

July 7.—The Church met, etc. No business done at this meeting as matter of record.

October and January sessions nothing special.

March 30, 1805.—The Church met, etc. Attended Divine service, after which the Church agreed to continue their assistance for the support of Massy Purdy as long as she needs.

The following question referred to the Church by the parties concerned: Ought Obediah Purdy to pay the whole of the stipulated sum for his pew, except what Alvan Purdy has paid? The Church agreed that he ought to pay the sum referred to in the question.

June 1.—The Church met at Peekskill. The Church proceeded to examine Jemima Brown, and James Brown, respecting their experimental knowledge in religion. The former was approved, the latter stands as a candidate.

October 12.—The Church met, etc. Ambrose Porter and his wife offered themselves for Church fellowship, and were examined and approved.

January 18, 1806.—The Church met, etc. A complaint being lodged in the hands of the Pastor against Elijah Lee for slandering the character of the Rev. Silas Constant. He agreed to make public confession of his fault; the Church suspended the hearing of the case.

February 5.—The Church met, etc. A charge was laid before the Church against Elijah Lee for slandering the character of a brother. The said Lee appeared but made no satisfactory answer to the charge. The Church hearing the witnesses, and duly considering the case, voted unanimously that he was guilty of slander. Voted that Mr. Constant be desired to admonish him by letter, in the name of the Church, to repent of his sin, and make confession; and likewise for his contemptuous treatment of the Church.

February 15.—The Church met, etc. Anne Conklin offered herself for Church membership, was examined and approved. The Church conversed on the subject of Elijah Lee's confession, which he refused to make.

February 16.—Elijah Lee was publicly excommunicated from the Church.

April 19.—The Church met at Peekskill. Nancy Frost offered herself for Church membership. She was examined and approved. The Church took into consideration the subject of appointing Elders, or some person to assist in worship occasionally, and in matters of discipline, and visitation, etc.

May 2.—The Church met, etc. Phany Mical (formerly Phany Duzenbury), having been absent for a number of years, appeared before the Church and requested the mind of the Church respecting her standing in the Church; and that a committee might be appointed to inquire considering some things alleged against her moral character. The Church appointed Jeremiah Conkling and Henry Miller to attend with Mr. Constant, the Pastor, to make due inquiry and report at our next meeting. Whereas Alvan Purdy, Daniel Horton, Phebe Horton, Phebe Knapp, Phanna Lee, Mary Lee, Margaret Strang, Elizabeth Pullen, Phebe Requa have of late withdrawn themselves from the worship of God with this Church, and neglected the Sacramental Communion with their brethern. The Church, imprest with a sense of its obligations to them, to watch over them in the Lord, and not to suffer sin upon them, appointed Deacon Seth Whitney, Capt. Nathaniel Wright, to visit some of them with the Pastor, and Dr. Ebenezer White, Deacon Lane and Capt. Obediah Purdy, to visit others, and to call them back by friendly admonition and exhortation and make report at our next meeting.

The Church proceeded to appoint two additional Elders, viz: David Hyatt and Henry Miller, to assist in counselling and advising in case of discipline, and to lead in Divine Worship in the absence of the Pastor on Lord's Days, and other occasions.

July 7, 1806.—The Church met, etc. Proceeded to inquire into the state of the Church, and finding difficulties so far removed that have subsisted among us of late, that they agreed to have a Sacramental Communion. The Church took into consideration some things respecting their standing and connections, etc. Agreed unanimously that this Church consider themselves as originally standing in connection with the Church of Scotland, and belonging to the late Dutchess Presbytery.

Voted, that this Church do, and will maintain the state and continue in the same connection with the Church of Scotland, as far as political and circumstances render convenient.

Voted that this Church in style, doctrine and worship are essentially the same as they always were from their first establishment as a Church.

July 10.—The Church met, etc. The Committees reported that the delinquent members refused to return to the Church, assigning as a reason for withdrawalment that the Church was Congregational, and had altered the constitution of the Church.

August 17.—The Church met, etc. Took into consideration the state of the Church and congregation, and the state of those who have absented from us; and desirous of doing every thing that shall tend to remove their disaffection. Agreed to call an Ecclesiastical council to come and sit in this place. Voted, that the following brethern be invited, viz: Messrs. Amzi Lewis, Richard Andrews, Stephen Dodd, Jehu Miner, Mr. Grant, Mr. Burrit, John Cornwell, Sylvanus Haight, with delegates from their respective Churches, where they reside.

Voted: The time for the council to meet shall be the third day of September next, and that the place of meeting shall be at the house of the Rev. Mr. Constant.

Voted that Deacon Lane, Deacon Whitney, and Deacon Lent, David Hyatt, Henry Miller, Ebenezer White, with Rev. Mr. Constant, be a committee to prepare the statement of the things to be laid before the council, and to present the same to them when convened.

September 3.—The Council met and adjourned to the 17th, to meet in this place.

Record of Church Meetings

September 17.—The Council met in this place, at the house of Rev. Silas Constant, and heard the subjects laid before them, and gave them advice as on file.

September 24.—The Church met, etc. Proceeded to examine the result of the Council who sat in this place on the 17th instant, by adjournment, and agreed to adopt their counsel and advice as judicious, and accordingly consulted on measures to carry the same into execution.

September 29.—The Church met, etc. Consulted on measures to bring certain disorderly members back from their schismatic and disorderly courses. Adjourned to October 3rd.

October 3.—The Church met. After prayer, heard a charge laid down before the Church by Amos Whitney, against Alvan Purdy and Nancy Horton for withdrawing from the Church and the worship of God, with their brethern. The latter charge was laid before the Church by Nathaniel Wright. The Church proceeded to the consideration of the case of Alvan Purdy, and after duly considering the charge and the contempt he has cast on the worship of God, and his ordinances; and his contumacious conduct towards the Church in not attending to their repeated invitations, and citations, to the Church meetings, in the time of his trial. They voted unanimously that he shall no longer be considered as a Brother in this Church till he return by repentance, which may God of His mercy grant. The Church proceeded to consider the charges against Nancy Horton, and finding her guilty of the things laid down in the charge, voted, that she shall no longer be considered as a sister with the fellowship of this Church, till she return by repentance. Voted, that the Pastor be requested to write an admonition to those members; and if they return not by repentance and confession, their excommunication be publicly declared on the twelfth of the present month, being Lord's Day. Concluded with prayer.

October 11, 1806.—The Church met; after prayer, took into consideration a charge laid before them by Nathaniel Wright against Daniel Horton, Jr., for withdrawing himself from the worship and ordinances of God in this place, in contempt of the Church with which he stands in covenant; and after duly considering the case, voted, that this Church no longer consider him as a brother in this Church, till he return by repentance, which may God of His infinite mercy grant.

The Church voted to reconsider the case of Nancy Horton, mentioned in the minutes of the last session, and after the most candid review of the subject, see no cause to revoke what they did at the last meeting.

Whereas the Rev. Ebenezer Grant of Bedford came into this place on the 6th instant, and without ever notifying the Church at large, even the Pastor, proceeded to appoint two ruling Elders over this Church. Resolved, 1st: That this conduct is unjustifiable by any known gospel rule, or precedent. 2nd: That this Church view it as a grand imposition, on the Church and Pastor. 3rd: That it tend to schism and disorder. Concluded with prayer.

October 16.—The Church and congregation met, and spent the day in fasting and prayer. After the public worship the Church spent some time conversing on the state of the Church and congregation. Voted to desire Mr. Lewis White to act as chorister in leading the singing, in the public worship, in this place.

October 24.—The Church met; after prayer the Church took into consideration the case of Phaney Duzenbury, against whom some reports were circulated against her moral character. She appearing with suitable confessions and marks of repentance, was forgiven by the Church. Voted that her confession be published the next Lord's Day.

Dr. Ebenezer White laid down a charge against Elizabeth Pullen for withdrawing herself from worship and ordinances of God, in open violation of her covenant with God and this Church. After due investigation, the Church voted unanimously that she shall not be considered as a sister in this Church, till she return by repentance, which may God grant. Concluded with prayer.

November 27.—The Church met; after prayer, a charge was laid before the Church against Josiah Ingersoll, for withdrawing himself from the worship and ordinances of God in a contemptuous manner. After attending to the charge, and duly considering the subject; voted, that he shall not be considered as a member in this Church, till he return by repentance, which may God of his mercy grant. Likewise a charge was laid before the Church against Margaret Strang for contemptuously withdrawing herself from the worship and ordinances of God. The Church after hearing the case, voted, to cut her off from the fellowship of the Church, till she return by repentance, which may God of His infinite goodness grant. Concluded with prayer.

April 25, 1807.—The Church met and spent the time in prayer and conversation. No special business. Concluded with prayer. The Church made choice of Mr. Lewis White to act as chorister in this Church.

N. B.—In this revision of the Record of the Church, some things are omitted as of little or no importance to be transcribed; so from April 25th, 1807, to June, 1809, nothing is recorded but the time of meeting and devotional exercises, etc.; those meetings are therefore omitted in this book.

June 17, 1809.—The Church from this time on, continued their usual meetings.

December 11, 1812.—The Church met; after prayer, took into consideration the state of several delinquent members, who live at a distance from the ordinary place of public worship, and but seldom attend. Appointed members to visit and admonish them, etc. The Pastor then presented the doings of a convention, appointed by Westchester Presbytery, which exhibition showeth that the Churches in our connection are in general without settled Pastors, and prescribes some measures to remedy the evil, viz: the raising of money, and the joining of two or more churches in the settlement of a minister. After some consideration on the subject of the state of the Church, concluded with prayer.

January 5, 1813.—The Church met at Peekskill; after prayer took into consideration a charge against David Hyatt, Esq., for intemperance, presented by Deacon John Lent, to which he, David Hyatt, pleaded not guilty. The Church after hearing the evidence, voted unanimously that the charge was supported, and accordingly

Parker, Amy Whitney, Rachael Odell, Mary Ann Marshall, Amy Peterson, Sarah Seaman, Emma Mead, James Lounsbury, Olivia Parker, Permilia Banker, Barnardus Montross, Philina White, Eliza Whitney, Sarah Montross, concerning their qualifications for church relation, and Christian Communion, who were all received by this Church as fit subjects, and directed to appear to-morrow for the public profession of their faith and union with the Church.

January 23.—Administered the Lord's Supper, previous to which the above candidates were received into the Church.

This closes Mr. Constant's record; another hand entered the following:

The Rev. Silas Constant, Pastor of this Church departed this life March 22nd, 1825, in the 76 year of his age, having labored in this Vineyard 39 years 5 months. It may be said of him, that he was faithful to the end in the discharge of his Pastoral charge, and as a preacher, able, as a friend highly valuable. His last hours exhibited great patience, and submission to the will of His Divine Master who blessed him in life, and in death, he was not forsaken.

Notes on the Nelson Family

JOHN NELSON, the ancestor of the Nelsons of Westchester, Dutchess, and Putnam Counties, New York, was plaintiff in a suit against Thomas Sprey, of New Amsterdam, 17 January, 1670. (Court Minutes of New Amsterdam, vi. 278.) For a time, at least, he resided at Flatbush, but had removed to Mamaroneck, Westchester County, before 27 July, 1683, on which date he purchased lands from John Richbell and Ann his wife (Westchester Deeds, A, 20), and he was an administrator, with James Mott and Ann Richbell, of the estate of John Richbell, the first patentee of what later became the manor of Scarsdale. John Nelson's home-lot adjoined the land of Robert Penoyer, and is so described in a deed from himself and wife Hendrica to William Pierce, 2 April, 1694. (Ibid., B, 177, 178.) On 28 January, 1707, he conveyed to his "eldest son," Polycarpus, a house, lot of land, and orchard, in Mamaroneck, in consideration of which the son was to pay his "nephew," Richard Rogers, £10. (Ibid., D, 179, 180.) He served on the grand jury of Westchester County, 1 August, 1688; as overseer of Mamaroneck in 1697, and as constable in 1699, and his name frequently appears in the records as a member of various town committees, and always with the prefix of "Mr.," a designation of some distinction at that period. He died after 28 March, 1713, at which time he was a witness to a deed of John Pell, Sr., brother of Thomas Pell, second lord of the manor of Pelham. (Ibid., E, 50.) A low hill in the town of his adoption perpetuates his name. It was made historically memorable during the Revolution for the surprise and defeat, by Colonel Smallwood, of a large body of the British stationed thereon under Major Rogers.

John Nelson married, at Flatbush, Long Island, Hendrica Vander Vliet (Bergen's "Kings County Settlers," 214, 325), who was living 2 April, 1694 (Westchester County Deeds, B, 177, 178), after which her name disappears from the records. Her father, Dirck Jansen Vander Vliet, a soldier, emigrated from Rylevelt, Holland, to New Amsterdam, in the "Spotted Cow," 15 April, 1660 ("Documentary History of New York," iii. 37), and his wife Greetje Gerritse followed him, with two children, in the same ship, in 1663. (Ibid., 41.) He settled at Flatbush, where, 28 March, 1677, he was mentioned in the patent of Governor Andros for that part of Flatbush known as the "New Lotts," as Dirck Janse. He was commissioned 25 October, 1673, ensign of the Amersfort (Flatbush) militia, under Captain Elbert Elbertse (Stoothoof) and Lieutenant Roelef Martense (Schenck), being also designated as Dirck Janse. ("Documents Relating to the Colonial History of New York," ii. 646.) He was a magistrate of Flatbush in 1679, 1680, and 1681, and a deacon of the Dutch Church of that town in 1680, and was named in the confirmatory patent of Flatbush, by Governor Dongan, under date of 12 November, 1685, as Dirck Vander Vliet. ("History of Flatbush," 41-44.) The joint will of himself and wife Greetje bears date 15 January, 1679/80, and is of record at Flatbush. (Liber A. A., 95.)

Children of John and Hendrica (Vander Vliet) Nelson:

1. Maria Nelson<sup>2</sup>, baptized 11 June, 1671. (New York Dutch Church Records.)
2. Catharine Nelson<sup>2</sup>. (Bergen's "Kings County Settlers.")
3. Mehitable Nelson<sup>2</sup>, baptized 13 October, 1678. (Brooklyn Dutch Church Records.) One of these daughters married — Rogers, and had a son, Richard Rogers, who is mentioned in the deed of John Nelson to his son Polycarpus.
4. Polycarpus Nelson<sup>2</sup>, born 21 July, 1680; died 19 December, 1738; married Ruth Gedney.
5. Eli Nelson<sup>2</sup>, baptized 14 December, 1684.
6. Francis Nelson<sup>2</sup>, born circa 1691; died after 13 November, 1750; probably married (1) Mary Skinner; (2) Anne —.

POLYCARPUS NELSON<sup>2</sup>, eldest son of John and Hendrica (Vander Vliet) Nelson, was born, probably on Long Island, and, according to his own deposition while serving as constable of Mamaroneck, in 1680. (Westchester Deeds, D.) His tombstone, if correctly copied, gives his birth as 21 July, 1680. His life from his infancy was spent at Mamaroneck, where he was elected constable, 2 April, 1712, and overseer of highways, 7 April, 1719. Besides his homestead in Mamaroneck, he held lands in Dutchess County purchased from Anthony Rutgers, Jacob Goelet, and Charles LeRoy, attorneys for David Jameson and others, and one-half of this tract he conveyed, 31 August, 1736, with the consent of his wife Ruth, to his brother, Francis Nelson, "of the south part of Dutchess County in ye Highlands." (Dutchess County Deeds, I, 276.) His will, executed 3 October, 1737, proved 23 March, 1738/9, named the children given below, and constituted his brother Francis Nelson, and "brother-in-law" John Gedney, executors, and bequeathed to his son Elijah the land in the manor of Scarsdale on which the testator lived; to son Shadrach, house and lands in Mamaroneck, and meadow in Little Neck; and to each of his other sons, two hundred acres in the Patent of Nine Partners. According to tradition, Polycarpus was killed by one of his workmen in his tannery at Mamaroneck, his death occurring 19 December, 1738. The quaint stone which marked his grave on "Nelson Hill" is represented in the design in the head-piece of this article, and, though removed therefrom, is still in existence. He married Ruth Gedney, who survived him. Issue:

1. Siber Nelson<sup>3</sup>, who married, 31 July, 1736, Isaac Gedney.
2. Maher-shalal-hash-baz Nelson<sup>3</sup>, under twenty-one years 13 October, 1739, when Isaac Gedney was appointed his guardian. (Westchester Deeds, G, 254.)
3. Thomas Nelson<sup>3</sup>, who, with the consent of his wife Mary, executed a deed 9 July, 1766, to James Horton, for land in Mamaroneck, and was then styled "of Minneford in the Manor of Pelham." (Mamaroneck Records.)
4. Enoch Nelson<sup>3</sup>, who, by deed of 28 May, 1754, joined with his brothers above in conveying the interest they had to lands in Mamaroneck, formerly their father's, to their brother Elijah. (Ibid., A, 9.)
5. Esther Nelson<sup>3</sup>, an infant under twenty-one years, 8 May, 1744, when she petitioned for the appointment of Richard Cornell, Jr., as her guardian. (Westchester Deeds, G, 348.)
6. Elijah Nelson<sup>3</sup>.
7. Shadrach Nelson<sup>3</sup>.
8. Exana Nelson<sup>3</sup>.
9. Glorianna Nelson<sup>3</sup>.
10. Ruth Nelson<sup>3</sup>.
11. Mary Nelson<sup>3</sup>.

ELI NELSON<sup>2</sup>, second son of John and Hendrica (Vander Vliet) Nelson, was baptized 14 December, 1684, and the entry thereof on the Flatbush Dutch Church Records reads: "Eli, the child of Jan Elizen and Hendrica daughter of Dirck Vander Vliet." In two or three instances the old records have rendered John Nelson, Jan Elizen or Elsen. For some years after reaching maturity Eli Nelson was active in the town affairs of Mamaroneck, holding the offices of constable and surveyor of highways in 1715, tax-collector in 1718, fence-viewer in 1721, and collector in 1726. (Mamaroneck Records.) By deed of 6 February, 1739, he conveyed land in the manor of Scarsdale to Eleazer Gedney of that place (Westchester Deeds, G, 327), shortly after which he removed to the Manor of Cortlandt, as on 10 August, 1741, he, then so described, conveyed land in Mamaroneck to Robert Coles of the same town (Mamaroneck Records), and he had before this time sold his orchard, and probably other lands in Mamaroneck, to Henry Disbrow. (Westchester Deeds, P, 125.) The place and date of his death have not been ascertained, nor the name of his wife; and the fragmentary condition of the town, church, and county records of the vicinity in which he lived make even his family problematical, but he was without doubt the father of William Nelson, who was elected "pounder" of Mamaroneck, 3 April, 1744, and who was the owner of Nelson's Hill in Mamaroneck, which he sold to Absalom Nelson (q.v.).

FRANCIS NELSON<sup>2</sup>, youngest son of John and Hendrica (Vander Vliet) Nelson, was born circa 1691; died after 13 November, 1750. Until about 1 May, 1716, he resided at Mamaroneck, "the place of rolling stones," but at that time he purchased, of Colonel Caleb Heathcote, lands in the manor of Scarsdale (Westchester Deeds, E, 333), and shortly removed thereto, as is evidenced by the following receipt:

"NEW YORK, 30 January, 1721/2.

"Recd from ffrances Nelson Collector of ye Manor of Scarsdale in West Chester County fifteen shillings & two pence three farthings, Pursuant to an Act of ye General Assembly of the Province Entitled an Act for raising ye sum of five hundred pounds for securing ye Indians in His Majt<sup>ties</sup> Interest payable ye first Tuesday in March now next ensuing. I say received by me.

"£00-15-10¾.

A. D. PEYSTER, JUN<sup>R</sup>

"Treasurer."

The town records of Scarsdale are not known to exist, and there is nothing thus far obtained to show that Francis Nelson held any town office other than that of assessor in 1723. His lands in Scarsdale lay along the old Indian path between the North and East River, and it is thus easy to understand that after a time he too should follow the steps of the dusky warriors of the past into the land of romance and adventure as then embodied in the Highlands of Dutchess County, and to this end, by deed of 8 October, 1733, with the consent of his wife Anne, he conveyed to William Barker of Mamaroneck, in consideration of £250, all the land in Scarsdale he had purchased of Colonel Heathcote. (Ibid., Y, 273, 274.) Which land, it may be interesting for his descendants to recall, lay near the Angevine farm, the residence, nearly a hundred years later, of that wonderful delineator of Indian life, James Fenimore Cooper, who here wrote his first literary success, "The Spy." The date of Mr. Nelson's removal from Scarsdale is not known, but it had been accomplished by 31 August, 1736, when he is described as "of the south part of Dutchess County in ye Highlands," in the deed of his brother Polycarpus Nelson for lands in "the Patent of Greater or Lower Nine Partners upon Fishkill." (Dutchess County Deeds, I, 276.) A part of this tract, which contained six hundred and fifty acres, Francis Nelson conveyed to his son Reuben, by deed of 13 November, 1750, which is, however, not of record, and only known by a recital in the conveyance of the same land from his grandson Reuben Nelson of Fishkill to Francis R. Nelson of Clintonville, 20 June, 1794. (Ibid., xiii. 36, 37.) Mr. Nelson was one of the first commissioners of roads for that part of Dutchess which is now Putman County, as is shown by the following report:

"Francis Nelson

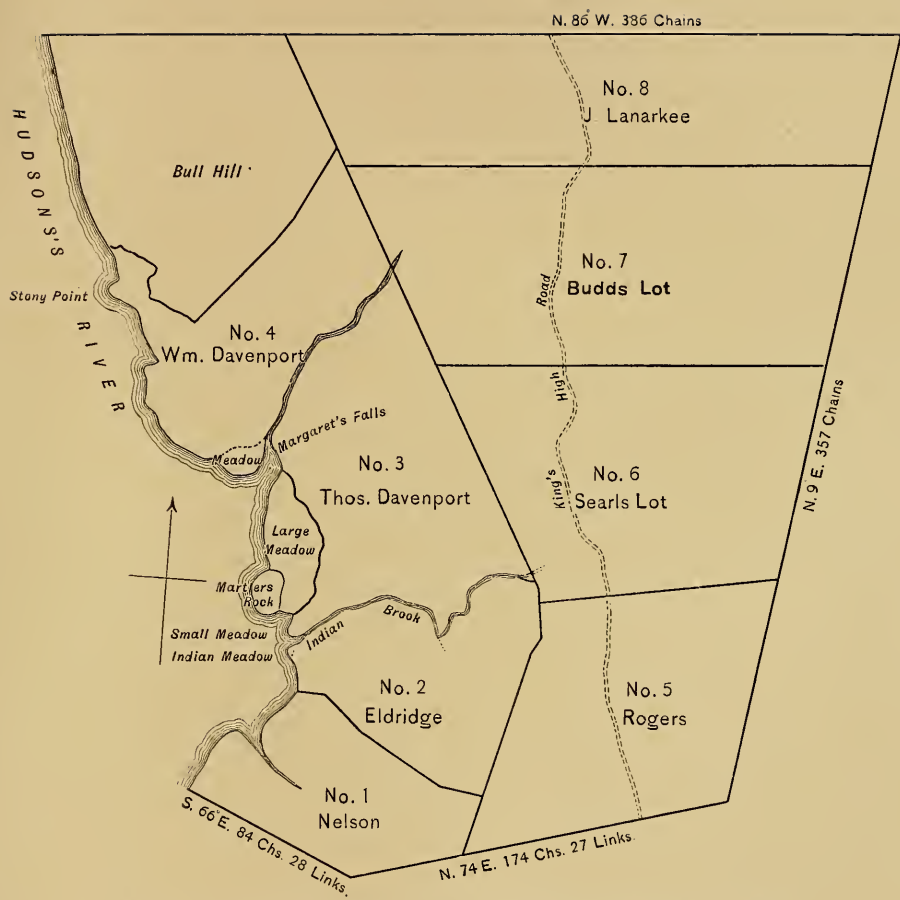

"Dutchess"

In 1747 Francis Nelson's name disappears from the tax list of the South Ward of Dutchess County, and in 1750 it last appears on the county records. After this date neither his hearth-stone nor grave can be located.

There is a strong tradition, current in all branches of the descendants of Francis Nelson, that his wife was Mary Skinner, and it may be so, but on 8 October, 1733, if the instrument be correctly entered on the county records, his wife was Anne. Issue:

1. Reuben Nelson<sup>3</sup>, married Elizabeth ——. He was surveyor of highways and fence-viewer of Charlotte Precinct, in Dutchess County, in 1763. His will, dated 30 April, 1776, was proved 22 October, 1785. (New York Calendar of Wills.) It named wife above, sons Francis and Reuben R.; daughters Zeba, wife of Smith Rowland; Susanna, wife of Henry Neely; Mary Ann, and Elizabeth. The Records of Rombout Presbyterian Church give the following baptisms of his children: Francis, 6 May, 1750. Susanna, 30 August, 1752. Mary, 16 June, 1754. Of this line, Cortez Nelson, of New York City, has an almost complete history, he being descended therefrom.
2. John Nelson<sup>3</sup>, born probably at Mamaroneck about 1718/19; married (1), 25 December, 1739, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Davenport, of Philips

Map of Lot No. 2, Philipse Patent (now Cold Spring-on-Hudson), made by Daniel Lambert, 1769, giving names of early residents thereon.

Precinct, Dutchess County (Fishkill Dutch Church Records); (2) Rebecca Schot. The last marriage entry reads: "John Nelson, widower of Elizabeth Davenport, married, 12 November, 1748, Rebecca Schot, a young woman, he born in Westchester County, she in Dutchess." (Rhinebeck Dutch Church Records.) He served on the Grand Jury of Dutchess County in May, 1746, was overseer in Crum Elbow Precinct, Dutchess County, 4 April, 1749, and he was one of the executors named in the will of his father-in-law, Thomas Davenport, which bears date 10 October, 1746. He died in February, 1796. By his first marriage he had: 1. Thomas Nelson, born 17 March, 1744; died 1825; married (1), 1769, Sarah Wright; (2) Mary Thompson, widow of Major Nathaniel Delavan. 2. Elizabeth Nelson, born 1747; died 2 October, 1787; married, 1765, Ashael Armstrong, and had four sons and seven daughters. By his second marriage he had: 3. Anna Nelson, baptized 8 July, 1750 (Rombout Presbyterian Church Records); married Thomas Barker. 4. William Nelson, baptized 30 August, 1752; removed to Nova Scotia. 5. Francis Nelson, married — Wright; died circa 1800. 6. John Nelson, married Sarah Reed; died at Hyde Park, circa 1799. The Rev. Richard Henry Nelson, rector of St. Peter's Church, Philadelphia, descends from the eldest son, as does Judge Thomas Nelson, of New York City, who has a full record of this line.

3. Theophilus Nelson<sup>3</sup>, born probably at Scarsdale, about 1723/24; married (1), 9 June, 1745, Mary Alltin (Fishkill Dutch Church Records); (2), 12 July, 1764, Mary Rose. (New York Marriage Licenses.) He was appointed "Path-Master" of Crum Elbow Precinct, Dutchess County, 6 April, 1773, from Captain De Witt's mills south along the Crum Elbow Road to the Post Road to Schralenburgh Landing, and in 1774 from near Nelson's sawmill, along Crum Elbow Creek, south to the road that leads to the Landing. His will, dated 31 October, 1785, which was proved 3 February, 1787, styled him of Charlotte Precinct. His legatees were wife Mary, children Stephen, Joshua, Sarah, wife of Gilbert Williams, Junr., Mary, Charles, Theophilus, David, George, and Catherine.
4. Mephiboseth Nelson<sup>3</sup>, was chosen constable of Crum Elbow, Dutchess County, 6 April, 1756. His will bears date 20 September, 1770, and was proved 18 February, 1795. (Dutchess County Wills, A, 143.) It named wife Miriam and children Christiana, Roger, Caleb, Gilbert, Justis, Mary, Ann, and Lucretia. His daughter Christiana was born 20 October, 1755, and baptized 20 January, 1758 (Rombout Presbyterian Church Records).
5. Major Joshua Nelson<sup>3</sup>, born 18 September, 1726, probably at Scarsdale; died at Philipstown, 14 December, 1817 (Gravestone at St. Philip's, Garrison); married, 3 January, 1754, Sarah, daughter of Jacob Mandeville, born 7 November, 1736; died 16 August, 1823. He was chosen, 6 May, 1776, by the Committee of Safety for Dutchess County, second major of one of

Sarah Nelson, baptized 9 February, 1764; married, 13 June, 1782, Benjamin Welles, M.D., born at Stamford, Connecticut, 22 November, 1756; died at Wayne, Steuben County, New York, 19 April, 1813; was graduated at Yale in 1775, and served in the Revolution as commissary and surgeon. Mrs. Welles died at Wayne, in January, 1858.†
3. Jacob Nelson, born 1761; died at Philipstown, 14 April, 1812; married (1) Hannah —, who died 16 February, 1795, aged thirty-four years; (2) Sarah —, who survived him.‡ 4. John Nelson, born 23 April, 1766. 5. Jane Nelson, born 23 June, 1769; died 12 February, 1828; married, 9 June, 1785, Harry Garrison,§ of Philipstown. 6. John Nelson.
6. Captain Caleb Nelson<sup>3</sup>, was assessor and overseer of Philipstown, in 1772/73, and "pound-master on the River," at the same date, and he was chosen by John Rogers, of Philipstown, as executor of his will, 5 November, 1776, being then styled "Captain." His will describes him as of Philipstown, and as "weak of body." It bears date 10 February, 1796, and names wife Phebe, and children Phineas, Joshua, Jemima Meeks (to whom he gave a set of curtains that were her mother's), Mary Lounsbury, and Susanna Nelson. He married (1), 26 February, 1761, Esther Haight (Rombout Church Records). His second wife was Phebe, widow of — Baxter, a Tory, who went to Nova Scotia in 1783, and soon after died, when his widow returned with her three children. Of his children, Phineas was

JUSTUS NELSON<sup>3</sup> was the seventh and youngest son of Francis Nelson, and certainly by wife Anne, and one of the Nelsons mentioned in the Journal. He was born 21 February, 1737, probably in the Highlands. His house was in Philipstown, Dutchess (now Putman) County. He was on the list of taxables for the Southern District in 1771-1778, and he held various of the town offices during these years. By deed of 20 October, 1784, he purchased from Roger Morris "All that certain tract of land in Philips precinct in Dutchess County, being part of a marsh or meadow late of Roger Morris, lying near Constitution Island so called, and being bounded as follows: Beginning at the most southerly corner on the mire ditch so called and runs along the same north forty-six degrees west thirteen chains nine links to the south corner of a lott sold to Matthew Snook, then along his line north, fifty-four degrees forty-five minutes east seventeen chains twenty links to the line of lott belonging to Charity Hustis, then along said line south thirty-seven degrees east two chains ninety-four links to a creek, then southerly along said creek as it runs to the place of beginning." (Dutchess County Deeds, 2, 132.) He died intestate in 1803, on the anniversary of his birth, 21 February, and is buried in a marked grave in the beautiful church-yard of St. Philip's, at Garrisons-on-Hudson. His estate was administered upon by his son Cornelius Nelson and his son-in-law John Warren, both of Philipstown, 1 March, 1803. (Dutchess County Administrations, B, 211.) * SIMON HOYT<sup>2</sup>, son of John and Ruth Hoyt, was born at Dorchester, England, 20 January, 1590, and married in the parish church of Upway, Dorsetshire, 2 December, 1612, to Deborah, daughter of Walter Stowers, born in Dorchester, 1 May, and baptized at Upway, 5 June, 1593. In 1628 or 1629 Simon Hoyt, accompanied by his family, brother-in-law Nicholas Stowers, and the Spragues, who also were of Upway in Dorset, arrived at Salem, Massachusetts, and in the latter year went to Charles-town. In 1630 he was of Dorchester, in 1635 of Scituate, in 1639 of Windsor, Connecticut, and some time between 1649 and 1657 he removed to Stamford, where he died, 1 September, 1657. The date of death of his wife Deborah is not known. He married (2) Susanna —, who survived him and married — Bates. By his wife

Wright, born circa 1739/40; died circa December, 1775. She was probably buried at St. Philip's and her tombstone destroyed during the building of the new church some years ago. His first eight children are by the first wife. He married (2) Phebe, the widow of Nicholas Budd, and daughter of Elisha Covert, of Cortlandt Manor, born 7 November, 1743; died 4 June, 1819. Issue:

Deborah Stowers he had the following children, whose births and baptisms were taken from the records of the parish church of Upway by J. Cornelius Haight, of Fishkill, New York:

1. John Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 12 March, 1614.
2. Walter Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 9 June, 1616.
3. Thomas Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 20 September, 1618; died at Stamford, Connecticut, 9 September, 1656.
4. Deborah Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 9 August, 1620; died 3 June, 1628.
5. Nicholas Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 10 November, 1622.
6. Ruth Hoyt<sup>s</sup>, born 2 January, 1625; died 9 May, 1627.

His children by second wife Susanna were:

7. Moses Hoyt<sup>s</sup>.
8. Joshua Hoyt<sup>s</sup>.
9. Samuel Hoyt<sup>s</sup>.
10. Benjamin Hoyt<sup>s</sup>.
11. A daughter, who married Thomas Lyon.
12. A daughter, who married Samuel Finch.
13. A daughter, who married Samuel Firman.

JOHN HOYT<sup>s</sup>, eldest son of Simon and Deborah (Stowers) Hoyt, was born at Dorchester, England, 12 March, 1614, and accompanied his parents to Massachusetts, and thence to Connecticut. He was one of the patentees of East Chester in 1666, and at the meeting of the "Commanders and Hon<sup>ble</sup> Council of War, holden on the 30th of August, 1673," he was elected magistrate of that town. Shortly after this he removed to Rye, where he died in September, 1684. His will, dated 29 August, 1684, named youngest sons John and Simon, and daughters Mary Brown and Rachel Norton. He also had a son Samuel. He married, before 14 October, 1658, Mary, the widow of Francis Purdy, of Fairfield, Connecticut, who may have been a second wife.

JOHN HOYT<sup>s</sup>, son of John and Mary Hoyt, was born about 1664, possibly a little later, as he was not of age at the making of his father's will, but had attained his majority before November, 1687. He was town clerk, or recorder, for Rye in 1696, and he is probably the Ensign Haight who was fence-viewer in 1705, supervisor in 1711, 1717, and 1719, justice of the peace, and otherwise prominent in town affairs. His will bears date 10 February, 1722/23, and names wife Elizabeth and children John, Samuel, Jonathan, Joseph, Elizabeth, Eunice, and Mary. He married Elizabeth Sherwood, of Rye.

JOSEPH HAIGHT<sup>6</sup>, youngest son of John and Elizabeth (Sherwood) Hoyt, was born about 1691. He resided at Rye, where, in 1737, he sold to James Wetmore the farm in Budd Neck Purchase bequeathed to him by the will of his father, and his wife Sarah joined in the deed. He executed his will 12 January, 1748, and it was proved on the 30th of the same month. His children named therein were Henry, Cornelius, Joseph, Elizabeth Brown, Sarah, and Philena. His wife Sarah was not mentioned.

JOSEPH HAIGHT<sup>6</sup>, youngest son of Joseph and Sarah Haight, was born, probably at Rye, from whence he removed to Philipstown, Dutchess County, where he was a taxable in 1772-75. He is said to have died of smallpox during the Revolution, and his wife as well; and one of his name did die of this disease, 12 January, 1779, while on a visit to Hempstead, Long Island. He married Hannah, daughter of Captain Daniel Wright, of the Manor of Cortlandt. His children were:

1. Daniel Haight<sup>7</sup>, born 1732; died 4 September, 1812; married Martha Fowler, who died 1 April, 1822. Both are buried in St. Philip's graveyard at Garisons-on-Hudson. He kept the public house on the cross-road leading to the Peekskill and Cold Spring turnpike in Philipstown, and here Washington was in the habit of refreshing himself and suite in passing to and from Continental Village on the east. Mr. Haight used to say that he never knew the commander-in-chief to commence a conversation, unless he desired something brought to him. Calling at the house one day, as he entered the servant-maid ran up-stairs, and when half-way up fell. Washington broke into a hearty laugh and, turning, said to his host, "It is the first time I ever saw a person fall up-stairs." Mr. Haight referred to this as the first and only time he saw the great general laugh. (Blake's History of Putnam County.)
2. William Haight<sup>7</sup>, married Jane Garrison.
3. Esther Haight<sup>7</sup>, married John Knapp.
4. Phebe Haight<sup>7</sup>, twin of Esther, married Colonel Zebulon Butler, of the Revolutionary army, and died in Pennsylvania.
5. Mary Haight<sup>7</sup>, born 1739/40; died about December, 1775; married, as first wife, Justus Nelson.
6. John Haight<sup>7</sup>, born 18 August, 1742; died at Philipstown, 18 July, 1836. He was appointed, 28 May, 1778, captain in Colonel Henry Luddington's regiment of Dutchess County militia. He was a member of the New York Legislature of 1807-08, associate justice of Putnam County in 1813, and judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Putnam County in 1820. He was also a ruling elder for forty years of the Old Presbyterian Church of Brinckerhoff. He married, 20 March, 1770, Miriam Swim, at the house of Colonel Beverly Robinson, the same from which Benedict Arnold made his flight. She was born 25 December, 1749, and died 21 March, 1842. ## Notes on the Nelson Family

5. Sarah Nelson<sup>4</sup>, born 1 January, 1767; died 2 November, 1833; married Captain John Warren, of Cold Spring. (See Warren family.) In the births of Joseph and Sarah Nelson the record in the family Bible differs from that on their tombstones; in the first the year is 1767, and in the latter 1766.
6. Sylvanus Nelson<sup>4</sup>, born 16 March, 1769; died, unmarried, 11 July, 1793.
7. Catharine Nelson<sup>4</sup>, born 14 November, 1773; died 21 November, 1815; married Peter Warren, the brother of John Warren above.

MEPHIBOSETH NELSON<sup>4</sup>, youngest child of Justus Nelson by his wife Mary Haight, born 1 December, 1775; died 29 March, 1830; married, 8 December, 1798, Elizabeth Baxter, born 22 April, 1777; died 5 April, 1828. Her parents went to Nova Scotia with the refugees after the Revolution, where Mr. Baxter died. His widow Phebe returned to New York with her three children, and became the second wife of Captain Caleb Nelson. Mephiboseth Nelson was a millwright and left the impress of his handiwork upon many of the pioneer industries of his day, notable among which were the Arden and Philipse Mills, the Bunnell Forge, and the motive power that gave the first pulsations of life to the West Point Foundry. His early religious inclinations were Episcopalian, but later, when Mathias came on his mission proclaiming Methodism through the Highlands, he was one of the first to open his house for services, and the most of his family cast their lot and influence with the new denomination. Issue:

1. Phebe Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 22 December, 1799; died 12 January, 1800.
2. Mary Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 11 April, 1801; died 19 July, 1870; married, 20 January, 1820, Henry Croft, born at Continentalville, New York, 3 August, 1793; died 8 August, 1857; son of James Croft, a Revolutionary soldier. Had sixteen children.
3. Katharine Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 8 October, 1802; died 10 April, 1825.
4. Warren Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 2 September, 1804; died 16 November, 1870; married (1), 11 October, 1823, Sarah, daughter of John O. Bryant and Hannah Horton, born 13 May, 1804; died 27 April, 1850; married (2), 5 December, 1850, Catharine Turner, born in England, 24 March, 1820; died 10 February, 1899. Had seven children by the first wife and five by the second.
5. Phebe Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 25 June, 1807; died 9 April, 1842; married, 24 September, 1837, Joseph, son of Joseph Haight by his wife Catharine Croft. Had three children.
6. Justus Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 17 August, 1809; died 13 March, 1876; married, 13 October, 1836, Sarah, daughter of Justus Nelson by his wife Letitia Horton. Issue:

1. Elizabeth Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 11 March, 1839; married, 2 October, 1872, William John, son of John Warren by his wife Matilda Ireland.
2. James Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 19 April, 1840; married, 21 August, 1883, Esther A., daughter of Gilbert Forman by his wife Catharine Denney, born 1 April, 1856, by whom he has one son, James Homer<sup>7</sup>, born 17 September, 1884. By patient effort Mr. James Nelson, who resides on the old Warren homestead, transferred by John H. Brinkerhoff to Justus Nelson, and by him devised to his son, has accumulated a quantity of valuable family and local data, and those interested in Putnam County families owe him a debt of gratitude. He for years carefully searched every record he could find relating to the early history of the North Highlands, investigated traditions, preserving all he could in any way verify as

He has proved himself a genealogist of great reliability, shown cleverness and ability in patient search after slight clues, and most generous in giving the benefit of his research to all inquiries; and too much cannot be said in appreciation of his aid to those who have collected the material for these notes.
3. Isaac Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 7 October, 1841; died 8 March, 1844.
  4. Mary Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 20 October, 1844; married, 12 February, 1881, William H., son of Henry and Jane (Mekeel) Haight.
  5. Sarah Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 17 February, 1847; married, 30 October, 1877, Dr. James Henry Forman, son of Gilbert and Catharine (Denny) Forman.
  7. Cornelius Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 15 May, 1811; died 12 December, 1893; married (1), 6 January, 1832, Elizabeth, daughter of Moses Meeks, born 7 October, 1809; (2) Mrs. Melissa Mearns, who died 10 May, 1878. Had ten children by first wife and one son by second wife.
  8. Eliza Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 17 May, 1813; died 13 February, 1894; married, 20 April, 1842, Leslie Sanders Sims, born 10 May, 1813; died 6 October, 1844. Had three children.
  9. Jacob Kemble Nelson<sup>5</sup>, born 22 May, 1819; died 24 July, 1887; married, 27 October, 1840, Catharine J., daughter of John Low. She died 28 September, 1887. Had three children.

ABSALOM NELSON<sup>4</sup>, probably son of William Nelson, of Mamaroneck, grandson of Eli Nelson and great-grandson of John and Hendrica (Vander Vliet) Nelson, was born in 1752, and doubtless at Mamaroneck. Just when he took residence in the Highlands of Dutchess (now Putnam) County, is not clear, but certainly before the Revolution, during which period he served in the Sixth and Seventh Regiments of Dutchess County militia, as did many of his Nelson kin and name, and he appears on the list of taxables for the "Southern District" of that county in 1778/79. On 19 June, 1784, he, then described as of the manor of Philipsburg, conveyed to Isaac Gedney, of Mamaroneck, land in Mamaroneck known as Nelson's Hill, and to which his wife Esther released her right of dower. (Westchester Co. Deeds, J, 268.)

He married, before 5 November, 1776, Esther (Rogers) Warren, the widow of Samuel Warren, of the Highlands (see Notes on the Warren Family), and daughter of John Rogers, also of the Highlands, by his wife Hester Verveelen. She was at the time of her second marriage doubtless living at Peekskill, whither she had removed, with her family of children, shortly after Mr. Warren's death. Under the will of her father, John Rogers, which bore date 5 November, 1776, Mrs. Nelson received certain lands in Dutchess County, which, with the other heirs, she conveyed by deed of 8 February, 1777, her then husband, Absalom Nelson, being a party thereto. (Dutchess County Deeds, xiv. 400, 401.)

Absalom Nelson and his wife later returned to the Warren homestead in the Highlands, which in Erskine's military map of 1781 is marked as "Nelson's Tavern," but which Mrs. Livingston described, in a letter of 12 July, 1766, to her husband, Judge Livingston, as "Warren's," and here Mrs. Nelson died.

Mr. Nelson married (2) Sarah Teed, who survived him and married, for second husband, Samuel Storm. She died 12 August, 1852, aged sixty-eight years and twenty days.

In his will of 28 November, 1817, Mr. Nelson is described as of Greenburg. His legatees were wife Sally, to whom he bequeathed lands in Oneida County, in lieu of dower, and the sons named below. His tombstone in the cemetery at White Plains reads: "In Memory of Absalom Nelson, who departed this life 12 December, 1817, in the sixty-fifth year of his age. This monument is erected to his memory by his disconsolate widow. His conjugal love was pure, his parental strong, his affection for his friends warm, generous without ostentation, hospitable without vanity. As a tender husband, a kind parent and a sincere friend never will his memory be forgotten."

Child of Absalom Nelson by his wife Esther Rogers :

William Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born, according to his tombstone, 2 March, 1776, but according to the Warren Bible, 1 May, 1778; died 2 March, 1839; married Catharine, daughter of General William Green, by his wife Martha Archer, born 21 January, 1785; died 27 January, 1861. Issue:

1. Martha Ann Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 10 March, 1804; died 20 May, 1879; married (1) Gilbert Bedell, of Somers; (2) Israel Green.
2. Sally Nelson<sup>6</sup>, married Henry Waters.
3. Esther Warren Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 8 November, 1808; died 1 May, 1883; married Henry M. Todd, of Somers.
4. Henry Green Nelson<sup>6</sup>, born 9 June, 1812; died 18 January, 1860; married Purdy Sailes.

Children of Absalom and Sally (Teed) Nelson :

1. Absalom D. Nelson<sup>5</sup>, of Greenburg, New York.

The Van Cortlandt Family

VLOFF STEVENSEN VAN CORTLANDT<sup>1</sup>, the founder of the family of that surname in America, was a native of South Holland, and was a son of Steven and Catharine Van Cortlandt. His father was living in 1610, and his mother died in 1630, aged sixty-four years.

The son became an officer in the service of the West India Company, and in 1637 he sailed from Holland, in the ship "Häring" (the Herring), with Director-General William Kieft. The ship wintered in Bermuda, and reached New Amsterdam (now New York) 28 March, 1638. Shortly after Van Cortlandt arrived there he was given a position in the company's service, and from that time until his death he was almost constantly in public employment. In 1639 he was appointed "commissary of cargoes," or "custom's officer," and in 1643 keeper of the public stores of the West India Company, which position he resigned in 1648, when he was made a freeman of New Amsterdam, and entered upon the business of a merchant and brewer, in which he was successful, becoming one of the wealthiest men in that city.

In 1645 Mr. Van Cortlandt was one of the "Eight Men," a representative board elected by the people. In 1649 he was chosen colonel of the Burgher Guard, and during the same year he became a member of the noted board of "Nine Men," which board replaced the "Eight Men," and exercised large governmental powers in the affairs of New Amsterdam and other jurisdictions. In 1650 he was president of the board, and on 28 January, 1654, he was appointed by Governor Stuyvesant one of the Schepens of New Amsterdam, and at the organization of the Court of Burgomasters and Schepens, 9 February following, he took his seat in that Court. On 16 June, the same year, he was appointed paymaster of the moneys ordered to be raised for the defence of the city. On 2 February, 1655, he was appointed one of the two burgomasters of New Amsterdam, and retained the office until 2 February, 1657. He was reappointed 2 February, 1658, and served until 2 February, 1661, being reappointed 2 February, 1662, and serving until 2 February, 1664. From official records it is learned that he was the treasurer of New Amsterdam during the same year, but the date of his appointment is not known.

Upon the capture of New Netherlands by the English, in 1664, he was appointed by Governor Stuyvesant one of the commissioners to negotiate the terms of surrender, and was active in the settlement. On 2 February, 1665, he was again chosen burgomaster, and as such took the oath of allegiance to the King of England. In June of that year Governor Richard Nicolls abolished the Dutch form of government for the city of New Amsterdam, and established an English municipality,—that of mayor, aldermen, and sheriff. Thomas Willett was appointed mayor, and Mr. Van Cortlandt one of the aldermen, which position he retained until August, 1668, being re-chosen for one year in October, 1670. On several occasions, during the time he was alderman, he was acting-mayor of the city, and in the minutes of the City Court he is styled "Deputy Mayor."

Mr. Van Cortlandt was also engaged in several temporary public matters, as a councillor and commissioner during the administration of Stuyvesant, notably in the Connecticut boundary matter in 1663, and the settlement of Captain John Scott's claim to Long Island in 1664. He served in similar capacities under the first English governors, Nicolls, Lovelace, and Dongan, and in 1673, was chosen the trustee to settle Lovelace's estate.

Mr. Van Cortlandt is frequently mentioned in the public records of his day, sometimes as Oloff Stevensen, and at others as Oloff Stevense, but he signed himself Oloff Stevensen Van Cortlandt. He died at New York, 4 April, 1684, having married, 26 February, 1642, Annetje, sister of Govert Loockermans, Esq., who filled some of the highest offices in the colony, and was at his death probably the richest man in New York. Mrs. Van Cortlandt died 4 May, 1684. Issue:

1. Stephen (Stephanus) Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 7 May, 1643; died 25 November, 1700; married Gertrude Schuyler.
2. Maria Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 30 July, 1645; died 29 January, 1689; married Colonel Jeremias Van Rensselaer, second son of Killian Van Rensselaer, the ancestor of the noted New York family of that surname. Colonel Van Rensselaer died 12 October, 1674, and in 1658 he succeeded his brother, John Baptist Van Rensselaer, as director of the colony of Rensselaerwyck.
3. John (Johannes) Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 11 October, 1648; died without issue.
4. Sophia Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 31 May, 1651; married, 6 May, 1671, Andries Teller, Esq.*
5. Catharine Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 25 October, 1652; married (1) John Der-

- vall, Esq., a prominent New York merchant; (2), as second wife, Colonel Frederick Philipse, the first lord of the manor of Philipsburg.
6. Cornelia Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 21 November, 1655; married, as first wife, 12 July, 1682, Captain Brandt Schuyler, son of Captain Philip Pieterse Schuyler, of Albany, New York.
  7. Jacobus Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup>, born 7 July, 1658; married (license issued 7 May, 1691) Eva de Vries, step-daughter of Frederick Philipse. Jacobus Van Cortlandt was the ancestor of the Yonkers branch of the Van Cortlandt family, now extinct in the male line, but represented by August Van Cortlandt in the female line. He was for some years a member of the Assembly, colonel of militia, and mayor of New York.

COLONEL STEPHANUS VAN CORTLANDT<sup>2</sup>, eldest son of Oloff Stevensen Van Cortlandt, was born in Brouwer (now Stone) Street, New York, 7 May, 1643, and died there, 25 November, 1700. He was one of the most eminent men of his time in New York, and served, at one time or another, in almost every prominent office in the province, except the governorship. One writer says of him, "Van Cortlandt's career was, perhaps, the most brilliant and varied, in the fifty-seven years it occupied, of any inhabitant of New York in the seventeenth century."* He received the best education the time afforded, and became a merchant by occupation, but early engaged in public life.

He was appointed an ensign of militia in 1668, subsequently became captain, and, as such, was ordered by Governor Dongan to raise a troop of horse in Kings County, which he commanded, and as early as 1692 he became colonel of the Kings County regiment of militia, and commanded the same until his death. In 1677, at the early age of thirty-four, he was chosen mayor of New York, being the first native of the province to fill that office. He was several times re-chosen to the mayoralty. In 1681, when, by the Duke of York's commands and instructions to Governor Dongan, a governor's council was established in New York, Stephanus Van Cortlandt and Frederick Philipse were named by the duke therein as councillors, and Van Cortlandt's name was continued in each of the commissions by all the succeeding governors down to and including Bellamont's, in 1697, and he continued in the office until his death. In 1678 he was commissioned first judge of the Admiralty; in 1686, commissioner of the revenue; and in 1687 he was appointed, by the King's auditor-general in England, deputy auditor in New York. The following year he became secretary of the province, and on 15 May, 1691, a justice of the Supreme Court. On 17 June, 1695, he was appointed by Governor Fletcher a commissioner to report the form of a commission for holding courts of judicature, and 12 September, 1696, was made keeper of the great seal of the province "during the governor's absence in Albany," and on 7 June, 1698, receiver-general and collector.

Early in 1700 he was commissioned chief justice, and was serving as such at his death. As a member of the governor's council he was present at all the treaties and conferences with the Indians, and was noted for his influence with the latter. "Equally esteemed and confided in by the governments of James as duke and king, and by William and Mary, in the troublous times in which he lived, and sustained by all the governors, even though, as in Bellamont's case, they did not like him personally, no greater proof could be adduced of his ability, skill, and integrity." *

In 1677 Colonel Van Cortlandt purchased from the Indians a large landed estate, which was erected into the manor of Cortlandt by patent of William III., 17 June, 1697, of which he was the first and only lord.

Colonel Van Cortlandt married, at Albany, 3 October, 1671, Gertrude Schuyler, sister of his brother-in-law, Captain Brandt Schuyler, and daughter of Captain Philip Pieterse Schuyler by his wife Margaretta Van Slichtenhorst.† Their daughters were known as "the seven beautiful Misses Van Cortlandt." Issue:

1. Johannes Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 24 October, 1672; married, in 1695, Anna Maria Van Schaick, daughter of Captain Goosen Gerritse Van Schaick, of Albany, and left one child, Gertrude, who married Philip Verplanck, Esq. Her portion of the manor of Cortlandt is now known as Verplanck's Point.
2. Margaret Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 12 August, 1674; married, 12 March, 1696, Colonel Samuel Bayard, only son of Honorable Nicholas Bayard.
3. Anne Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 12 February, 1676; married, 23 January, 1700, Stephen De Lancey, Esq., the first of the name in America.
4. Oliver Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 26 October, 1678; died unmarried in 1708.
5. Maria Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 4 April, 1680; married (1), 15 October, 1701, Colonel Killiam Van Rensselaer, born 1662; died 1719; fourth patroon of the manor of Rensselaerwyck, colonel of the militia, and member of the governor's council. She married (2) John Miln.
6. Gertrude Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born January, 1681.
7. Philip Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 9 August, 1683; died 21 August, 1746; married Catharine De Peyster.
8. Gertrude Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 10 October, 1688; married, in 1726, as second wife, Colonel Henry Beekman.
9. Gysbert Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born in 1689; died unmarried.
10. Elizabeth Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 1691; died young.
11. Elizabeth Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 24 May, 1694; married the Reverend William Skinner, the first rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church at Perth Amboy, New Jersey. Their eldest son, Cortlandt Skinner, was attorney-general of New Jersey at the outbreak of the Revolution, and the second son, William Skinner, was a colonel in the British army.

13. Catharine Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 30 July, 1696; married Honorable Andrew Johnston, of Perth Amboy, New Jersey. He was speaker of the New Jersey Assembly, and a member of the governor's council of that province.
14. Cornelia Van Cortlandt<sup>3</sup>, born 30 July, 1698; married, 18 October, 1723, Colonel John Schuyler, born 31 October, 1697; died 5 November, 1741. They were the parents of Major-General Philip Schuyler, a noted officer of the Revolutionary army.

COLONEL PHILIP VAN CORTLANDT<sup>3</sup>, third son of Colonel Stephanus Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup> by his wife Gertrude Schuyler, was born 9 August, 1683; died 21 August, 1746. He was a merchant of New York, and, like his father, took an active part in public affairs. From 1730 until his death he was a member of the governor's council; in 1740 he was a commissioner, on the part of New York, in the case of Connecticut against the Mohegan Indians, and he held a commission as colonel of the militia of New York. He owned "lot No. 1," of the manor of Cortlandt, on which the manor house was built. He married, 10 December, 1710, Catharine, daughter of Colonel Abraham De Peyster, who was for some years treasurer of the province of New York and New Jersey. By the death of his elder brother, John, who left only a daughter, and Oliver, who died unmarried, he became the third head of the Van Cortlandt family. Issue:

1. Stephen Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 26 October, 1711; married Mary Walton Ricketts.
2. Abraham Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 19 October, 1713; died unmarried in 1746.
3. Philip Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 29 February, 1715; died unmarried in 1745.
4. John Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 9 September, 1718; died unmarried in 1747.
5. Pierre Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 10 January, 1721; married Joanna Livingston.
6. Catharine Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 26 June, 1725; killed, 4 June, 1735, by the bursting of a cannon which was being fired in honor of the king's birthday on the Battery at New York.

STEPHEN VAN CORTLANDT<sup>3</sup>, twelfth child of Colonel Stephanus Van Cortlandt<sup>2</sup> by his wife Gertrude Schuyler, was born 11 August, 1695; married, 28 August, 1713, Catalina Staats, daughter of Dr. Samuel Staats by his first wife, Joanna Rynders. He resided at "Second River" (now Belleville), Essex County, New Jersey. Issue:

1. Joanna Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 3 February, 1714; died without issue.
2. Gertrude Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 23 February, 1715; married Johannes Van Rensselaer.
3. Stephanus Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 19 September, 1716; died without issue.
4. Samuel Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 22 December, 1717; died without issue.

5. John Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born 16 February, 1721; died 29 June, 1786; married Hester Bayard.
6. Philip Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, born in 1725; died in 1800, without issue. He commanded a New Jersey regiment in the Revolution.
7. Sarah Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup>, died without issue.

STEPHEN VAN CORTLANDT<sup>4</sup>, son of Colonel Philip Van Cortlandt by his wife Catharine De Peyster, succeeded his father as head of the family. He was born 26 October, 1711; died 17 October, 1750; married, 6 May, 1738, Mary Walton, daughter of William Ricketts by his wife Mary, daughter of William Walton, of New York. Issue:

1. Philip Van Cortlandt<sup>5</sup>, born 10 November, 1739; died 1 May, 1814; married Catharine Ogden.
2. William Ricketts Van Cortlandt<sup>5</sup>, born 12 March, 1742; married Elizabeth Kortright.

GENERAL PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT<sup>4</sup>, son of Colonel Philip Van Cortlandt by his wife Catharine De Peyster, was born at Cortlandt Manor, 10 January, 1721; died 1 May, 1814. He was an ardent patriot, making unusual sacrifices for his country. He was closely identified with the affairs of the manor and the interest of his relatives therein, they relying upon him and he serving them faithfully. From 1768 until 1775, he represented the manor in the Colonial Assembly, and in the latter year he was colonel of the manor regiment, member of the Council of Safety, and of the Provincial Congress. He was president of the convention which, in 1777, framed the first constitution of the State, under which he became the first lieutenant-governor, and George Clinton governor. Colonel Van Cortlandt served in the lieutenant-governorship seventeen years, declining a re-election in 1795.

During the Revolution he was obliged to leave the manor house, which he received under his father's will, and spent most of the time at Rhinebeck and at his house near Peekskill. This house was always open to his friends, as both his wife and he were famed for their hospitality, and it was this house to which Mr. Constant refers in his Journal.

In November, 1783, he entered New York with General Washington, after the evacuation of the British. He was an honorary member of the Society of the Cincinnati.

His tombstone in the manor cemetery bears this tribute to his worth: "He was a patriot of the first order; zealous to the last for the liberties of his country."

General Van Cortlandt married, 28 May, 1748, his second cousin, Joanna, daughter of Gilbert Livingston, Esq., by his wife Cornelia Beekman, and granddaughter of Robert Livingston, the first lord of the manor of Livingston, by his wife Alida, daughter of Captain Philip Pieterse Schuyler. Issue:

ried and without issue. He was graduated at Coldenham Academy, and became a surveyor, and in June, 1775, was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of the fourth battalion New York infantry, and on 30 November, 1776, by Washington, colonel of the Second New York Regiment, in place of Colonel Ritzema, who had joined the British. He was present at the surrender of Burgoyne, and in 1779 he was with General Sullivan in the Indian campaign in Western New York. In 1781 he took part in the Virginia campaign, and witnessed the surrender of Cornwallis. After peace was declared Congress gave him the rank of brigadier-general. He was subsequently a member of the New York Assembly, and a member of Congress for the West Chester district from 1793 until 1809. He was an officer of the Society of the Cincinnati, and in 1824 he accompanied Lafayette on his travels through the United States.

MAJOR-GENERAL PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT<sup>8</sup>, LL.D., second son of General Pierre Van Cortlandt<sup>4</sup> by his wife Joanna Livingston, was born at Cortlandt Manor, 29 August, 1762; died there, 13 July, 1848. He studied law in the office of Alexander Hamilton, and rose to be one of the leading men of Westchester County, New York. He was a Presidential elector for Jefferson in 1800, and for General Harrison in 1840, and a candidate on the defeated Henry Clay ticket in 1844. In 1811 and 1812 he was a member of Congress, and for some years a major-general in the New York militia. He was a founder of the Westchester County Bank, and its president from 1833 until his death, and was for many years a warden of St. Peter's Church, Peekskill. His death was universally regretted. Under his father's will he inherited the manor house. He married (1), in 1800, Catharine Taylor, daughter of Vice-President George Clinton, and widow of Captain John Taylor. She died without issue, 10 January, 1811. He married (2), 10 May, 1813, Anne, daughter of John Stevenson, an eminent Scotch citizen of Albany, New York, by his wife Magdalen Douw. She died 20 March, 1821. Issue by second wife:

1. Pierre Van Cortlandt<sup>8</sup>, below mentioned.

COLONEL PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT<sup>8</sup>, only child of Major-General Pierre Van Cortlandt<sup>8</sup>, was born 25 April, 1815; died 11 July, 1884. He held no civil offices, but was a colonel in the New York militia. His father gave him the manor house for his residence, where he led a quiet country life. He succeeded his father in the Society of the Cincinnati. He married at Albany, 14 June, 1836, Catharine Elizabeth, daughter of Theodoric Romeyn Beck, M.D., LL.D., of Albany, and by her had seven children, three of whom still survive him. Issue:

1. Catharine Theresa Romeyn Van Cortlandt<sup>7</sup>, born 2 May, 1838; married, 5 June, 1873, the Reverend John Rutherford Mathews, United States navy, born at New York, 29 November, 1835; died at Croton, New York, 27 December, 1898; and had issue: Philip Van Cortlandt Mathews<sup>8</sup>, born 19 August, 1874; died 2 July, 1887. Catharine Van Cortlandt Mathews<sup>8</sup>, born 16 July, 1876. Isabel Rutherford Mathews<sup>8</sup>, born 1 May, 1879.
2. Pierre Van Cortlandt, Jr.<sup>7</sup>, born 23 September, 1841; died 16 October, 1879, without issue.

Notes on the Warren Family

THE progenitors of at least four distinct families of Warren have contributed to what may be called the New York Warrens. First, Richard Warren of the "Mayflower," some of whose descendants in the line of Samuel Warren, of Middleborough, Massachusetts (who was born 7 March, 1682, and died about January, 1750), are known to have removed to New York, and to have settled near the "Patent of Nine Partners," in Dutchess County. Second, Arthur Warren, of Weymouth, Massachusetts, whose grandson, Jacob Warren, born circa 1668, and died 3 September, 1727, became one of the founders of the town and church of Plainfield, Connecticut. Some descendants of the latter, through his son Ephraim, settled, about 1760, in Amenia, Dutchess County. Third, John Warren, of Watertown, Massachusetts, whose great-grandson, John Warren, removed to Newburgh, Orange County. Fourth, Peter Warren, the ancestor of General Joseph Warren, of the Revolution, who, through his grandson Ebenezer Warren, had descendants who settled in or near Yonkers, Westchester County. And to these must be added Richard Waring, of Brookhaven, Long Island, many of whose descendants, through his sons Richard, Edmund, Michael, and John, spell the name Warren, and among whom may be mentioned Eliakim Warren, of Troy (1717-79), and John Warren, of Southeast, in Dutchess (now Putnam) County (1736-1809).

Just when Samuel Warren<sup>1</sup>, the ancestor of the Warrens of the Highlands, settled in Eastchester or Westchester has not been ascertained, but he was surveyor of highways for Long Reach, in the latter town, 6 May, 1728. (Westchester Town Records, v. 203.) Nor has his relation to the before-mentioned families been settled. There is a tradition among some of his descendants that he was of "Mayflower" stock, and still others hold that he descended from Peter Warren, of Boston. And the latter is the greater probability, though the destruction of the Warren papers, on the one hand, and the meagreness of public record of Peter Warren's descendants of that period, on the other, render the matter difficult of solution.

On 30 November, 1730, Samuel Warren, then of Eastchester, purchased of John Drake, of the same place, a certain parcel of land lying in the new patent of Eastchester, bounded by the road that led from Rattlesnake Brook to Bronx River (Westchester County Deeds, G, 75), and under date of 27 November, 1732, in consideration of £115 7s. 6d., he purchased of the executors of Thomas Gardner, all the lands that had been in the possession of said Gardner, together with a "twenty-five pound privilege of commonage," the land being described as lying "on the east side of Bronx River adjacent to the country road leading to Eastchester in that range of lotts known by the name of Long Reach, together with a house standing thereon." (Westchester County Deeds, G, 213.) On 2 February, 1735, he purchased of John Jones, of Eastchester, certain other lands in that place. (Ibid., G, 347.) He also bought of Stephen Williams, of Eastchester, lands described in Mr. Warren's bill of sale of 7 January, 1737, in which his wife Sarah joins, as bounded by the country road leading from Boston to New York. (Ibid., G, 211, 230.) It was upon this highway that his house was situated. (Deed of Drake to Barnes, Ibid., G, 207, 208.) Prior to 16 July, 1742, he sold some portions of the lands thus purchased to Stephen Williams, as is shown by the will of said Williams of that date. Some time after this he removed to the Van Cortlandt Manor, and is supposed to be the Samuel Warren who was in possession of farm No. 3 in that manor, 1 May, 1767, and is so described in a deed of that date, from Michael Mekeel and Milche his wife to Nathan Whitney. (Westchester Deeds, H, 469.)

The date of Mr. Warren's death is not known, nor that of his wife's, and there seems to be no record proof of his family; but he is thought to have been the father of Daniel Warren, Peter Warren, John Warren, Samuel Warren, Elizabeth Warren, who married, 13 January, 1763, Richard Rogers (Rombout Church Records), and possibly of the Stephen Warren who enlisted in Captain William Gilchrist's company of Colonial Troops, 20 April, 1761, and was then aged twenty-two years, and entered as born in Westchester County. Of these, Peter, John, and Samuel are known to have been brothers.

DANIEL WARREN<sup>2</sup>, above named, was of Cortlandt Manor, 12 May, 1761, when he appears as a witness to a deed from Andrew Johnson, Esq., of Perth Amboy, New Jersey, to Caleb Hall and David Stanley, of Cortlandt. He was pound-master in 1763, and constable in 1767, after which date his name disappears from the records of this manor. In 1771/72 his name is among the taxables of Philips precinct, Dutchess County.

PETER WARREN<sup>2</sup>, supposed son of Samuel Warren, was of the Manor of Cortlandt, where he entered his cattle-mark, "a swallow fork in the near ear," 6 May, 1766. (Records of Yorktown.) In 1773, he was tax-collector and constable for the Southern (Philipse) District of Dutchess County, and he is on the tax-lists of that precinct until 1779, when his widow Thamer appears. He probably died about 1779, although his estate was not administered upon until 7 October, 1781. (New York Wills, ii. 188.) He married three times,—first, Ann, daughter of John Rogers, by his wife Hester Verveelen, who was living at the date of her father's will, 5 November, 1776, and deceased at the execution of a deed by the heirs of said John Rogers, 8 February, 1777. (See sketch of Samuel Warren.) He married, second, a daughter of Thomas Davenport of Philipstown. His third wife was Thamer, daughter of Elisha Covert, of Cortlandt Manor, whom he had married before 23 September, 1779, when both husband and wife are named in the will of said Covert. (Pelletreau's Wills.) She survived him, and married Captain Samuel Jefferds, a gallant officer of the Revolution, and a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, who after the war resided in Philipstown, now Putnam County. He died in August, 1804, aged fifty-two years, having but one child, Samuel Jefferds. Mrs. Jefferds died 8 March, 1829, aged eighty years, and is buried in St. Peter's graveyard at Peekskill. Peter Warren's children were:

1. Peter Warren<sup>3</sup>.
2. James Warren<sup>3</sup>.
3. John Warren<sup>3</sup>.
4. Beverly Warren<sup>3</sup>, who was called grandson in the will of Thomas Davenport, dated 29 September, 1797 (Dutchess Wills, B, 91, 92), by which he was left the "improvement of the farm he now liveth upon, lying at the fourth corner of the low field by the road and running a straight line to the fourth corner of Cat Hill field, from thence on the same line to John Warren's line." Beverly Warren<sup>3</sup> married Margaret, daughter of Isaiah Krankheyt, by whom he had:
  1. John Warren<sup>4</sup>, who removed to Rochester in 1829.
  2. James Warren<sup>4</sup>.
  3. Henry Warren<sup>4</sup>.

---

JOHN WARREN<sup>2</sup>, the third named among the supposed children of Samuel Warren, was on the tax-list of Philipse Precinct for 1771 and 1779, and is he who enlisted, 5 May, 1778, for nine months in the Second Company, Second Regiment of the New York Line, Captain Benjamin Pelton, Colonel Van Cortlandt, and was discharged 17 February, 1779. Both John and Peter Warren made application for land bounty for Revolutionary service as members of the Seventh Dutchess County militia. (New York in the Revolution.) One John Warren, possibly he above, by wife Jerusha, had sons Peter and John, baptized at Crum Elbow, 9 November, 1760. (Records of St. George's, Hempstead, Long Island.)

SAMUEL WARREN<sup>2</sup>, a brother of Peter<sup>2</sup>, and presumably a son of Samuel, before named, was settled in the Highlands in the Southern District or Philipse Precinct in 1766, as is evidenced by the following letter from Mrs. Livingston to her husband, Judge Livingston:

"CLERMONT, July 12th, 1766.

"With joy I embrace this opportunity of conversing with you, by the 'Mancr Sloop,' since it is the only way now left of conveying our sentiments to each other. We set out from New York in so great a hurry that I could not give myself the pleasure of seeing or the pain of parting with you. We had a very pleasant ride the first day, which brought us to Croton. Here we were detained until the next day by rain, but it is impossible to describe this day's journey; the crags, precipices and mountains, that we had a view of, together with the excessive badness of the roads, that were laid bare by streams of water taking their course through the midst, which made it very disagreeable to me. We could go no further that day than Warren's, who lives in the midst of the Highlands, but the next day made up for the fatigue of this. We had a most charming journey the remainder of the way. We breakfasted at Van Wyck's who lives at Fishkill; dined at Poughkeepsie, slept at Rhinebeck, where we arrived at six o'clock. The next morning which was Sunday, we came home at nine o'clock, and found the family all in good health and spirits. . . ."

The tax-lists of the Southern District of Dutchess County do not commence until 1771, in which year Samuel Warren's name appears, and continues until 1775, when "Samuel Warren's farm" takes the place of his name. His homestead was on the old post road to Albany, on the crest of the Highlands south of Nelson's Mills. Erskine's military map of 1781 locates a line of barracks along the post road near the Warren homestead and in view of West Point and vicinity.

Mr. Warren was killed in 1774/75, by a fall at Franklindale Bridge, and was buried in his orchard. He married, 13 January, 1763, Esther, daughter of John Rogers, of the Highlands, by his wife Hester Verveelen. Through her mother Mrs. Warren represented not only the early Dutch settlers of New York, but several distinct lines of Huguenot ancestry. (See accompanying chart.) John Rogers lived on Canopus Creek, in that part of the Highlands known just after his death as "Continental Village," and which, from its position as the entrance to the Highlands, was a point of great military importance during the Revolution.

Mrs. Warren married (2), before 5 November, 1776, Absalom Nelson, probably son of William Nelson, and grandson of Eli Nelson, one of the early settlers of this part of the Highlands. Under the will of her father, John Rogers, dated as above (New York Calendar of Wills), Mrs. Nelson received certain lands in Dutchess County, for which, by quit-claim deed of 8 February, 1777, she, with others, receipted to the executors, and from which deed the following is abstracted:

"Know all men by these presents that whereas John Rogers late of Philipse Precinct in the County of Dutchess deceased did by his last will and testament dated 5 November, 1776, bequeath his estate to his children John Rogers, Richard Rogers, Benjamin Rogers, Charity Hustis, Esther Nelson and Ann Warren, and appointed Benjamin Rogers and Caleb Nelson executors. . . . Now we, Richard Rogers, John Rogers, Benjamin Rogers, Caleb Hustis and Charity his wife, Absalom Nelson and Esther his wife and Peter Warren in behalf of his wife Ann Warren, since deceased," etc. (Dutchess County Deeds.) *

Mrs. Nelson and her husband Absalom Nelson, after a short residence in Peekskill, whither she had removed shortly after her first husband's death, returned to the Warren homestead in the Highlands. By her second marriage she had but one child, William Nelson, of whom see Notes on the Nelson Family.

The Bible of Samuel and Esther (Rogers) Warren, now in possession of Mrs. Roebling, gives to them the following children:

1. John Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 15 March, 1765; married Sarah Nelson.
2. Samuel Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 15 April, 1768; married Ann Hustis.
3. Elizabeth Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 15 April, 1768.
4. Sarah Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 1 January, 1770; married her cousin John Rogers, son of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Fowler) Rogers, of Fishkill.
5. Peter Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 17 February, 1771; married Catharine Nelson.
6. Justus Warren<sup>s</sup>, born 1772; died in infancy.

* Of the children of John and Hester (Verveelen) Rogers: Charity Rogers, married 26 January, 1757, Caleb Heustis; Richard Rogers, married 13 January, 1763, Elizabeth Warren; Esther Rogers, married on the same day, Samuel Warren; John Rogers, married 5 January, 1768, Phebe Barton (Rombout Presbyterian Church Records); Susanna Rogers, baptized 26 May, 1741 (Poughkeepsie Dutch Church Records), was probably the "Ann" who married Peter Warren; Benjamin Rogers, born 26 August, 1750, married Elizabeth, daughter of Christopher Fowler,† by his wife Sarah Vincent, born 30 August, 1757, and had issue: Absalom, John, Benjamin, Elizabeth, Mary, Elijah, and Sarah.

Notes on the Warren Family

7. Susanna Warren<sup>3</sup>, born 18 October, 1773; died 20 October, 1854; married Josiah Mekeel, son of Uriah and Francis (Davenport) Mekeel. He died 29 November, 1849, aged eighty years. Both husband and wife are buried in Cold Spring Cemetery.
8. Daniel Warren<sup>3</sup>, born 1 January, 1774; married Susannah Knapp.

CAPTAIN JOHN WARREN<sup>3</sup>, the eldest son of Samuel and Esther (Rogers) Warren, was born in the Highlands-on-Hudson, 15 March, 1765, was baptized 22 February, 1767 (Rombout Church Records), and died in the Highlands, 1 September, 1837. On 4 March, 1805, he purchased of Amos Belden two hundred and fifty acres of land in Philipstown, which he shortly afterwards reconveyed to the said Amos Belden. (Dutchess County Deeds, xii. 633.) He afterwards purchased sundry other tracts of land in Philipstown, one from Thomas Searles, bordering partly on the farm of Peter Warren, Highland turnpike, road leading to the river, and Cat Hill; another, under date of 28 June, 1821, from Frederick Philipse and Maria his wife (Putnam Deeds, B, 13-15); one from Edward Buckbee, sheriff of Putnam County, 9 October, 1826, which he conveyed to Joseph Parks, 30 November, 1832 (H, 164); and still another from Samuel Gouverneur and Mary his wife, by deed of 1 May, 1832 (I, 42-44; M, 245). His home farm, of several hundred acres, lay at the junction of Highland turnpike and the old post road. About 1805 he built a mill on the stream that flowed near by where the mill of James Nelson now stands. He executed his will 21 January, 1837, under which his legatees were sons Cornelius, Henry, and Sylvanus (who were also the executors thereof), John, and Samuel; grandsons Sylvanus D. and Isaac, children of son John; grandchildren Henry Samuel J., and Charles Haight, sons of daughter Polly, deceased; grandchildren Sarah Hannah, Benjamin, Cornelia, Margaret, and Eunice Davenport; daughter Susan, wife of Elijah Davenport, and her daughter Sarah Jane; granddaughter Sarah, the child of son Sylvanus; son John's present wife and family. (Putnam County Wills, Liber D, folio 70.) Mr. Warren was buried in the church-yard of St. Philip's at Garrisons-on-Hudson, where gravestones to himself and wife are erected.

Blake's History of Putnam County, New York, published in 1849, ends a somewhat lengthy notice of John Warren, Esq., in these words: "He aspired to no higher distinction than that of a plain practical farmer, which he was. The purity of his motives and the honesty of his heart were never questioned; and in all the relations of life he never gave just cause of offence to his neighbor. He died, regretted and beloved by all who knew him, in 1837, in the seventy-second year of his age. His children, so far as we know them, inherit his virtues."

He married, in 1783, Sarah Nelson, daughter of Justus Nelson by his wife Mary Haight, born 1 January, 1766; died 2 November, 1833, and was buried beside her husband in St. Philip's church-yard. Children, all born in Philipstown:

SYLVANUS WARREN<sup>4</sup>, ESQ., youngest son of Captain John<sup>3</sup> and Sarah (Nelson) Warren, was born at Philipstown, now Cold Spring-on-Hudson, 15 November, 1799, and died there 19 February, 1859.

He was one of the executors of his father's will, and under date of 1 April, 1839, joined with his brothers Cornelius and Henry in executing a deed to John W. Brinkerhoff, of Fishkill, in consideration of $16,750, for lands which John Warren purchased of Thomas Searls, bounded partly by the farm of Peter Warren, Highland turnpike, the road leading to the river, and Cat Hill; also for lands conveyed to John Warren in his lifetime by Frederick Philipse and Maria his wife, by deed bearing date 23 June, 1821 (Putnam County Deeds, Liber B, folios 12-15), and by Samuel Gouverneur and Mary his wife under deed dated 1 May, 1832, in all about three hundred and fifty-four acres. (Putnam County Deeds.) Mr. Warren was a member of the New York Assembly of 1843. He was also a member of Philipstown Lodge, No. 236, of Free and Accepted Masons, and at a meeting of the Lodge held at Philipstown, Saturday evening, February 19, 1859, his death was announced by the presiding officer in feeling language, and, on motion, a committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sorrow of the Lodge. The resolutions drafted and adopted were as follows:

“DEARLY BELOVED BRETHREN:

“It is with pain that we heard of the death of our worthy Brother, Sylvanus Warren, who expired in the village this afternoon about two o'clock.

“Again and again within the past few months have we been called upon to mourn the loss of our departed brethren, but the story of sadness has come up to us from a distance, and while we have been bowed down with sorrow, yet we have felt more prepared for it; but now, indeed, has death knocked audibly at the door of our Lodge, and we have beheld one of our most esteemed and tenderly beloved brethren torn from our very midst, and the voice which we all so much loved to hear in life has been hushed in the cold and icy embrace of death, and “ ‘Sad images of the stern agony and pall

And breathless darkness and the narrow house
Makes us to shudder and grow sick at heart.’

“ It is not consonant with the present purpose to eulogize Brother Warren; his life, whose daily scenes have been enacted in our very midst, is its own best eulogy.

“ It has fallen to the lot of but few men to fill so large a sphere of home usefulness as Brother Warren. In all movements for the amelioration of suffering he was ever among the foremost. In all his dealings he was upright and just, and the timorous in business knew at all times that with him they were safe.

“ His associations with our Fraternity were always marked with great gentleness and kindness, and he always loved the brethren, and it is needless to say here that these feelings were entirely reciprocated.

“ O how often are we led to exclaim with the poet,—

“ ‘The good die first,
And they whose hearts are dry as summer dust
Burn to the socket.’

“ Alas! our brother, may the earth that nourished thee lie lightly on thy bosom, and on the glorious morning of the Resurrection may thy body arise as incorruptible as thy soul.

“ Brethren, we are spared, but, like the sands in the hour-glass, we are rapidly passing away. Let us be wise in time, that we may be the better prepared to meet the realities of an untried eternity.

“ We offer, in conclusion, the following resolutions:

“ WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God our Heavenly Father to call from among us another member of our Fraternity; and

“ WHEREAS, The name of our late worthy Brother Sylvanus Warren is now added to the list of those whose departure we are called upon to mourn; therefore,

“ Resolved, That in the death of Brother Sylvanus Warren his family have lost an affectionate and indulgent husband and father, our Fraternity a valued and much-esteemed member, our community an honorable and upright citizen, who has sustained an unblemished reputation throughout all the trying vicissitudes of life, and who leaves behind him an unimpeachable reputation and a name that will ever be remembered with respect by all who knew him; therefore,

“ Resolved, That we condole and sympathize with the afflicted family and relatives of our deceased brother, and with heartfelt sorrow mourn with them over his death; therefore,

“ Resolved, That, as a token of respect for our deceased brother, our Lodge-room be draped in mourning for the space of sixty days, and the brethren wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

"On motion, the foregoing Preamble and Resolutions were accepted and ordered to be engrossed on the minutes, and the Secretary transmit a copy to the family of our deceased Brother.

MAJOR-GENERAL GOVERNEUR KEMBLE WARREN<sup>o</sup>; the eldest surviving child of Sylvanus Warren<sup>4</sup>, Esq., by his wife Phebe Lickley, was born 8 January, 1830; died 8 August, 1882, and was buried in the cemetery at Newport, Rhode Island. He married, in Baltimore, 17 June, 1863, Emily Forbes, daughter of Algernon Sydney Chase, of that city.

It would be difficult for even a loving hand to write a complete sketch of General Warren's life, hence the writer has concluded to present it to the reader as it is shown in the four publications hereinafter printed in full, which are: 1. General Order issued by the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army, announcing the Death of General Warren. 2. Sketch of General Warren, written by his classmate, General Henry Larcom Abbot, U.S.A., and published in the Proceedings of the Association of the United States Military Academy. 3. General Order of the United States Army announcing the Findings, etc., of the Court of Inquiry instituted on the Application of General Warren as to his Conduct in connection with the Battle of Five Forks. 4. General Warren's Account of the Operations of the Fifth Army Corps, in connection with the Battle of Five Forks. A few facts concerning his life, not named in these publications, are here noted. He was elected a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, in 1858; the American Philosophical Society, in 1867; the American Society of Civil Engineers, in 1874, and the National Academy of Sciences, in 1876. A heroic statue of him, by Paul Gerhardt, was unveiled with appropriate ceremonies on Little Round Top, Gettysburg, on August 8, 1888. Among his publications are, "Explorations in the Dacota Country" (two vols., Washington, 1855-1856); "Preliminary Report of Explorations in Nebraska and Dacota in the Years 1855-1857" (1858), and various reports to the government on military and engineering subjects.

GENERAL ORDERS }
No. 5. }

It has become the painful duty of the Brigadier-General Commanding to announce to the Corps of Engineers the death of a brother officer, Lieutenant-Colonel GOUVERNEUR K. WARREN, Brevet Major-General, United States Army, who died at Newport, R. I., yesterday.

General Warren was graduated from the Military Academy and promoted to the rank of Brevet Second Lieutenant in the Corps of Topographical Engineers, July 1, 1850. He served as Assistant Engineer on the topographical and hydrographical survey of the Delta of the Mississippi, 1850-52, and to the Board for the improvement of Canal around the Falls of the Ohio, 1852-53; in charge of Surveys for the improvement of Rock Island and Des Moines Rapids, Mississippi River, 1853-54; in compiling the General Map and Reports (conjointly with Captain, now General, A. A. Humphreys) of Pacific Railroad Explorations, 1854; as Chief Topographical Engineer on Sioux Expedition, 1855, being engaged in the action of Blue Water, September 3, 1855; in charge of reconnoissances in Dakota Territory, and making Map and Report of same, 1855-56, and in Nebraska Territory, 1856-57, and preparing Maps and Reports thereof, 1857-59.

He was Assistant Professor of Mathematics at the Military Academy, 1859, and Principal Assistant Professor, 1859-61.

He entered upon his distinguished service in the late civil war (1861-66) in the Department of Virginia, as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fifth New York Volunteers, being engaged in the action at Big Bethel Church, June 10, 1861. He was engaged on the defenses of Baltimore, and constructing Fort on Federal Hill, 1861-62, being temporarily detached on expedition to Northampton and Accomac Counties, Va., 1861; in the Virginia Peninsula Campaign (Army of the Potomac), 1862, being engaged in the siege of Yorktown, April 11-May 4, 1862, and in command of Brigade, May 24, 1862; skirmish on Pamunkey River, May 26, 1862; capture of Hanover Court-House, May 27, 1862; battle of Gaines' Mill, June 27, 1862, where he was wounded; repulse of Wise's Division at Malvern Hill (in command), June 29, 1862; battle of Malvern Hill, July 1, 1862, and skirmish at Harrison's Landing, July 2, 1862.

In the Northern Virginia Campaign, 1862, he was engaged in the battle of Manassas, August 30, 1862, and skirmish near Centreville, September 1, 1862. He was in command of Brigade (Army of the Potomac) in the Maryland Campaign, 1862, being engaged in skirmishes and battle of Antietam, September 15-17, 1862; skirmish with the enemy's rear-guard on the Potomac, September 19, 1862; and march to Falmouth, Virginia, 1862. In the Rappahannock Campaign, 1862-63, he was in command of Brigade till February 4, 1863. He then became Chief Topographical Engineer of the Army of the Potomac, and was engaged in the battle of Fredericksburg, December 13-16, 1863; making reconnoissances, 1862-63; action on Orange Pike, May 1, 1863; storming of Marye Heights, May 3, 1863, and battle of Salem, May 3-4, 1863, and as Chief Engineer of the Army of the Potomac, June 8 to August 12, 1863.

In the Pennsylvania Campaign he was engaged in charge of the re-embarkation of stores at Aquia Creek, 1863; reconnoissance and battle of Gettysburg, July 1-3, 1863, where he was wounded; and construction of bridges, and making reconnoissances while pursuing the enemy, July-August, 1863.

He was in command of Second Corps (Army of the Potomac), from August 12, 1863, to March 24, 1864.

In the operations in Central Virginia, he was engaged in movement to Culpeper and the Rapidan, September 13-16, 1863; combat at Auburn and Bristoe Station (in command), October 14, 1863; skirmish at Bull Run, October 15, 1863, and at Kelly's Ford, November 8, 1863; movement to Mine Run, with heavy skirmishing, November 26-30, 1863, and demonstration upon the enemy across Morton's Ford, February 6, 1864.

He was in command of Fifth Corps (Army of the Potomac), from March 24, 1864, to April 1, 1865.

In the Richmond Campaign he was engaged in the battle of the Wilderness, May 5-6, 1864; battles about Spottsylvania, May 8-20, 1864; battles of North Anna, May 23-25, 1864; skirmish on Tolopotomy Creek, May 29, 1864; battle of Bethesda Church, May 30, 1864; battles of Cold Harbor, June 1-4, 1864; skirmish on White Oak Swamp, June 13, 1864; assaults on Petersburg, June 17-18, 1864; siege of Petersburg, June 18, 1864-April 2, 1865; Petersburg Mine assault, July 30, 1864; actions for the occupation of the Weldon Railroad, August 18-25, 1864; combat of Peebles' Farm, September 30, 1864; action at Chapel House, October 1, 1864; skirmishes near Hatcher's Run, October 27-28, 1864; destruction of Weldon Railroad to Meherrin River, December 7-10, 1864; combat near Dabney's Mill (in command), February 6-7, 1865; actions and movement to White Oak Ridge, March 29-31, 1865; battle of Five Forks, April 1, 1865.

MAJOR-GENERAL GOVERNEUR KEMBLE WARREN
AS A CADET AT WEST POINT

---

He was in command of the defences of Petersburg and Southside Railroad, April 3–May 1, 1865; in command of the Department of the Mississippi, May 14–30, 1865, and was at New York City preparing Maps and Reports of his campaigns, June 20, 1865, to July 31, 1866.

General Warren was promoted successively from the grade of Lieutenant to that of Lieutenant-Colonel, Corps of Engineers, and Major-General, U. S. Volunteers. He received the brevets of Lieutenant-Colonel, U. S. Army, "for gallant and meritorious services at the battle of Gaines' Mill," Va., 1862; Colonel, U. S. Army, "for gallant and meritorious services at the battle of Gettysburg," Pa., 1863; Brigadier-General, U. S. Army, "for gallant and meritorious services at the battle of Bristoe Station," 1865, and Major-General, U. S. Army, "for gallant and meritorious services in the field during the Rebellion," 1865.

Since the close of the War he has been Superintending Engineer of surveys and improvements of the Upper Mississippi and its tributaries, 1866–70; of survey of the Battlefield of Gettysburg, Pa., 1868–69, and survey of the Battlefield of Manassas, 1878; of Rock Island bridge across the Mississippi, 1870; of the fortifications of New London and New Haven, Conn., 1870–74; of the improvement of certain rivers and harbors on Long Island, 1870–74; of construction of Block Island Breakwater, R. I., 1870–82.

He was a Member of Commission to examine Union Pacific Railroad and Telegraphic Lines, 1868–69, and Member of many important Boards of Officers of the Corps of Engineers organized for the consideration of the plans and the execution of the works of the Corps, among which were the Board on Improvement of the Des Moines Rapids, 1867; Board on Bridge across Niagara River, at Buffalo, N. Y., 1870–71; on Bridging the Ohio River, 1870–71, and 1878–82; on plan for docks constructed for Breakwater at Chicago Harbor, Ill., 1871; on the completion of Cincinnati and Newport Bridge over the Ohio, 1871; on the harbors of St. Louis, Mo., and Alton, Ill., and Banks of the Mississippi, 1872; on Bridging the channel between Lake Huron and Lake Erie, 1873; on Ship Canal from the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, 1873–74; to examine the St. Louis Bridge across the Mississippi, 1873; on the reclamation of the Alluvial Basin of the Mississippi, 1874–75; on Mississippi Bridges between St. Paul, Minn., and St. Louis, Mo., 1876, and on the improvement of the Mississippi River, from the Falls of St. Anthony to Rock Island Rapids, 1878. He was engaged in the survey of the Battlefield of Groveton, Va., and in the preparation of campaign maps of certain operations in 1862–63 of the Army of the Potomac in Virginia.

He was appointed a Member of the Advisory Council of the Harbor Commissioners of the State of Rhode Island, 1878.

In 1870, General Warren was assigned to the charge of the surveys and improvements of various rivers and harbors in southeastern Massachusetts; and in Rhode Island and Connecticut, on which duty and in the supervision of the construction and repair of the fortifications of New Bedford, Mass., of Narragansett Bay, and of Newport, R. I., he remained until the time of his death.

In scientific investigations General Warren had few superiors; and his elaborate reports on some of the most important works which have been confided to the Corps of Engineers are among the most valuable contributions to its literature.

In the field, in the late civil war, he was a brave and energetic officer, and in the high command to which he attained by his patriotic valor and skill, he merited the admiration of the army and the applause of his country.

He was kind and considerate in all the relations of life, and his family in its affliction will have the hearty sympathy of the Corps of Engineers.

As a testimonial of respect for the deceased, the officers of the Corps will wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

GOUVERNEUR KEMBLE WARREN.

No. 1451. CLASS OF 1850.

Died August 8, 1882, at Newport, R. I., aged 52 years.

It would be useless to attempt within our narrow limits to review the life work of a man so distinguished in many fields of honorable ambition as was General Warren. His scientific record will find a place in the memoirs of the National Academy of Sciences, of which he was long a member. It is peculiarly for us, sons of a common alma mater, to cherish the memory of his soldierly achievements, which have reflected honor upon ourselves and upon our profession.

GOUVERNEUR KEMBLE WARREN was born on January 8, 1830, at the village of Cold Spring, within hearing of the morning and evening gun at West Point. He was the fourth in a family of twelve children—eight sons and four daughters. As a boy he was educated at the schools of his native place, and for one year at Kinsley's Classical and Mathematical School near West Point, where he was a student when his Cadet appointment was received. He entered the Military Academy on July 1, 1846, at the early age of sixteen, and was graduated on July 1, 1850, standing second in a class of forty-four members. He was at once assigned to the Corps of Topographical Engineers, in the grade of Brevet Second Lieutenant.

The first duty which devolves upon a young officer often exerts an enduring influence upon his professional character; and Lieutenant Warren was fortunate in the experience which he gained as assistant to Captain (now General) Humphreys upon the investigations and surveys of the Mississippi delta. The work was onerous, and peculiar circumstances threw him into more than usually intimate relations with his chief, for whom he formed a strong personal attachment which lasted through life.

Lieutenant Warren's first opportunity for original research occurred in 1854, when he was assigned to the duty of compiling a general map of the region west of the Mississippi. The country was then a wilderness intersected by a few lines of reconnoissance, and the work demanded laborious and judicious analysis. The resulting map and memoir, dated in 1858, exhausts all valuable material from the earliest discoveries to its date, and will remain a standard historical authority. This work was performed under the pressure of other duties and largely at night. During its progress he devoted much labor to the joint report (1854) of Captain Humphreys and himself upon Pacific Railroad explorations, and also conducted three separate explorations in Dakota and Nebraska.

The first of these explorations was made as the Engineer officer of General Harney's staff, in his campaign against the hostile Sioux, memorable for the victory of Blue Water Creek on September 3, 1855. One little incident connected with this expedition illustrates Warren's character. He had been sent up to the Missouri to Fort Pierre on duty, while the column was forming at Fort Kearney. Time was lacking to rejoin General Harney by water before the march began. The direct overland route (300 miles) led through the heart of the enemy's country and was wholly untravelled and unknown. Against the earnest advice of his brother-officers at Fort Pierre, including the commanding officer, who regarded his destruction as certain, Warren organized a little band of seven half-breeds and prairie men, successfully made the march in two weeks, and mapped his route. This exploit, apparently so rash, was in truth the result of an intelligent study of the chances. The weather was yet too warm for the probable formation of roaming war parties, especially as it was the season for making "sweet corn." By using no tents or fires at night, and by marching under cover of darkness when near an enemy, Warren reasoned that the well armed and alert little band could run the gauntlet—and he was right. Throughout his life he never lacked sagacity to plan or courage to execute.

Lieutenant Warren's explorations of 1856 and 1857, covering many hundred miles, were made with small parties among powerful and semi-hostile tribes, for the purpose of obtaining the information necessary for subduing them and for opening the country to civilization. He was the first explorer of the now celebrated Black Hills, passing through their eastern, southern, and western outskirts. His well digested report and military map of Nebraska and Dakota have been of great value, both in the development of the country and for the scientific information that they contain.

After nine years of this varied and active services, Lieutenant Warren was ordered in 1859 to West Point, in the department of mathematics, and he remained there until the outbreak of the Civil War.

He brought to the strife an intellect fitted for high command, a courage which knew no fear and shrunk from no responsibility, a judgment ripened by responsible duties, and earnest patriotism free from fanatical bias, and an energy so indomitable that it carried his delicate frame through labors and exposures which broke down many men of stronger physique. Like most soldiers of conscious ability, he despised the vulgar arts and clap-trap which form the stock in trade of coarser natures; and his magnanimity to the vanquished equalled his stubborn persistence during the contest.

The position of Lieutenant-Colonel of the Fifth New York Volunteers was very early tendered to Lieutenant Warren; and having received a leave of absence with permission to accept a volunteer command, he was mustered into the service in that grade on May 14, 1861. The regiment, as soon as organized at Fort Schuyler, was ordered to report to General Butler at Fortress Monroe, and at once proceeded south by sea. It came under fire for the first time in the affair at Big Bethel, fought on June 10, 1861, where Lieutenant-Colonel Warren was conspicuous for coolness and good judgment. He was the very last to leave the field, having remained to rescue at the risk of his life the body of his friend, Lieutenant John T. Greble, Second Artillery—the first in our little band of regular officers to die for the cause of National unity. Warren went back with about ten men, on learning of his death, and leaving them under cover advanced alone and carried the body in his arms to an abandoned limber, which was then drawn off by the party.

On August 31, 1861, he was promoted to be Colonel of the Fifth New York. During the remainder of the year the regiment was stationed in Baltimore, where it was engaged in constructing the large earth-work on Federal Hill, and in receiving the thorough drilling which made it confessedly one of the very best regiments in the service.*

When the Army of the Potomac moved to the Peninsula in the spring of 1862, the Fifth New York accompanied it. Before Yorktown it formed part of the siege train under the command of General Barry, Chief of Artillery, Colonel Warren in addition doing much personal reconnoitering of the enemy's lines as an Engineer. The regiment was in camp near General McClellan's headquarters; and no officer who witnessed the daily dress parades of his 800 soldiers in brilliant zouave uniform and splendidly drilled, could fail to recognize the skill of the young Colonel as a disciplinarian and regimental commander.

After the advance began (on May 24), Colonel Warren was assigned to the command of the Third Brigade in Sykes' Division of the Fifth Army Corps, consisting of his own and two other Infantry Regiments, a Cavalry Regiment, and a Light Battery. With this Brigade he covered the extreme right of the army; and took part in the capture of Hanover Court House; the pursuit of Stuart's Cavalry after the brilliant raid round our rear (marching his Infantry 43 miles in 37 hours); the battle of Gaines' Mill, where he was slightly wounded, and his horse was twice shot under him; the affair of Malvern Hill on June 30, and the great battle there of the following day. The Brigade lost 60 or 70 men killed and 150 wounded in these operations, chiefly in the battle of Gaines' Mill, and Colonel Warren was highly commended for gallantry and good conduct.

* The Prince de Joinville in 1862, in writing of our volunteer army, said,—

“ Sometimes an officer of the regular army, desirous of distinguishing himself, and having enough of influence in his State, raised a regiment and obtained from it an admirable result. Thus, a young Engineer Lieutenant named Warren was marvellously successful with the Fifth New York Regiment, of which he was the Colonel. The regiment served as Engineers and Artillery in the siege of Yorktown; and having again become Infantry conducted itself as the most veteran troops at the battles of the Chickahominy, where it lost half its force.”

After leaving the Peninsula, Colonel Warren's Brigade was landed at Aquia Creek and took part in the movements of the Fifth Corps to reinforce General Pope. In the desperate battle fought near Manassas, on August 30, 249 out of 490 soldiers of his own regiment were killed and wounded, and his bull-dog tenacity did much to cover the withdrawal of the remnants of the Corps.

Recommended by his superior officers, and urgently pressed by General McClellan, he was appointed on September 26, 1862, Brigadier-General of Volunteers for distinguished conduct at the battle of Gaines' Mill. He had in the meantime been engaged with his brigade in the Maryland campaign and the battle of Antietam. His command passed through Harper's Ferry on November 1, marched to Falmouth and took part in the Rappahannock campaign and the battle of Fredericksburg.

While the army lay in the winter cantonments General Warren did much individual work in reconnoitering and correcting the maps; and finally, on February 2, 1863, he was ordered as Chief Topographical Engineer to the staff of General Hooker, who had just assumed command of the Army of the Potomac. The two Corps of Engineers were consolidated by Act of Congress approved March 3, 1863; and on June 8, General Warren was appointed Chief Engineer of the Army of the Potomac, acting in that capacity until August 12. During the six months in which he thus served on the staff, his papers prove that he discharged highly responsible duties. In the Chancellorsville campaign he took a gallant part in the action of Orange Pike, the storming of Marye's Heights, and the battle of Salem.

Few better illustrations of the intensity of life at this time can be given than the circumstances attending General Warren's marriage with Miss Emily F. Chase of Baltimore, then residing with her father in that city. Hastening from the front, he arrived at 9 A.M. on June 17; was married at noon; and on the 20th was back at his post actively engaged in the movement toward Gettysburg. The life-long sympathy and love of his noble wife lightened many hours of despondency under the burden of wrongs which otherwise might have proved unendurable to a man of his proud and sensitive nature.

At Gettysburg, where he was slightly wounded, General Warren brilliantly distinguished himself as an engineer staff officer. On the second day of the battle (July 2d), after a personal examination of the right of the line near Culp's Hill, where an offensive movement on our part was in contemplation, he was drawn to the left by Longstreet's furious attack. At the moment when Hood, having outflanked Sickles' Corps, was thrusting forward his right, Warren had fortunately reached the bold and rocky spur called Little Round Top—the key to the whole Union position. It was entirely undefended, although occupied as a signal station. Appreciating the vital importance of the Confederate movement, Warren ordered the signal men, who were preparing to avoid capture by flight, to continue waving their flags and thus preserve a semblance of occupation while he hurried for troops. He soon encountered the head of Sykes' column hastening to support Sickles, and assumed the responsibility of diverting Vincent's brigade to seize and occupy the hill, using General Meade's name as his staff officer. How gallantly this movement was executed in a desperate hand to hand conflict, in which Vincent and Weed, O'Rourke and Hazlitt, and hundreds of other soldiers in blue laid down their lives, is a matter of history. It was one of the many turning points of this, the supreme battle of the war, and but for Warren's military coup d'œil and prompt acceptance of responsibility, Gettysburg might now be known as the grave of the Union.*

The passage of the Potomac after the battle of Gettysburg afforded an illustration of the curious expedients upon which the success of engineer operations often depends. The pontoons had been scuttled, and, as was supposed at the time, destroyed, in the preliminary operations of the campaign. It now became necessary to patch and repair the shattered boats at once; and at General Warren's personal suggestion, this was done successfully with cracker-boxes obtained from the Subsistence Department.

On August 8 General Warren was appointed Major-General of Volunteers, to date from May 3, when he had distinguished himself with General Sedgwick's column at the storming of Marye's Heights and the battle of Salem. On August 11 he was assigned to the temporary command of the Second Corps. He had thus in two years, without influence other than the recommendations of his commanding officers, fairly fought his way from the command of a regiment to that of an army corps.

His first important service in this grade occurred in Lee's flank march upon Centreville, in October, 1863. On the night of the 13th, when the Confederate army reached Warrenton, the Second Corps, forming the rear guard of the Army of the Potomac, bivouacked at Auburn, distant only about 5 miles. Neither army commander knew accurately the position or line of march of the other, but both were manoeuvring to bring on a decisive battle. The march ordered by General Meade * Compte de Paris, in his "History of the Civil War," frequently mentions General Warren, and always in complimentary terms. He refers to Little Round Top as a "position easy to defend and impossible to recapture," and states that "Warren alone seems to have then understood" the importance of the position, and that when it was "about to fall into the hands of the enemy, . . . the young general of the engineers makes a last effort to save it," and he then proceeds to tell the story of how this effort succeeded.

In his account of the battle at Bristow Station he mentions General Warren as one "whom no incident of the battle escapes," and concludes the account in these words: "Warren has again shown the coup d'œil, the coolness, and the activity which marks him as a distinguished commander."

In connection with the earlier battle of Manassas, the Compte de Paris describes Warren as "the young chief, . . . with that war instinct for which he was always distinguished."—[EDITOR'S NOTE.]

for the Third, Fifth, and Second Corps on October 14 lay along the Alexandria Railroad toward Centreville, Lee's supposed objective. During the night of October 13 General Stuart, with a brigade of Cavalry, found himself entangled among the Second Corps, and just before daylight opened suddenly with artillery upon the camp fires of Caldwell's division. An infantry attack by General Ewell followed promptly from the opposite direction. Although repelled, these attacks delayed the Second Corps; so that when it reached Bristoe Station a small gap existed between its leading division (Webb's) and the rear of the Fifth Corps, next in advance. The head of General A. P. Hill's Corps struck this gap and immediately attacked. The moment was critical, but General Warren, who was on this spot, was equal to the emergency. With the utmost promptitude his two leading divisions were faced to the left and hurried forward under fire to seize the railroad embankment and cut, thus securing a strong line. A sharp attack by General Hill in line of battle was vigorously repulsed, and 450 prisoners, 2 stands of colors, and 5 pieces of artillery, were captured. Warren held this position for some hours with a force of less than 8000 men, confronting the whole of Hills' Corps (numbering about 17,000 men), gradually increased by the whole of Ewell's Corps during the afternoon. At dark he was reinforced by part of the Fifth Corps; and during the night was ordered to continue his march toward Centreville. He crossed Bull Run about 4 A.M. with his wounded and captures, having in 24 hours twice repulsed the enemy in superior force and marched over 25 miles. The total loss of the Second Corps in killed and wounded was 433 officers and enlisted men; and of the Confederates, in killed and wounded, 782 officers and enlisted men. General Humphreys, then Chief of Staff of the Army of the Potomac, writes: "The handling of the Second Corps in this operation, and the promptitude, skill and spirit with which the enemy was met were admirable, and might form an excellent model for the conduct of the rear-guard."

General Meade, in an order published to the Army, said: "The skill and promptitude of Major-General Warren and the gallantry and bearing of the officers and soldiers of the Second Corps, are entitled to high commendation."

General Warren's next conspicuous service was in the Mine Run movement of November, 1863. On the 29th, with his own Corps and a division of the Sixth, he reached a position on the extreme right of the enemy, which, after careful examination, he reported favorable for assault. General Meade ordered a combined attack, to begin by an assault by Warren's command (reinforced during the night by two divisions of the Third Corps) at 8 o'clock on the following morning. At daylight General Warren discerned that the opportunity had passed; for during the night reinforcements had arrived and had so strongly entrenched the position as in his belief to render its capture hopeless. He had the moral courage to assume the responsibility of suspending the movement; and General Meade after an immediate personal inspection confirming his judgment, the useless effusion of blood was spared. This action of a young General in temporary command of a Corps, displaying a willingness to sacrifice his own future prospects rather than squander the lives of his soldiers, illustrates the character of the man.

At the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac into three Corps for the Richmond campaign, General Warren was assigned by the President (March 24, 1864) to the permanent command of the Fifth Corps. Space is lacking to trace his personal career during the year in which he held this high command. It will find a place in every true history of the war. Suffice it to say that he played a conspicuous and honorable part in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Bethesda Church, Cold Harbor, and especially in the numerous battles around Petersburg. Everything that ability and skill, and personal gallantry and devotion to the cause could do, Warren did; and he received the highest reward of a successful General—the confidence, the love and the support of his soldiers. This latter is no vague statement; but is based upon the personal knowledge of the writer at the time, confirmed by many letters from officers of distinction now on file. Indeed the wildly enthusiastic greeting of the whole Fifth Corps on its return through Petersburg, establishes its truth beyond cavil.

We come now to the battle of Five Forks. The operations which culminated in this decisive action are fully established by sworn testimony before the court of inquiry which General Warren, after nearly fifteen years of persistent effort, succeeded in obtaining from the President. Space permits a brief summary only of the more salient points; but history cannot now fail to do him ample justice.

At sunset of March 31 the Fifth Corps occupied the extreme left of the Union position; and General Sheridan's cavalry was at Dinwiddie Court House—distant about five miles to the left and rear. Both had been severely attacked during the day, and the latter was still confronted by infantry and cavalry. At 8.40 P.M. General Warren himself suggested that he be allowed to move in force against the rear of the enemy operating against General Sheridan. On his own responsibility, as early as 5 P.M., he had despatched a strong brigade with orders to attack that force; and in consequence of this movement the Confederates withdrew during the night from General Sheridan's front.

About 7 A.M. of April 1, the Fifth Corps and the Cavalry effected a junction, and under command of General Sheridan prepared for a combined attack upon the enemy—then at Five Forks, a detached position about four miles to the westward of the Confederate main intrenched line before Petersburg. The country was much wooded. The cavalry was early disposed along the enemy's front, the Fifth Corps (12,000 men) being left massed at J. Boisseau's until ordered forward about 1 P.M. About 4 P.M. it had advanced about 2½ miles, and formed near Gravelly Run Church ready to assault.

promptly changed front, assaulted and finally handsomely carried this angle, taking many prisoners. This movement left the other divisions advancing in air with only a cavalry force to oppose them, and Warren hastened in person to change Crawford's direction to the left, having previously sent orders to Griffin to move to his left and come in on the right of Ayres. The country was rough and wooded, and the position of the enemy had been supposed by General Sheridan to extend much more to the eastward than was actually the case. Hence the primary importance of these movements, in order to bring the whole Fifth Corps into action.

In this difficult task Warren was everywhere—first with Crawford's division, establishing the new line of advance; then with Griffin, directing him upon the enemy lying along the west side of Sydnor field—whose exact position he had just discovered by drawing their fire upon himself; then to Ayres, finding him in possession of the angle with many prisoners; then back to Crawford, and conducting the advance through the woods so as continually to outflank the enemy in his attempt to form new lines to cover his natural retreat (the Ford Road) and to hold the position at the forks. Finally Crawford's division, still accompanied by Warren, and having swept everything before it, found itself on the east side of the Gilliam field, but somewhat disorganized by the fighting through difficult woods. Confronting it on the west side was a new and last line of the enemy slightly entrenched.

Here a pause occurred, and personal magnetism seemed called for to lead on the troops who for the moment had lost their organizations in the confusion. Warren having discharged the more pressing duty of directing the whole force of his Corps upon the enemy, now found time to yield to his natural impulse. He seized his headquarters flag, rode into the opening, and calling on the color-bearers to advance, led the charge. His horse fell dead under him close to the enemy's lines; an orderly by his side was killed; and his own life was probably saved by the gallant act of Colonel Richardson, Seventh Wisconsin, who sprang between him and the enemy, receiving a severe wound. This charge put an end to all resistance. Surrounded by his captures and flushed with victory, Warren sent back a staff officer to report to General Sheridan and ask for further orders.

These orders came in writing. They relieved him from the command of his Corps and ordered him to report to General Grant.

If the bullet which killed his horse pierced the heart of the rider, Warren, like Wolfe dying upon the Heights of Abraham, would have gone down in history the hero of the battle. This order, more cruel than the bullet, doubtless caused his death after seventeen years of suffering which intimate friends who understood his sensitive organization can alone appreciate. It is pitiful that one of his last requests was to be laid in the grave without the usual military ceremonial, without soldierly emblems on his coffin, or uniform upon his body. The iron had entered his soul.

General Grant, on April 3, assigned him to the command of the defenses of Petersburg and the South Side Railroad, and on May 14 he was transferred to the important command of the Department of Mississippi; but on May 27, as soon as he felt assured that the fighting was over, he resigned his volunteer commission of Major-General, and returned to duty as Major in the Corps of Engineers. He received several brevets in the regular army for gallant and distinguished services in battle, but with such a record as his they need not be named.

Of his services in the civil branches of his profession since the war I shall here say nothing. They covered a wide range of subjects, and would give him prominence among eminent engineers in any country. The Corps order of General Wright, announcing his death, contains the following fitting tribute to these labors: "In scientific investigations General Warren had few superiors; and his elaborate reports on some of the most important works which have been confided to the Corps of Engineers are among the most valuable contributions to its literature."

The lives of few graduates more perfectly illustrate the fruits of what we are proud to call West Point culture than that of General Warren. Everything with him was subordinated to duty, and he put forth his whole strength in whatever he had to do. His tastes were cultivated and refined, and his reading in both literature and science was extensive. A man of warm affections and sympathetic nature, he was ever ready to listen to the cry of distress. Even after his long experience in war, the misery of the wounded and the severe hardships of all his soldiers in some of the winter movements south of Petersburg, so touched his heart that he wrote to his brother: "I do not feel much in my own person, but I sympathize so much with the suffering around me that it seems at times I can hardly endure it." He is now peacefully at rest beyond the reach of praise or censure; but his memory is a sacred legacy to West Point and to the Army of the Potomac. There is no nobler name upon either roll.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 132. }

I. The court of inquiry instituted, on the application of Lieutenant-Colonel G. K. Warren, Corps of Engineers, by direction of the President, in Special Orders, No. 277, December 1, 1879, from this office (as amended by Special Orders, No. 282, December 15, 1879; No. 73, April 2, 1880; and No. 143, June 29, 1880, from this office), and of which Major-General W. S. Hancock was president until June 29, 1880, after which date Brigadier-General C. C. Auger was president, has reported the following statement of facts and opinions as to the conduct of Lieutenant-Colonel Warren, as major-general of volunteers, commanding the 5th Army Corps, at the battle of Five Forks, Virginia, April 1, 1865, and as to the operations of his command on that day and the day previous, so far as relates to his (Warren's) conduct or to the imputations and accusations against him:

FACTS AND OPINIONS.

The first imputation is found in an extract from General Grant's report, on page 1137 of the report of the honorable Secretary of War to the First Session of the Thirty-ninth Congress, as follows (see also record, page 48):

On the morning of the 31st General Warren reported favorably to getting possession of the White Oak road, as was directed to do so. To accomplish this, he moved with one division instead of his whole corps, which was attacked by the enemy in superior force and driven back on the 2d Division before it had time to form, and it, in turn, forced back upon the 3rd Division, when the enemy was checked. A division of the 2d Corps was immediately sent to his support, the enemy driven back with heavy loss, and possession of the White Oak road gained.

Notes on the Warren Family

The facts on this point appear from the evidence to be the following:

At 7.30 P.M. on March 30, 1865, General Meade, then commanding the Army of the Potomac, telegraphed to Lieutenant-General Grant as follows:

IV.*

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,

7:30 p.m., March 30, 1865.

Lt.-Genl. GRANT:

I send dispatch just received from Warren; line working badly. I think his suggestion the best thing we can do under existing circumstances, that is, let Humphreys relieve Griffin and let Warren move on to the White Oak road and endeavor to turn enemy's right—as I understand Warren—Ayres is now between S. and W. Dabney's, liable to be isolated he must either be supported or withdraw; by adopting the proposed plan he will be supported by the whole of the 5th Corps, and they ought to overawe any opposition the enemy can make, except from their intrenchments.

(Signed)

GEO. G. MEADE, Maj.-Gen.

The following dispatch accompanied the above, and is the first and only intimation before the Court as to General Warren's reporting favorably to getting possession of the White Oak road:

V.

(Rec'd here at 4:42 p.m. Glasier.)

7:20. Glasier.]

4 P.M., MCH. 30.

Genl. WEBB, Chf. Staff.

GENERAL: Gen'l Ayres' advance now sees the White Oak road near W. Dabney's for  $\frac{3}{4}$  of a mile. There is a difficult swamp between plank-road and that place. I have now a continuous intrenched line from my right across Griffin's front and along the plank-road nearly down to Gravelly Run. If Gen'l Humphreys can take charge of Griffin's front, about 500 y'ds west of plank-road, with the return down it, I can take my corps and block the White Oak road.

Resp'y,

G. K. WARREN, M. G.

At 8.30 P.M. of the same day Lieutenant-General Grant telegraphed to General Meade as follows:

VI.

8:35 p.m.

(U. S. Military Telegraph.)

By telegraph from Grant's headquarters.

To General MEADE:

You may notify Parke and Wright that they need not assault in the morning. They should, of course, watch their fronts, and go in if the enemy strips to attack on our left, but the idea of a general attack by them is suspended. I have pretty much made up my mind on the course to pursue, and will inform you in the morning what it is. Humphreys and Warren may simply make secure their present position and await further orders.

U. S. GRANT, Lt.-Genl.

Since writing the above your dispatch of 7.30* rec'd. It will just suit what I intended to propose, to let Humphreys relieve Griffin's div. and let that move farther to the left. Warren should get himself strong to-night.

U. S. GRANT, Lt.-Genl.

At 8.45 P.M. of the same day General Meade telegraphed to General Grant as follows:

VII.

HDQRS. A. P., 8:45 p.m., Mar. 30.

Lt.-Genl. GRANT:

I have sent orders to Humphreys to at once relieve Warren's troops holding the Boydton plank-road. I have directed Warren to reinforce and strengthen Ayres, and to hold his whole corps ready to move at daylight, under orders that will be sent him. I have not given him orders what to do, because I infer from your dispatch you will send them to me. I have directed Parke and Wright not to attack towards morning, but to be prepared to assume a threatening attitude and actually attack if any opportunity presents itself or orders are sent to them. I am at a loss to account for the delay in transmission of my dispatch of 7.45. This delay will account for my lost dispatch.

(S'g'd)

GEO. G. MEADE, Maj.-Genl.

Mr. Caldwell will report the receipt by Gen'l Grant of this dispatch.

G. G. MEADE.

Notes on the Warren Family

Later in the day General Grant, in answer to the foregoing, directed in the following dispatch that if General Warren had not reached the White Oak road, he should not move up until further orders:

VIII.

(U. S. Military Telegraph. By telegraph from Gravelly Run.)

MARCH 30, 1865.

To Maj.-Genl. MEADE:

Your orders to Warren are right. I do not expect to advance him in the morning. I suppose, however, that he was now up to the White Oak road. If he is not, I do not want him to move up without further orders.

U. S. GRANT, Lt.-Genl.

At 9.40 the next morning General Warren sent the following telegram:

LXXXIV.

Nunan. 9:55 a.m.

9:40 A.M., Mch. 31, 1865.

Genl. WEBB, Chf. of Staff.

I have just rec'd report from Gen'l Ayres that the enemy have their pickets still this side of the White Oak road, so their communication is continuous along it. I have sent out word to him to try and drive them off, or develop with what force the road is held by them.

Resp'y,

G. K. WARREN, Maj.-Genl., Vols.

From the evidence in the record, it appears that the enemy had concentrated three Brigades on the White Oak road, and as soon as General Ayres moved out, in compliance with the orders as reported in the foregoing telegram, he was attacked on his front and left flank, probably about half-past ten, and certainly before eleven o'clock in the morning, by this whole force, numbering according to the testimony, 4,500 to 5,000 men.

The position of the 5th Corps at daylight on March 31st was as follows: The 1st (Griffin's) Division was relieved about day-break from the breastworks west of the plank-road, near "Strouds," by Miles' Division of Humphreys' corps, and posted along and behind the east branch of Gravelly Run, northwest from the Boydton plank-road, its right extending up towards the left of General Humphreys' position. The 2d (Ayres') Division was in front of the Holliday house, about 600 yards south of the White Oak road. The 3rd (Crawford's) Division occupied the part of the works south and east of the Boydton plank-road nearest Gravelly Run.

At 7.35 A.M. of March 31st General Warren reported the positions about to be taken up by the several divisions of his corps as follows:

Appendix

LXXVII.

Nunan. 8:6 a.m.

Genl. WEBB, Chf. Staff.

Gen'l Griffin's troops will be massed near Mrs. Butler's; General Ayres', near S. Dabney's; Gen'l Crawford, about half-way between. They are along a wood road running from near Mrs. Butler's to W. Dabney's, on the White Oak road. It is not practicable now for wheels, and there is a very difficult branch of Gravelly Run that runs south from the White Oak ridge, joining the main stream at the crossing of the plank-road, which will take a long time to make practicable for wagons. I have all the pioneers I can spare at work on it. I will send you a sketch.

Resp'yly,

G. K. WARREN, M.-G.

These positions according to this telegram as shown in evidence, were located by the "photographic or one inch map," the one mainly used in the Army of the Potomac. This map and the sketches based on its use by the officers in command were insufficient and inaccurate guides for that section, and "the road he was to keep" took General Ayres to the Holliday house, as given on the Michler and skeleton maps, a mile to the eastward of the position of "S. Dabney's."

At 7 o'clock that morning General Warren had issued the following order:

LXXIV.

HEADQUARTERS 5TH ARMY CORPS, Mch. 30 (31), 1865, 7 a.m.

Bvt. Maj.-Genl. CRAWFORD.

Withdraw all your pickets south of those established by Gen'l Ayres, then move with your whole division out and mass it by a house occupied by a colored man, and then replace Gen'l Ayres' pickets from left of General Humphreys up to a point north of the negro house. Make your headq'rs at that house. Leave the pioneers of two brigades to begin to make a bridge across the stream for the passage of artillery. Major Cope will go with you and assist you in carrying out this order.

By command of Maj.-Genl. Warren:

FRED. T. LOCKE, Bvt. Col., A. A. G.

By this order the 3rd (Crawford's) Division was to be massed by a house "occupied by a colored man," which was the Holliday house; so that when General Crawford moved out he found himself close upon General Ayres. General Ayres "borrowed" from him one brigade as a support. The other two brigades of the 3d (Crawford's) Division were to the right and in rear of Ayres' division. The 1st (Griffin's) division was still posted, as previously described, along and behind the east branch of Gravelly Run. These were, substantially, the positions of the three divisions of the 5th Corps at the time the reconnoissance commenced.

General Warren was at his headquarters on the Quaker road, in telegraphic communication with General Meade, until about 10 o'clock in the morning; about this hour General Ayres began his reconnoissance. After his advance had proceeded about three hundred yards the enemy "rose up along the White Oak road" and advanced to the attack, and with the result as reported in the following dispatch.

---

LXXXVI.

Genl. WEBB, Chf. of Staff.

GEN'L: Gen'l Ayres made an advance with a small force at 10 A.M., which the enemy drove back and followed up in heavy force, compelling both Ayres and Crawford to fall back on Griffin, and, of course, in much confusion. Griffin's troops held the enemy at the run west of the plank-road. Gen'l Miles' division afterwards attacked the enemy and was forced back on my right. My skirmish line in front of Griffin, most of it, has advanced on the left. I am going to send forward a brigade from my left, supported by all I can get of Crawford and Ayres, and attack swinging on our right. Arrangements are being made for this, and it will take place about 1.45 P.M. if the enemy does not attack sooner.

Resp't'y,

G. K. WARREN, Maj.-Genl.

OPINION.

There seems to be no evidence that General Warren on the morning of March 31st, or any other time, reported favorably to getting possession of the White Oak road, except in his dispatch (V.) of 4 P.M. March 30th, already referred to, and the movement suggested in that was, practically, set aside by General Grant's dispatch (VIII.) of March 30th, heretofore quoted. General Warren's report in his dispatch (LXXXIV.) of 9.40 A.M. March 31st, quoted above, that he had given orders to drive the enemy's pickets off the White Oak road or develop what force of the enemy held it, could not be fairly construed as being able to take possession of it.

With regard to that portion of the imputation contained in the statement that General Warren was directed to take possession of the White Oak road, the following dispatch from General Meade is the only one that can bear that construction:

LXXXV.

U. S. M. T.

HQRS. ARMIES U. S., 10:30 a.m., Mar. 31, 1865.

Nunan.

To Maj.-Genl. G. K. WARREN.

Your dispatch giving Ayres' position is received. Gen'l Meade directs that should you determine by your reconnoissance that you can get possession of and hold the White Oak Road, you are to do so, notwithstanding the orders to suspend operations to-day.

---

And the evidence before the court shows that this order was not received by General Warren till after the fighting that resulted from the attempted reconnoissance had begun.

It is in evidence by Ayres' and Crawford's testimony that General Warren had in his advance two divisions, though the testimony does not clearly show how long before the attack of the enemy upon Ayres the division of Crawford reached him.

Griffin's division was held in reserve along the branch of Gravelly Run nearest to and northwest from Boydton plank-road, and it may have been so held to carry out the intentions of the following dispatch from General Meade's headquarters:

LXXIX.

(U. S. M. T.)

Nunan. 8:32 a.m.

HQRS. A. OF P., 8:25, Mar. 31, 1865.

To Maj.-Gen. WARREN.

There is firing along Humphreys' front. The maj.-gen. com'd'g desires you to be ready to send your reserve, if it should be called for, to support Humphreys. There will be no movement of troops to-day.

(S'd)

A. S. WEBB, B. M.-G.

Rec'd 8:40 a.m. G. K. W.

The court is further of the opinion that, considering the 5th Corps constituted the extreme left wing of the armies operating against Richmond, and that the corps was in a delicate position, and liable to be attacked at any moment, of which liability General Warren had been repeatedly warned, he should have been with his advanced divisions, guiding and directing them, and that he should have started earlier to the front than he did, and not have waited at the telegraph office to keep in communication with General Meade's headquarters, unless he had direct orders that morning so to do, which, however, does not appear in the evidence.

The second imputation is found in the following extract from General Sheridan's report of May 16, 1865 (see record, pages 21 and 48), as follows:

* * * had General Warren moved according to the expectations of the Lieutenant-General, there would appear to have been but little chance for the escape of the enemy's infantry in front of Dinwiddie Court House.

REPORT.

The position of the 5th Corps on the afternoon and night of March 31st is indicated by the following telegram:

---

Genl. WEBB, Chf. of Staff.

GEN'L: We have driven the enemy, I think, into his works. The prisoners report Gen'l Lee here to-day, and that their breastworks are full of men. We have prisoners from a portion of Pickett's and Johnson div'ns. The enemy fire artillery up the White Oak road from their works nearly a mile to our right of where we struck the road; at this point their right retires to the rear. I have just seen Gen'l Miles, who is close up, he says, to their works, which have heavy abattis in their front.

Resp'y,

G. K. WARREN, M.-G.

The exposed situation of the 5th Corps, which occupied the extreme left of the lines about Petersburg, was, on the afternoon and evening of the 31st of March, an object of grave anxiety to Lieutenant-General Grant, as appears in his dispatch to General Meade, as follows:

XXIV.

DABNEY'S MILLS, March 31, 1865.

Major-General MEADE.

The operators at my headquarters have gone to the wrong place or are still back. If at your headquarters will you please have them sent here to-night? I think Warren should be instructed to send well down the White Oak road, and also southwest from his left, to watch and see if there is any enemy in either direction. I would much rather have Warren back on the plank-road than to be attacked front and rear where he is. He should intrench front and rear of his left at least, and be ready to make a good fight of it if he is attacked in the morning. We will make no offensive move ourselves to-morrow. If rations were not got up to-day they should be in the morning.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-General.

will be ordered to push up and to connect with your right. You might, if you think it worth while, push a small force down the White Oak road and try to communicate with Sheridan, but they must take care not fire into his advance.

By order of Gen'l Meade:

ALEX. S. WEBB, B. M.-G., C. o. S.

The tidings received later of the enemy's successful advance against Major-General Sheridan, by which the latter had been pushed back to Dinwiddie Court House, must have deepened the impression, already entertained, of Warren's exposed position, as manifested in the following dispatch:

XCIV.

U. S. M. T.

8 p.m. Nunan.

To Maj.-Gen. WARREN.

Dispatch from Gen'l Sheridan says he was forced back to Dinwiddie C. H. by strong force of cavalry supported by infantry. This leaves your rear and that of the 2d Corps on the Boydton plank-road open, and will require great vigilance on your part. If you have sent the brigade down the Boydton plank it should not go farther than Gravelly Run, as I don't think it will render any service but to protect your rear.

(S'd)

GEO. G. MEADE, Maj.-Genl.

The brigade mentioned in the preceding dispatch was a force of three regiments under Colonel Pearson, which had previously been ordered by General Warren, by way of the plank-road, to the succor of General Sheridan at the Dinwiddie Court House, in compliance with former instructions from General Meade.

General Warren had previously, of his motion and after noticing that the firing in the direction of Sheridan was receding towards Dinwiddie Court House, sent Bartlett's brigade of Griffin's division on the Crump road to the rear of the enemy, who were menacing Sheridan at Dinwiddie, with directions to attack.

Warren was afterwards notified to be ready to withdraw to the Boydton plank-road, as follows:

ALEX. S. WEBB, Bvt. M.-Genl.

---

Warren, on the receipt of the above, suggested, in case the left of the line was not threatened south of Gravelly Run and east of the plank-road, that he should be permitted to "move down and attack the enemy at Dinwiddie on one side and Sheridan on the other;" and he sent the following dispatch in which he did not particularize the route or the time, and obviously intended to move with the whole corps:

XCVII.

Genl. WEBB, Chf. Staff.

The line along the plank-road is very strong. One division, with my artillery, I think can hold it. If we are not threatened south of Gravelly Run, east of the plank-road, Gen'l Humphreys and my batteries, I think, could hold this securely and let me move down and attack the enemy at Dinwiddie on one side and Sheridan on the other. From Bartlett's position they will have to make a considerable détour to reinforce their troops at that point from the north. Unless Sheridan has been too badly handled I think we have a chance for an open field fight that should be made use of.

Resp'y,

G. K. WARREN, M.-G.

He was ordered to draw back to the Boydton plank-road, and to send Griffin's division by that road to Dinwiddie to report to General Sheridan, and haste was enjoined in sending the division, as follows:

U. S. GRANT, Lt.-Genl.

General Sheridan was notified, by the dispatch as seen below, that Bartlett's brigade was at Crump's house (he was really at G. Boisseau's, near by, and had probably received his recall to his division on the White Oak road); that Griffin's division had been ordered down the Boydton plank-road to join him; and that Warren would attack at daylight with two divisions by the Crump road.

Major-Gen'l SHERIDAN:

Gen'l Meade has directed all the spare ambulances he can get hold of to go down to Dinwiddie. Bartlett's brigade is at Crump's house, on Gravelly Run. Griffin, with three brigades, is ordered down Boydton plank to attack in rear of force menacing you. Gen'l Grant is requested to authorize the sending of Warren's two other divisions down the dirt road, past Crump's, to hold and cover that road and to attack at daylight.

The above dispatch should be dated between 10:15 p.m., March 31st, and 10:45 p.m., on March 31st, 1865.

NEW YORK CITY, Feb'y 24, 1881.

General Meade sent a dispatch at 10:15 p.m., received by Warren at 10:50, directing him (General Warren) for the first time to move two divisions by the road Bartlett was on and to strike the enemy in rear; explaining that, should the enemy turn on him, his line of retreat would be by J. M. Brooke's and R. Boisseau's to the plank-road. General Meade urged him to be very prompt in this movement, in order to get to the forks of the road at J. M. Brooke's before the enemy, so as to open to R. Boisseau's.

To Maj.-Gen. WARREN.

Send Griffin promptly, by the Boydton P. R., but move the balance of your command by the road Bartlett is on and strike the enemy in the rear, who is between him and Dinwiddie. Gen'l Sheridan reported his last position as north of Dinwiddie Court House, near Dr. Smith's, the enemy holding the cross-roads at that point. Should the enemy turn on you, your line of retreat will be by J. M. Brooks' and R. Boisseau's, on Boydton plank-road. See one-inch maps. You must be very prompt in this movement and get the forks of the road at J. M. Brooks' before the enemy, so as to open to R. Boisseau's. The enemy will probably retire toward the Five Forks, that being the direction of their main attack this day. Don't encumber yourself with anything that will impede your progress or prevent your moving in any direction across the country. Let me know when Griffin starts and when you start.

GEO. G. MEADE, Maj.-Genl.

Acknowledge receipt.

Regarding the foregoing, as General Warren had already been informed by a staff officer, Colonel Cope, that Bartlett, at G. Boisseau's, had the enemy along his front along the south bank of the branch of Gravelly Run, near Crump's, it was impossible by any promptitude of movement to obey his instructions, as the enemy already occupied the objective point named by General Meade.

By dispatch XCVIII. (before quoted), received by General Warren at 9:17 p.m., he was first directed to send Griffin's division to join Sheridan, by the Boydton plank-road, as one of the brigades (Bartlett's) of this division was already at G. Boisseau's, by reason of the delay in getting Bartlett back. Ayres' and Crawford's divisions were ordered to move back, first to the plank-road, and Griffin to follow so soon as Bartlett rejoined him, and proceed to Dinwiddie.

(General Orders, No. —.)

HEADQUARTERS 5TH ARMY CORPS,

March 31, 1865, 9:35 p.m.

I. General Ayres will immediately withdraw his division back to where it was massed yesterday, near the Boydton plank-road.

II. General Crawford will follow Gen'l Ayres and mass his troops behind the entrenchments near Mrs. Butler's.

III. Gen'l Griffin will immediately withdraw Gen'l Bartlett to his present position, then move back to the plank-road and down it to Dinwiddie Court House, and report to Gen'l Sheridan.

IV. Capt. Horill, with the escort, will remain where Gen'l Griffin's headquarters now are till day-break and then come back to the plank-road, bringing in all stragglers.

V. Division commanders, in executing this movement, which is ordered by Gen'l Meade, to see that none of their pickets or any portion of their troops are left behind.

VI. Gen'l Ayres and Gen'l Crawford will have their troops under arms at day-break, and the chief of artillery will have all the batteries in readiness to move.

By command of Maj.-Gen. Warren:

FRED. T. LOCKE, Bvt. Col., A. A. G.

Shortly afterwards, from an examination ordered for the purpose, it was reported by a staff officer that the bridge on the plank-road over Gravelly Run was much broken, and the stream was not fordable for infantry.

Finally, in consequence of the confusion it was supposed would be created by changing the order of the divisions, it was determined by Warren to send Ayres, instead of Griffin, to Dinwiddie.

CXII.

HDQRS. 5TH A. C., 1:20 a.m., Apr. 1.

Genl. MEADE.

I think we will have an infantry bridge over Gravelly Run sooner than I could send troops around by the Quaker road. But if I find any failure, I will send that way. I have sent Benyard* 2 hours ago with what he thought necessary to make it practicable in one hour, and I trust to that. I am sending to Gen'l Sheridan my most available force.

Resp'y,

G. K. WARREN, Maj.-Genl.

After sending Ayres to report to Sheridan, Warren waited until some time between 5 and 6 a.m. before moving the other two divisions by the Crump road to make the rear attack.

Warren finally received the following from General Sheridan:

CXIV.

Rec'd 4:50 a.m., April 1st. G. K. W.

I am holding in front of Dinwiddie C. H., on the road leading to Five Forks, for three-quarters of a mile, with General Custer's division. The enemy are in his immediate front, lying so as to cover the road just this side of A. Adams' house, which leads out across Chamberlain's bed or run. I understand you have a division at J.* Boisseau's; if so, you are in the rear of the enemy's line, and almost on his flank. I will hold on here. Possibly they may attack Custer at daylight; if so, have this division attack instantly and in full force. Attack at daylight anyway, and I will make an effort to get the road this side of Adams' house, and if I do you can capture the whole of them. Any force moving down the road I am holding, or on the White Oak road, will be in the enemy's rear, and in all probability get any force that may escape you by a flank attack. Do not fear my leaving here; if the enemy remain I shall fight at daylight.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj.-Genl.

And about daybreak Warren left his headquarters, at the Wilson house, near the plank-road, for the White Oak road, where he put in motion Griffin's and Crawford's divisions across the country to the line of the Crump road, the head of the column starting between 5 and 6 o'clock. Griffin went first, in column of route, and the rear brigade of Crawford in line of battle, to resist any adverse movement of the enemy entrenched along the Clairborne road.

The distance from the White Oak road, where the 5th Corps was posted on the evening and night of the 31st of March, to Dinwiddie Court House was about six and one-half miles, and although General Ayres did not reach that place but was turned off, his division marched an equivalent distance.

The distance from the position of Griffin and Crawford, on the White Oak road, to J. M. Brooke's, the point on the direct road from Dinwiddie Court House to Five Forks that General Warren was ordered, during the night of the 31st of March, at the hour of the receipt of General Meade's order of 10.15 P.M., to attain with two divisions, was about four and one-half miles.

It appears from the evidence that there had been heavy rains on two or three days prior to the night of March 31st and April 1st, and the roads were very muddy and the streams were full. The condition of the roads is shown by the following telegrams:

Owing to the heavy rain this morning the troops will remain substantially as they now are, but the 5th Corps should to-day draw three days' more rations.

* Lieutenant-General Sheridan testified that he was in error in saying "J. Boisseau's house;" that he "should have said Dr. G. LINCOLN, A., President, City Point.

In my dispatch this morning I made a mistake in saying Ord lost nothing in the attack made on him this a.m. His casualties were about 30 killed and wounded. He reported no casualties in Turner's div., which led me into the error. The quicksands of this section exceed anything I have ever seen. Roads have to be corduroid (sic.) in front of teams and artillery as they advance. We were 56 hours moving 600 teams 5 miles, with 1,200 men to help them. Through the woods where it is perfectly dry for infantry, horses will go through so deep as to scarcely be able to extricate themselves. I have nothing special to report at this time.

(S'g'd) U. S. GRANT, Lieut.-General.

Official:

GEO. K. LEET, A. A.-G.

General Ayres' column reached J. M. Brooke's after some delay, caused by having passed the Brooke's road about a mile a little after day-break. He was turned back and off the plank-road and directed to that point by a staff officer of General Sheridan. The head of the column under the command of General Warren reached J. Boisseau's about 7 a.m. of the 1st of April. The enemy began to withdraw their infantry from Dinwiddie in the direction of Five Forks about 2 a.m., April 1st.

Warren in dispatch XCV., of March 31st, 8:20 p.m. (see the series of dispatches in record), asked, "Does Sheridan still hold Dinwiddie?" to which no reply was made, so far as the dispatches and the evidence in the record show. Also, in dispatch CXI., received by Warren at 1. a.m., April 1st, General Meade said: "Sheridan cannot maintain himself at Dinwiddie without re-enforcements, and yours are the only ones that can be sent."

General Warren claims to have delayed action, in moving the two divisions to make the flank and rear attack by the Crump road, until he would hear either that Sheridan still held Dinwiddie or that Ayres had joined him.

It was not until 4.50 a.m., April 1st, that he received Sheridan's dispatch, CXIV., above quoted, stating in its closing paragraph, "Do not fear my leaving here; if the enemy remain I shall fight at daylight."

OPINION.

It is supposed that "the expectations of the Lieutenant-General" referred to in the imputation are those expressed in his dispatch to General Sheridan of 10.45 p.m. of March 31, 1865, as follows:

CLXXIX.

DABNEY'S MILLS, March 31, 1865, 10:45 p.m.

Maj.-Gen. SHERIDAN.

The 5th Corps has been ordered to your support. Two divisions will go by J. Boisseau's and one down the Boydton road. In addition to this I have sent McKenzie's* cavalry which will reach you by the Vaughn (Vaughan) road. All these forces, except the cavalry, should reach you by 12 to-night. You will assume command of the whole force sent to operate with you and use it to the best of your ability to destroy the force which your command has fought so gallantly to-day.

U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant-General.

In which he says, "All these forces, except the cavalry, should reach you by 12 to-night." If this supposition be correct, the court is of the opinion, considering the condition of the roads and surrounding country over part of which the troops had to march, the darkness of the night, the distance to be travelled, and the hour at which the order for the march reached General Warren, 10.50 p.m., that it was not practicable for the 5th Corps to have reached General Sheridan at 12 o'clock on the night of March 31st.

Notwithstanding that dispositions suitable for the contingency of Sheridan's falling back from Dinwiddie might well have occupied and perplexed General Warren's mind during the night, the court is of the opinion that he should have moved the two divisions by the Crump road in obedience to the orders and expectations of his commander, upon whom alone rested the responsibility of the consequences.

It appears from the dispatches and General Warren's testimony that neither Generals Meade, Sheridan, nor Warren expressed an intention of having this column attack before daylight.

The court is further of the opinion that General Warren should have started with two divisions, as directed by General Meade's dispatch (CIV., heretofore

* MacKenzie's.

quoted), as early after its receipt, at 10.50 p.m., as he could be assured of the prospect of Ayres' departure down the Boydton plank-road, and should have advanced on the Crump road as far as directed in that dispatch, or as far as might be practicable or necessary to fulfil General Meade's intention; whereas the evidence shows that he did not start until, between 5 and 6 o'clock on the morning of the 1st of April, and did not reach J. Boisseau's with the head of the column till about 7 o'clock in the morning.

The dispatches show that Generals Meade and Warren anticipated a withdrawal, during the night, of the enemy's forces fronting General Sheridan, which was rendered highly probable from the known position in their rear of a portion of the 5th Corps (Bartlett's brigade) at G. Boisseau's; and the event justified the anticipation.

The third imputation is found in an extract from General Sheridan's report of May 16, 1865 (see record, pages 21 and 48), as follows:

* * * * General Warren did not exert himself to get up his corps as rapidly as he might have done, and his manner gave me the impression that he wished the sun to go down before dispositions for the attack could be completed.

On the afternoon of April 1st, the 5th Corps was massed as follows: Crawford's and Griffin's divisions at the forks of the Crump road and the main road from Dinwiddie Court House to Five Forks, and Ayres' division on the Brooke's road, about one-quarter of a mile east from the forks of that road and the road to Five Forks. The distance from the position of Griffin and Crawford to the place of formation of the 5th Corps, near Gravelly Run church, was about two and one-quarter miles, and the length of the corps when spread out in column of route would be about two and three-quarters miles. The last file of the column required as much time to reach the place of formation as it would have taken to march about five miles.

General Warren received his orders near Gravelly Run church to move up his corps at 1 p.m., and it took some time to communicate those orders to the division and for the movement to begin.

The route to the place of formation was along a narrow road, very muddy and slippery, somewhat encumbered with wagons and led horses of the cavalry corps, and the men were fatigued. The testimony of brigade and division commanders is to the effect that the corps, in line of march, was well closed up, and that no unnecessary delay was incurred. The corps reached its destination and was formed ready to advance against the enemy about 4 p.m.

It is in evidence that General Warren remained near Gravelly Run church directing the formation, explaining the mode of attack to the division and brigade commanders, with sketches prepared for the purpose.

---

General Warren also repeatedly sent out staff officers to the division commanders, in order to expedite the march.

OPINION.

The court is of the opinion that there was no unnecessary delay in this march of the 5th Corps, and that General Warren took the usual methods of a corps commander to prevent delay.

The question regarding General Warren's manner appears to be too intangible and the evidence on it too contradictory for the court to decide separate from the context that he appeared to wish "the sun to go down before dispositions for the attack would be completed," but his actions, as shown by the evidence, do not appear to have corresponded with such wish, if ever he entertained it.

The fourth imputation is found in an extract from General Sheridan's report of May 16, 1865 (see record, pages 22 and 48), as follows:

"During this attack I again became dissatisfied with General Warren. During the engagement portions of his line gave way when not exposed to a heavy fire, and simply from want of confidence on the part of the troops, which General Warren did not exert himself to inspire."

When the 5th Corps moved up to the attack General Sheridan said to General Ayres, "I will ride with you." General Warren was on the left of Crawford's division, between Crawford and Ayres. When General Ayres' command struck the White Oak road it received a fire in flank from the enemy's "return" nearly at right angles to the road. He changed front immediately at right angles and faced the "return," his right receiving a fire from Munford's Confederate division of dismounted cavalry, distributed along the edge of the woods to the north of White Oak road. There was some confusion, which was immediately checked by the exertions of General Sheridan, General Ayres and other officers.

The evidence shows that General Warren was observant of Ayres, because he sent orders to Winthrop's reserve brigade to form on the left of Ayres' new line. This necessary change of front of Ayres increased the interval between him and Crawford, on his right. The latter was marching without change of direction until, as he expressed it, he would clear the right of Ayres, when he was also to change front to the left.

At this moment Warren, who saw that Crawford, with Griffin following, was disappearing in the woods to the north of the White Oak road, sent a staff officer to Griffin to come as quickly as he could to sustain Ayres, went himself to the left brigade of Crawford, and caused a line to be marked out facing to the west, directing the brigade commander to form on it, then went into the woods and gave orders to the right brigade of Crawford to form on the same line. When he returned to the open ground the brigade he had directed to change front had disappeared, as appears by the evidence, in consequence of orders given by an officer of General Sheridan's staff. General Warren sent repeated orders by staff officers, to both Griffin and Crawford, to change direction, and went himself to both, and finally by these means corrected, as far as was possible under the circumstances, the divergence of these two divisions.

It appears from evidence that these two divisions were operating in the woods and over a difficult country, and received a fire in their front from the dismounted cavalry of Munford, posted in the woods to the north of the White Oak road, which led to the belief, for some time, that the enemy had a line of battle in front; and this may furnish one reason why it was so difficult at first to change their direction to the proper one.

OPINION.

General Warren's attention appears to have been drawn almost immediately after Ayres received the flank fire from the "return" and his consequent change of front, to the probability of Crawford with Griffin diverging too much from and being separated from Ayres, and by continuous exertions of himself and staff substantially remedied matters; and the court thinks that this was for him the essential point to be attended to which also exacted his whole efforts to accomplish.

II. The proceedings and foregoing report of the court of inquiry having been laid before the President, the findings and opinion of the court are, by this direction, published to the Army.

III. By direction of the Secretary of War the court of inquiry of which Brigadier General C. C. AUGUR, U. S. Army, is president is hereby dissolved.

INTRODUCTION.

THE confidence shown by the Commander-in-Chief in selecting me for the command of the Department of Mississippi, then the theatre of actual warfare, immediately after the battle of Five Forks, I deemed a thorough vindication of my conduct on that memorable occasion.

I felt, though denied the official investigation which I had applied for, that I could leave my justification before the public to the ultimate publication of the official reports. I trusted, too, Gen. Sheridan's report would do me justice, and that he could not fail in it to acknowledge that his treatment of me was hasty and based on erroneous impressions. The publication of this report, dated May 16, in the Official Gazette, disappointed this hope, for therein, as far as mention is made of me, it is in terms of disparagement and in efforts to justify his inconsiderate action.

After this publication I thought the investigation I sought could not long be denied, and I have remained silent till now, fully believing an impartial investigation would relieve me of the imputations of Gen. Sheridan, and place just censure on those by whom I have been wronged.

To bring my professional grievances before the public is a thing from which I have shrunk, and I do not do so now from any love of controversy. If circumstances were different I should be glad to avoid it; but the facts being little known and understood, and there being many misrepresentations, I am under this necessity. I have, therefore, prepared the following narrative of facts in much detail, so that each one can examine and judge for himself, as, I presume, all fair-minded men, whose time will permit, will gladly do.

*This account was written by General Warren, and published by him in 1866.
(New York: William M. Franklin, Printer.)

Appendix

---

In the report* of Gen. Sheridan there are three imputations against me—the first of which, is vaguely made, in the following:

“Had Gen. Warren moved according to the expectations of the Lieutenant-General, there would appear to have been but little chance for the escape of the enemy’s infantry in front of Dinwiddie C. H.”

If such expectations were formed, they were not reasonable, according to the facts. I acted during the night under orders from Gen. Meade, which, with my dispatches to him, and other facts, will be given. It will appear that the enemy held all the roads necessary for his escape; that he withdrew from Gen. Sheridan’s front to Five Forks early in the night, and that the swollen state of Gravelly Run and a broken bridge prevented my troops from reaching Gen. Sheridan till daybreak. It also will appear that the tenor of my orders from Gen. Meade were not that I was to prevent the escape of the enemy, but to use every exertion to succor Gen. Sheridan, who could “not maintain himself at Dinwiddie C. H. without reinforcements.” My dispatches show that it was my own suggestion to attempt to intercept the enemy if he remained in Gen. Sheridan’s front, and not fall back, as I was at first ordered.

The second imputation is contained in the following:

“Gen. Warren did not exert himself to get up his Corps as rapidly as he might have done, and his manner gave me the impression that he wished the sun to go down before dispositions for the attack could be completed.”

The facts of the movements of the troops in coming up to this point are all given in the statements of Brevet Brig.-Gen. Bankhead, who carried my order to the troops to move up while I rode forward to examine the ground on which they were to form; and in the letters of Generals Crawford, Griffin, and Ayres, who commanded my three divisions. I present them here in their proper place in the narrative, and they are conclusive that I and my troops exerted ourselves to form for the attack as rapidly as possible.

While the troops were forming I told Gen. Sheridan it would occupy till 4 P.M., at which time they were formed, and at which time the sun was two and a half hours high. Certainly I could not have expected the sun to go down before the “dispositions for the attack could be completed,” nor have given him reason to think I wished it. I had at the time confidence in the success of our proposed attack, and the kindest feelings toward Gen. Sheridan, under whom I was glad to serve. I am utterly at a loss to account for the misapprehension he labored under in imputing such baseness to me, and I trust my conduct throughout the war has shown to those by whom I am best known that I am incapable of it.

* Extracts from this report, giving all that relates to me, are placed in the appendix to this narrative.

---

---

“During this engagement portions of his line gave way when not exposed to a heavy fire, and simply from want of confidence on the part of the troops, which Gen. Warren did not exert himself to inspire.”

I had, at the time of the engagement, to control the movements of an entire corps d'armée, fighting and changing front as it advanced through the forests. It is clearly a case for the exercise of a corps commander's judgment, how far he shall at any time give his personal efforts to the general control of his corps, or assist his subordinate commanders in the commands, and whether he shall use his staff and himself to rally troops who break under a not very severe fire, from want of confidence, or to so direct other portions of his command as to thereby remedy the evil which this giving way produced. Whatever is vital to the success of the whole is the thing deserving the corps commander's attention, and to that, throughout, I gave mine. On account of the forest Gen. Sheridan saw but one flank of the operations of my command, and was no further cognizant of my exertions. He saw nothing of the fighting of Gen. Crawford's division, which suffered more from the enemy's fire than any other. There was no part of my command that did not witness my exertions at one time or another, and my horse was fatally shot close to the enemy's breastworks. To those who served under me I refer for proof of my exertions, and, as they represent every section of our country, any one who wishes can verify my assertion by those around him.

If Gen. Sheridan had stated which of my troops misbehaved for want of my presence, I could bring the evidence of their commander to bear in my defense. But how this exertion could have been specially required of me I am at loss to understand; for he says himself, “I cannot speak too highly of the troops in this battle and the gallantry of their commanders.”

The duty of every soldier to obey has its correlative which entitles him to the protection of those under whom he serves, and this I have been denied.

Gen. Sheridan says:

“I therefore relieved him from the command of the Fifth Corps, authority for this action having been sent to me before the battle, unsolicited.”

From the time that authority reached him he, apparently, sought occasion to use it. I say this with regret; but the tone of the report toward me, and his hasty action, indicate that it was so. If a victory won by my command, under my direction, could not gain me credit, where the plans made were, as he says, “successfully executed,” and where my efforts and directions were known to almost every one then nothing could.

Gen. Grant, while giving the above authority to Gen. Sheridan, had never signified to me, in the remotest manner, any dissatisfaction with me. I had had no direct official relations with him. My instructions all came through Gen. Meade, and to him all my reports were made. If Gen. Grant had ever expressed himself displeased with me to Gen. Meade, the latter had kept it from me; and he ever showed, by intrusting to me the advance of the army on many vital occasions, and often sending me on detached expeditions, the highest confidence in me, and this is well known.

---

I shall further reply to the imputations of Gen. Sheridan while giving the narration of the events to which they relate, which narration, I hope, will possess an interest of its own, independent of its defense of me.

NARRATIVE.

In order to introduce the battle of Five Forks intelligently, I will first describe the previous operations of March 29th, 30th, and 31st, and shall do so but briefly, in order to confine attention particularly to the 1st of April and the orders of the night before.

My command, on March 29th, consisted of Gen. Crawford's Division, five thousand two hundred and fifty strong; Gen. Griffin's Division, six thousand one hundred and eighty strong; and Gen. Ayres' Division, three thousand nine hundred and eighty strong. I took with me, as directed, only five four-gun batteries, under Gen. Wainwright. I had no cavalry, except an escort of forty men, under Capt. Horrell.

All the cavalry of the army, except head-quarter escorts, was with Gen. Sheridan, whose operations were to be so distinct from mine that I was ordered to act entirely independent of any protection he could give my flanks. My position throughout was on the left flank of the infantry and artillery, army of Gen. Meade.

To facilitate the understanding of the subject, I have added to my narrative a reliable map, on a scale of one mile to an inch. The region represented is of the character common in Virginia, level, much covered with thick and tangled woods, and well watered by numerous small, swampy streams. The soil was clayey or sandy, which, when commingled in wet places, partakes of the nature of "quick-sand," and where, upheaved by the winter frosts that now had left it, presented little less support to wheels or hoofs than would a bank of snow.

I enumerate here the officers of my staff, not merely because it is due to them whenever the operations of the 5th Army Corps are considered, but also to point out those to whom any one can specially refer for the correctness of what I write. This staff has had probably as much experience in the actual warfare as any other that could be named. It consisted of Col. H. C. Bankhead, Inspector-General, and Major Wm. T. Gentry, Commissary of Musters, both graduates of the United States Military Academy; of Col. F. T. Locke, Adjutant-General, which position he had held from the organization of the corps, in May, 1862; of Col. A. L. Thomas, Chief Quarter-Master; of Col. D. L. Smith, Chief Commissary of Subsistence; of Col. T. R. Spencer, Medical Director; of Dr. Chas. K. Winne, Medical Inspector; and of Capt. Malvern, Chief Ambulance Officer, and B. Halstead, Lieut. and A. A. G. To these, for the time, was added Capt. Wm. H. H. Benyaurd, of the Regular Engineers, detached from Gen. Meade's staff to accompany me, and who gave me most important assistance, as also did Major Van Bokkelen, of the Volunteer Engineer Brigade, who joined us with a light canvas pontoon train. My personal aides-de-camp were Major E. B. Cope, a most valuable topographical officer; Capt. James S. Wadsworth, son of the lamented Gen. James S. Wadsworth; and Capt. Gordon Winslow, son of the like lamented Rev. Gordon Winslow.

BATTLE OF QUAKER ROAD.

We left our camp, in the rear of the lines at Petersburg, at three A.M., on March 29th. We moved south, across Rowanty Creek, below the junction of Gravelly and Hatcher's Run, took the road thence to Dinwiddie C. H., as far as the Quaker road, then turned up this latter, and crossed Gravelly Run.

A sharp engagement took place between a division of the enemy and my advance, consisting of Gen. Griffin's Division, at the Old Saw-Mill site, in which Gen. Griffin drove the enemy back to the junction of the Quaker road and Boydton Plank-road, inflicting upon him a severe loss, and losing himself three hundred and sixty-seven killed and wounded.

It commenced raining in the night, and continued to do so heavily all day on the 30th. During this day, Gen. Griffin's line was advanced, with heavy skirmishing up the Boydton Plank-road, so as to confine the enemy, near Burgess' Mill, to his breastworks along the White Oak Road. A reconnoissance by General Ayres' Division was also made, as far west as where the enemy's line along the White Oak Road turned northward to Hatcher's Run, and our picket line established near the White Oak Ridge. Finding on personal examination that, though we could see the road, our pickets did not occupy it, I directed this occupation to be made that evening.

BATTLE OF WHITE OAK RIDGE.

Toward daylight on March 31st, Gen. Griffin's Division was relieved by a portion of the Second Army Corps. At 7h. 35m. A.M., in answer to a dispatch of Gen. Webb, requesting to be informed of the location of my troops, I sent the following:

"Gen. Griffin's troops will be massed near Mrs. Butler's, Gen. Ayres near S. Dabney, Gen. Crawford about half-way between. They are along a wood-road running from near Mrs. Butler's to W. Dabney's, on the White Oak Road. It is not practicable now for wheels, and there is a very difficult branch of Gravelly Run that runs south from the White Oak Ridge, joining the main stream at the crossing of the plank-road, which will take a long time to make practicable for Wagons. I have all the pioneers I can spare at work on it. I will send you a sketch."

---

It must be noticed here that, at this time, we were quite ignorant of the country I was operating in, and the following corrections are now necessary in the above dispatch. The place, "S. Dabney's" did not exist, though on our printed maps. The place taken for S. Dabney is marked on the map, "unknown." The road, instead of joining the White Oak Road at W. Dabney's does so near "Butler's." Gen. Griffin's Division was just north of Mrs. Butler's, but this name was given to indicate the approximate location on the map.

The space occupied by the troops extended but little beyond a mile. Gen. Crawford's Division was in juxtaposition with Gen. Ayres, and massed ready to fight in any direction. Gen. Ayres was cautioned to be prepared to meet the enemy's attack both from the north and west, and reconnoissances were being made to gain a full knowledge of the country.

At 8h. 40m. A.M., I received the following dispatch from Gen. Webb:

"There is firing along Gen. Humphreys' front. The Major-General commanding desires you to be ready to send your reserve, if it should be called for to support Gen. Humphreys. There will be no movement of troops to-day."

To this I at once sent the following reply:

"Your dispatch of 8h. 25m. A.M., is just received. There is a good deal of musketry firing going on in our lines, by the men firing off their guns to put in fresh loads. Unless I break loose entirely from Gen. Humphreys, I think the force he sent to relieve Gen. Griffin is much more than, under any circumstances, would be needed there. My troops are, however, at all times as ready to move as it is possible to keep them for a long time. If the enemy break Gen. Humphreys' line at any time, or threaten to do so, I shall not wait for orders to assist him, if I can."

At 8h. 50m. A.M., I received the following from Gen. Humphreys:

"Please let me know where your right will rest, that I may connect with you. Gen. Miles has relieved Gen. Griffin, and I find a vacant space on his left."

To this I at once replied as follows:

"I send you a sketch of the country west of the plank-road, and a copy of my communication to Gen. Webb, as to my position. I cannot take up any regular line of battle on account of the woods and swamps, but have assembled each division at a point, so they can fight in any direction. I had a brigade of Gen. Griffin's and a battery stationed at Stroud's for support. I don't think your left could be turned (even if I moved away) without having full information. But as my troops now are, I could move Griffin right up on your flank along with my artillery. I shall work hard all day to get the road through the woods in order."

At 8h. 55m. A.M., I received the following from Gen. Webb:

“Owing to the weather, no change will to-day be made in the present position of the troops. Three days’ rations, subsistence and forage will be brought up and issued to the troops, and the artillery and wagons authorized to accompany them. The empty supply wagons will be sent to the rear, to be refilled at the railroad terminus. The Chief Engineer and Corps Commanders will use every exertion to make practicable the roads to the rear and communications with their several commands.”

At 9.40 A.M. I sent the following dispatch to Gen. Webb:

“I have just received a report from Gen. Ayres that the enemy have their pickets still this side of the White Oak Road, so that their communication is continuous along it. I have sent out word to him to try and drive them off, or develop with what force the road is held by them.”

This operation I deemed essentially necessary to the security of our own position, and I directed Gen. Ayres to use a brigade, if necessary, the distance being but a few hundred yards. In answer to it I received the following dispatch from Gen. Webb, written 10.30 A.M.:

“Your dispatch, giving Gen. Ayres’ position, is received; Gen. Meade directs that should you determine, by your reconnoissance, that you can get possession of the White Oak Road, you are to do so, notwithstanding the orders to suspend operations.” *

* Comparison of the preceding dispatches with the following extract relating to the same subject, taken from Lieutenant-General Grant’s report to the Secretary of War, dated July 22, 1865, published with the annual documents, shows that Lieut.-Gen. Grant must have been misinformed in relation to the reports made by me and the orders I received.

(EXTRACT.)

“On the morning of the 31st, Gen. Warren reported favorably to getting possession of the White Oak Road, and was directed so to do. To accomplish this, he moved with one division instead of his whole corps.”

It is seen that the operations proposed by me and ordered, were as Gen. Meade describes, of the nature of a “reconnoissance” only, the result of which was to determine what was to be done. Special arrangements would have to be made with Gen. Humphreys if Griffin’s division had to be moved up to the point where Generals Ayres and Crawford were. The action of the enemy, however, interfered with the plans, as they often did, and produced the resulting operations.

Gen. Winthrop, with his brigade of Gen. Ayres' division, advanced accordingly about half-past 10 A.M., and was repulsed, and simultaneously an attack, which had been prepared against Gen. Ayres, was made by the enemy in heavy force, both from the north and west, and Gen. Ayres' division was forced back. Gen. Ayres did all that was in his power to stay the enemy. I hastened toward the point of attack, but on arriving near Gen. Crawford's division, it was also falling back, and all our efforts to hold the men in the woods were unavailing. Gen. Griffin's line was then formed along the east bank of the branch of Gravelly Run, with Mink's battery on his right, and after some severe fighting the enemy was stopped. Gen's Crawford and Ayres reformed their troops behind this line. Information of these events were sent to Gen. Humphreys early in their occurrence, and he sent Gen. Miles' division to close the space between his left and Gen. Griffin's right. One brigade of this, also, advanced to the attack of the enemy, but was at first driven back.

At 1 P.M. I made the following report to Gen. Webb:

"Gen. Ayres made an advance with a small force at 10 A.M., which the enemy drove back and followed up in heavy force, compelling both Ayres and Crawford to fall back on Griffin, and, of course, in much confusion. Griffin's troops held the enemy at the Run west of the Plank-road. Gen. Miles' division" (a brigade of it) "afterward attacked the enemy and were forced back on my right. My skirmish line in front of Griffin (most of it) has advanced on my left.

"I am going to send forward a brigade, supported by all I can get of Crawford and Ayres, and attack, swinging on our right. Arrangements are being made for this, and it will take place about 1.45 P.M., if the enemy does not attack sooner."

Owing to some difficulties in crossing the Run, this advance, which was thus made with the whole available corps, took place a little after the time specified above. Gen. Humphreys' division, under Gen. Miles, also advanced against the enemy about the same period on our right, but the movement was not made in close connection with mine. It is my intention to enter more into details when I receive the official reports of my division commanders.

At 3.40 P.M. I wrote, from the White Oak Road, the following dispatch to Gen. Webb:

"We have driven the enemy, I think, into his breastworks. The prisoners report Gen. Lee here to-day, and also that their breastworks are filled with troops. We have prisoners from a portion of Pickett's and Johnson's divisions.

"Gen. Chamberlain's brigade acted with much gallantry in their advance, capturing nearly the entire Fifty-sixth Virginia Regiment, with its flags."

We met with but little opposition in this advance, so that only this one brigade was earnestly engaged.

The loss of the corps, in killed and wounded, from the morning of March 29th to the close of the battle of White Oak Ridge, was eighteen hundred, and included several distinguished soldiers.

OPERATIONS TO SUCCOR GEN. SHERIDAN.

Thus far my operations were independent of those of Gen. Sheridan, but at this point they came into direct relation to him, and the narrative will be given in more detail. It must be borne in mind, however, that I acted under Gen. Meade's orders till daybreak of the morning of April 1.

About 5 P.M., March 31, while on the White Oak Road, I received the following from Gen. Webb, chief of staff:

"Secure your position, and protect, as well as possible, your left flank. Word has been sent to Sheridan, and it is believed that Sheridan is pushing up. Gen. Humphreys will be ordered to push up and to connect with your right. You might, if you think it worth while, push a small force down the White Oak Road, and try to communicate with Sheridan, but they must take care not to fire into his advance."

The rattle of musketry could now be heard southwest from us, which seemed to us to be receding, and which led us to think that the enemy was driving our cavalry. I then ordered Gen. Griffin to send Gen. Bartlett, with his brigade, directly across the country, so as to attack the enemy on the flank, and I sent Major Cope, of my staff, with him. At 5.15 P.M., I received the following from Gen. Webb, which directed what before had only been suggested:

"The Major-General commanding directs that you push a brigade down the White Oak Road to open it for Gen. Sheridan, and support the same if necessary. The firing is so near that the General presumes that the command will not have far to go. The distance you will push out must depend on the circumstances of the movement and the support you can give them."

Thus, at the time when to Gen. Meade it seemed "the firing is so near," it plainly sounded to us more and more distant, indicating that our cavalry was falling back, of which I soon had confirmation.

At 5.50 P.M. I sent the following to Gen. Webb:

"I have just seen an officer and a sergeant from Gen. Sheridan's command, who were cut off in an attack by the enemy and escaped. From what they say, our cavalry was attacked about noon by cavalry and infantry, and rapidly driven back, two divisions—Crook's and Devin's—being engaged. The firing seemed to recede from me toward Dinwiddie C. H. I have sent Gen. Bartlett and my escort in that direction, but I think they cannot be in time. I hear cannonading that I think is from near Dinwiddie C. H."

Appendix

---

About 6.30 P.M. I received the following from Gen. Webb:

"A staff officer of Gen. Merritt's has made a report that the enemy has penetrated between Sheridan's main command and your position—this is a portion of Pickett's division. Let the force ordered to move out the White Oak Road move down the Boydton Plank Road as promptly as possible."

The force I had sent under Gen. Bartlett had now been gone an hour, and to recall it would have required two hours at least for it to reach the Boydton Plank-Road, and make it too late for use before dark. My artillery had all been left on the Boydton Plank-Road on account of the mud, which had compelled me to do so, and Gen. Griffin had left Brevet Brig.-Gen. Pearson there, with three regiments of infantry, of Brevet Major-Gen. Bartlett's brigade, to support it. I therefore sent the following dispatch to Gen. Webb, at 6.30 P.M., which explained what I did:

"I have ordered Gen. Pearson, with three regiments that are now on the Plank-road right down toward Dinwiddie C. H. I will let Bartlett work and report result, as it is too late to stop him."

It was then nearly dark.

Having reconnoitered the enemy's breastworks on the White Oak Road, I added the following, concerning them, to my dispatch of 6.30 P.M.:

"We can see the enemy's breastworks for two miles east along the White Oak Road. If they are well manned they cannot be carried. I am within two hundred yards of where they turn off northward from the White Oak Road."

I then gave directions to secure the position we had gained by intrenching, and proceeded, with my staff, back about two miles to the Boydton Plank-road, at which place I could communicate by telegraph with Gen. Meade during the night. Gen. Meade's headquarters were distant four and a half miles, near where the Vaughan Road crosses Hatcher's Run. Gen. Grant's were near Dabney's Mill, about four miles from me. Gen. Sheridan's at Dinwiddie C. H., distant five and a half miles, and separated from me by a stream not fordable for infantry where it crossed the Boydton Plank-road, and the bridge was broken down. Gen. Grant and Gen. Meade were about ten miles from Gen. Sheridan.

About 8 P.M. I received the following dispatch from Gen. Meade, written 7.30 P.M.:

---

"Dispatch from Gen. Sheridan says he was forced back to Dinwiddie C. H. by strong force of cavalry supported by infantry. This leaves your rear and that of the Second Corps on the Boydton Plank-road open, and will require great vigilance on your part. If you have sent the brigade down the Boydton Plank-road, it should not go farther than Gravelly Run, as I don't think it will render any service but to protect your rear."

Gen. Pearson had been compelled to stop at Gravelly Run on account of the swollen stream and broken bridge.

At 8.20 P.M. I wrote to Gen. Webb:

"I sent Gen. Bartlett out on the road running from the White Oak Road and left him there. He is nearly down to the crossing of Gravelly Run. This will prevent the enemy communicating by that road to-night. I have about two regiments and the artillery to hold the Plank-road toward Dinwiddie C. H. It seems to me the enemy cannot remain between me and Dinwiddie C. H. if Sheridan keeps fighting them, and I believe they will have to fall back to the Five Forks. If I have to move to-night I shall leave a good many men who have lost their way. Does Gen. Sheridan still hold Dinwiddie C. H.?"

At 8.40 P.M. I received, by telegraph, the following, marked confidential, from Gen. Webb:

"The probability is that we will have to contract our lines to-night. You will be required to hold, if possible, the Boydton Plank-road and to Gravelly Run—Humphreys and Ord along the Run. Be prepared to do this at short notice."

I regretted exceedingly to see this step foreshadowed, for I feared it would have the "morale" of giving a failure to our whole movement, as similar orders had done on previous occasions. It would beside relieve the enemy in front of Sheridan from the threatening attitude which my position gave me, and I therefore sent the following, by telegraph, at 8.40 P.M., to Gen. Webb:

"The line along the Plank-road is very strong. One division, with my artillery, I think, can hold it, if we are not threatened south of Gravelly Run, east of the Plank-road. Gen. Humphreys and my batteries, I think, can hold this securely, and let me move down and attack the enemy at Dinwiddie C. H. on one side and Sheridan on the other. On account of Bartlett's position they (the enemy) will have to make a considerable détour to reinforce their troops at that point from the north. Unless Gen. Sheridan has been too badly handled, I think we have a chance for an open field fight that should be made use of."

Appendix

My object was not effected at once, for at 9.17 P.M. I received the following, by telegraph, written by Gen. Webb at 9 P.M. :

" You will, by direction of the Major-General commanding, draw back at once to your position within the Boydton Plank-road. Send a division down to Dinwiddie C. H., to report to Gen. Sheridan. This division will go down the Boydton Plank-road. Send Griffin's division. Gen. Humphreys will hold to Mrs. Butler's."

Whereupon I issue the following order to my command, which was sent out 9.35 P.M. :

" I. Gen. Ayres will immediately withdraw his division back to where it was massed yesterday, near the Boydton Plank Road.

" II. Gen. Crawford will follow Gen. Ayres, and mass his troops behind the intrenchments near Mrs. Butler's.

" III. Gen. Griffin will immediately withdraw Gen. Bartlett to his present position, then move back to the Plank-road and down it to Dinwiddie C. H., and report to Gen. Sheridan."

" IV. Capt. Horrell, with his escort will remain where Gen. Griffin's headquarters now are till daybreak, and then come back to the Plank Road, bringing in all stragglers.

" V. Division commanders, in executing this movement, which is ordered by Gen. Meade, will take care to see that none of their pickets or any portion of the troops are left behind.

" VI. Gen. Ayres and Gen. Crawford will have their troops under arms at daybreak, and the chief of artillery will have all the batteries in readiness to move."

At 9.50 P.M. I received, by telegraph, the following from Gen. Webb, written 9.20 P.M. :

" The division to be sent to Sheridan will start at once. You are to be held free to act within the Boydton Plank Road. Gen. Humphreys will hold to the road and the return."

To this I immediately replied :

" Your dispatch of 9.20 is just received. I had already sent out my orders, of which I send you a copy. You directed Gen. Griffin to be sent to Gen. Sheridan at once. It will take so much time to get his command together that I withdrew the other divisions first, they being unengaged; but this will not retard Gen. Griffin. The bridge is broken on the Plank-road, and will take I hardly know how long to make practicable for infantry. I sent an officer (Capt. Benyaurd, Engin'r) to examine it as soon as your first order was received. He now reports it not passable for infantry. It requires a span of forty feet to complete the bridge, and the stream is too deep to ford. Nevertheless, I will use everything I can get to make it passable by the time Gen. Griffin's division reaches it."

Gen. Griffin's division in addition to the delay on assembling Gen. Bartlett's brigade, had to withdraw a picket line in front of the enemy, and, if it moved first, the others, pending it, had to relieve this picket line.

The bridge over Gravelly Run we had found broken by the enemy on our occupation of the Plank-road on the 29th. As I was required to operate independent of the cavalry, and protect my own flanks, it was desirable to me (being in my rear, as I faced the enemy on the White Oak Road), that it should remain so. Even the dispatch of this evening from Gen. Meade, which I received at 8 P.M. (previously given), would have justified me in destroying it had it yet been standing intact. I had no pontoons with me now; the supply with which I started on the 29th had been used in bridging Rowanty Creek and the Quaker Road crossing of Gravelly Run, and the boats and engineers were kept there for the service of the trains.

At 9.15 P.M. I received, by telegraph, the following dispatch from Gen. Webb, written 10.40 P.M.:

"Since your dispatch of 8.20 P.M., the General commanding finds that it is impossible for Bartlett to join Griffin in time to move with any promptitude down the Boydton Plank-road. He therefore directs that you send another good brigade to join Griffin, in the place of Bartlett's, in this movement. Sheridan was attacked by five brigades from Gordon's corps—three from Pickett's; possibly by two from Gordon's, one of them being Hoke's old brigade."

This dispatch showed that my previous one, giving the condition of the bridge at Gravelly Run, had not yet been received. I deemed it would show, when it was, that Gen. Bartlett could join Gen. Griffin before the bridge would be passable, and that Griffin could thus reach Sheridan as soon as any one, and require no change in my previous order; and, while waiting the result of the reception of the knowledge of the state of the crossing by Gen. Meade, I at 10.50 P.M. received the following dispatch from him, written 10.15 P.M.:

"Send Griffin promptly, as ordered, by the Boydton Plank Road, and move the balance of your command by the road Bartlett is on, and strike the enemy's rear, who is between him and Dinwiddie C. H. Gen. Sheridan reports his position as north of Dinwiddie C. H., near Dr. Smith's, the enemy holding the cross-roads at that point. Should the enemy turn on you, your line of retreat will be by J. M. Brooks' and R. Boiseau's, on the Boydton Plank-road. (See one inch map.) You must be very prompt in this movement, and get the forks of the road and J. M. Brooks' before the enemy, so as to open to R. Boiseau's. The enemy will probably retire toward Five Forks, that being the direction of their main attack this day. Don't encumber yourself with anything that will impede your progress or prevent your moving in any direction. Let me know when Griffin starts and when you start."

This dispatch also showed that mine, concerning the crossing of Gravelly Run, was still not received. That I did not over-estimate the effect of this dispatch, when it should reach, is proved by Gen. Meade's dispatch written at 11.45 P.M. (See p. 24.) It also showed complete ignorance of the position of the enemy along "the road Bartlett is (was) on," for the enemy already held this road on the south side of Gravelly Run, and, if not themselves at J. M. Brooks', occupied our approach to it. The condition of affairs here is given by Major Cope, in his report as follows:

"About 5 P.M. you directed me to lead Bartlett's brigade by a direct road, if possible, toward the sound of firing in the direction of Dinwiddie C. H., and attack the enemy in the rear. I immediately reported to Gen. Bartlett, who had his column put in motion. The left of the corps rested in open ground. We came out from the left and crossed this ground for a half a mile; then we came to a small branch of Gravelly Run on the edge of the timber. Here we found a wood-road that ran in the right direction. We followed it one mile through the wood over rolling ground, crossing the branches of Gravelly Run. At the south edge of this timber, and in open ground on a hill, stands Dr. ——'s house (and here our skirmishers became engaged with the enemy's pickets). The ground slopes from here to Gravelly Run, and is open all the way down. The enemy, after considerable skirmishing, were driven down the slope and across the Run three-quarters of a mile from the house. The house is near a main road leading north from Dinwiddie C. H. to the main road. Gen. Bartlett established a line of pickets along Gravelly Run crossing this road. He also kept videttes out on his right watching this road and other approaches in the rear. It was much after dark when he had made the proper disposition of his troops, and then we began to turn our attention to the number and extent of the enemy's camp-fires. They seemed to stretch for miles on the south side of the Run, and we could distinctly hear them chopping, moving wagons and talking."

In addition to this, the enemy held the point on the road Bartlett was on, where it joins the White Oak Road, as had been ascertained by Major Gentry of my staff, while endeavoring to communicate with Gen. Bartlett. The Major lost his orderly by capture, while he narrowly escaped himself.

It was now one hour and a half since my order had been sent withdrawing the divisions to the Plank-road, so that I supposed they were all moving back toward the Plank-road, along the forest road, with its single bridge across the branch of Gravelly Run, and in the order of Ayres, Crawford, Griffin, with Gen. Bartlett's brigade nearly rejoined to the latter. To prevent the confusion and delay that would occur by bringing Gen. Griffin to the Plank-road and sending back Gen. Ayres, one of which would have to leave the road for the other to pass, and to save the time that would be lost by each division in changing their relative places, I determined to send Gen. Ayres' division to Dinwiddie C. H. instead of Gen. Griffin's, as it greatly simplified and expedited the operation, and saved the men's strength so sorely tried. It had, besides, the effect to prevent the separation of brigades from their proper divisions, and keep each intact—a matter of importance. As quickly as I could write it, I at 11 P.M. issued the following order :

“ 1st. Gen. Ayres, instead of halting his command, as directed in his last order (see mine on p. 17), will proceed down the plank-road to Dinwiddie C. H., and report to Gen. Sheridan. He will send a staff officer to report here when the head of the column arrives.

“ 2d. Gen. Crawford and Gen. Griffin will mass their divisions at the point where the order reaches them, and report their position by the officer that brings it. A change of plan makes this change of order necessary.”

I note here, a little out of the order of time, that I did not learn the position of Gen. Crawford and Gen. Griffin till 1 A.M., and so difficult had it been to get the troops in motion on this intensely dark and stormy night, that, although this order from me was sent one hour and a half after the one for them to fall back to the Plank-road, yet it found them still in the same position. It must be remembered that our troops, so near the enemy, could not be roused by drums and bugles or loud commands, but each order had to be communicated from each commander to his subordinate, from the General till it reached the non-commissioned officers, which latter only could arouse each man by a shaking.

The obstacles to overcome in carrying out so many orders in the darkness of a stormy, starless night, when the moon had set, deserves a statement of them in detail.

The roads and paths the staff officers and messengers would have to take, were often filled with troops, and were as bad as clayey soil at the breaking up of winter could make them. These routes were mostly shut in by the evergreen forests through which they passed, rendering the night's darkness as profound as that of the deepest caverns. The horse, exhausted for want of food and wearied with life-and-death exertions, carried his rider slowly through the mud, and staggered and stumbled over the obstructions. The messenger disappeared on his mission the instant he moved, and once out of call of the voice, could not be stopped or found till he had made the tour his instructions required, and returned to the place of departure. On arriving at his destination, the messenger, though, perhaps, familiar with it in the daylight just closed, could scarce recognize it in the light of the camp-fires, which burned around him on every side, showing everything in disproportioned and unreal forms. By these fires, the exhausted soldiers slept heavily, almost deaf to the questions addressed to ascertain the locality, or answered half in their sleep. The commanding officers, to escape the noise of drivers urging their struggling teams along the muddy roads, and the straggling of men over them as they slept, were compelled, in seeking repose, to establish their head-quarters a little away from the main routes; and this alone many times caused vexatious delays in getting orders to them. Added to these were the vicissitudes of battle, which always left the commands and detachments scattered, more or less, as the day closed, and much increased the difficulties of getting the orders for a general movement in the night, sometimes causing such detachments to be left entirely without orders, when all the rest of their commands had moved away.

Knowing all these things, every precaution was used to provide for them, but yet they always existed.

In order to comply with Gen. Meade's first order, I had first to send an officer to each division. Then Major Cope was the only person capable of taking an order to Gen. Bartlett's Brigade, and he was sent. I had sent Major Gentry to ascertain Gen. Bartlett's location; but he, taking the White Oak Road, found the enemy holding the junction of it with the one Gen. Bartlett was on, and failed, as before stated, to find a way to him. I had to send another officer for the pioneers, and go with them at once to the crossing of Gravelly Run, to make the bridge. I had to send another to the bridge itself, to report the condition of the crossing. I had, with my full complement of staff officers, but the following available, all the others being engaged in their appropriate departments: Col. Bankhead, Major Gentry, Major Cope, Capt. Bényaurd, Capt. Wadsworth, and Capt. Winslow.

Having, under these circumstances, made my dispositions to execute one order for a general movement promptly, it is easy to see what strait I was placed in to countermand those orders before the officers, sent out with the first one returned.

But to resume the narration. After I had sent the order last quoted, I informed Gen. Meade what I had done, as follows:

"I issued my orders, on Gen. Webb's first dispatch, to fall back, which made the divisions retire in the order they could most readily move, viz.: Ayres, Crawford, and Griffin. I cannot change them to-night without producing confusion that will render all my operations nugatory. I will now send Gen. Ayres to Gen. Sheridan, and take Gen. Griffin and Gen. Crawford to move against the enemy, as this last dispatch directs I should. Otherwise, I cannot accomplish the apparent objects of the orders I have received."

I proceeded to make the necessary orders and arrangements to move with the two divisions as soon as I could. The movement had to be made without artillery, or ambulances, or ammunition wagons, and instructions had to be given, in the two latter cases, for special provisions. The Chief of Artillery had to be informed, and relations established between him and Gen. Humphreys, commanding the Second Corps, whose troops were required to take my place along the Plank-road.

At twenty minutes past twelve, I received the following from Gen. Humphreys:

---

"I am directed to resume my position of this morning, &c., &c. At what time do you propose to move? I propose to move simultaneously with you."

To this I sent the following reply:

"I have just received your dispatch, by Capt. Wistar. Under the order to withdraw at once" (viz., that received at 9.17 P.M.), "I thought we each could do so individually under cover of darkness, and so ordered. I have since received orders to attack the enemy with two divisions, sending one down the Plank-road to report to Gen. Sheridan. My artillery, five four-gun batteries, under Gen. Wainwright, will remain on the line of the Plank-road. I think the enemy that drove Gen. Sheridan must withdraw to-night. I had a brigade on the road north from J. Boiseau's. I have now orders to move against the force that attacked Sheridan, and shall send all I have to move there, or wherever the firing of battle near us may indicate."

At 1 A.M., I received reports from my officers who had returned from carrying my order of 11 P.M., and learned the position of Gens. Crawford and Griffin. At this time, I received the following dispatch from Gen. Meade, written by him at 11h. 45m. P.M.:

"A dispatch, partially transmitted, is received, indicating the bridge over Gravelly Run is destroyed, and time will be required to rebuild it. If this is the case, would not time be gained by sending the troops by the Quaker Road? Time is of the utmost importance. Sheridan cannot maintain himself at Dinwiddie without reinforcements, and yours are the only ones that can be sent. Use every exertion to get troops to him as soon as possible. If necessary, send troops by both roads, and give up the rear attack. If Sheridan is not reinforced, and compelled to fall back, he will retire by the Vaughan Road."

On receiving this dispatch, showing so much solicitude for Gen. Sheridan's position, and the necessity of reinforcing him directly, even if I had to countermand the previous order, and forego entirely the rear attack, and which, also, left the question for me to determine, I felt much anxiety about what to do. The night was far advanced. The distance to Dinwiddie C. H. by the Quaker Road, from the location of my troops, was over ten miles. It was impossible for them to reach there by that road before 8 A.M. By that time they could be of no use in holding Dinwiddie C. H. In this case, the most direct route for the rear attack would be down the Plank-road, where Gen. Ayres was marching. This attack, too, would be then the most effective, as the whole corps would be together in making it, and all in communication with head-quarters and Gen. Sheridan, which might be of great importance. If Gen. Sheridan retired by the Vaughan Road, too, the rear and right flank of Gen. Humphreys would be left exposed, as stated in Gen. Meade's dispatch.

received by me at 8 P.M. (already given here). To send the division around by the Quaker Road was to break my command up in three pieces, and, if it had been done, it is doubtful if the success of the 1st of April would have been gained, as the men thus sent would have been too exhausted to reach the Five Forks that day.

I therefore determined that it was best to abide the movements already begun, and keep the two divisions, Griffin's and Crawford's, where they were, till I could hear that Gen. Ayres certainly had reinforced Gen. Sheridan. The men of the two divisions were gaining, while waiting this result, a little of that rest they stood so much in need of, on this their fourth night of almost continual deprivation of it, and we had but a short distance to move before reaching the enemy, near J. Boisseau's.

Having determined this, at one P.M., I wrote the following dispatch to Gen. Meade:

"I think we will have an infantry bridge over Gravelly Run sooner than I could send troops around by the Quaker Road. But if I find any failure, I will send that way. I have sent Capt. Benyaurd (two hours ago) with what he thought was necessary to make it practicable in one hour, and trust to that. I am sending to Gen. Sheridan my most available force."

At 2.5 A.M., I learned the following, which I sent Gen. Webb:

"The bridge over Gravelly Run Capt. Benyaurd reports now practicable for infantry, and Gen. Ayres advancing across it toward Dinwiddie C. H. I have given Gen. Ayres orders to report to Gen. Sheridan."

At 4½ A.M. I received information that Gen. Ayres had communicated with Gen. Sheridan, and, while I was just mounting to join Generals Griffin and Crawford, to move across the country against the enemy at J. Boisseau's, I received the following from Gen. Sheridan, at 4.50 A.M., which is published with his report, and there stated to be written at 3 A.M.

"I am holding in front of Dinwiddie C. H., on the road leading to Five Forks, for three-quarters of a mile, with Gen. Custer's division. The enemy are in his immediate front, lying so as to cover the road just this side of the Adams' house, which leads out across Chamberlain's BED or RUN. I understand you have a division at J. Boisseau's; if so, you are in REAR of the enemy's line and almost on his flank. I will hold on here. Possibly they may attack Custer at daylight; if so, have this division attack instantly and in full force. Attack at daylight anyway, and I will make an effort to get the road this side of Adams' house, and if I do, you can capture the whole of them. Any force moving down the road I am holding, or on the White Oak Road, will be in the enemy's rear, and in all probability get any force that may escape you by a flank attack. Do not fear my leaving here. If the enemy remain I shall fight at daylight."

This suppositious state of affairs given above promised most brilliant results, if true, but it was not. The enemy occupied the position at J. Boiseau's on the preceding night, and instead of my having a division there, the nearest to it I had was Bartlett's brigade, about three-quarters of a mile north of Gravelly Run, the crossing of which the enemy guarded. Even this brigade of mine I had to withdraw, by Gen. Meade's order, at 9.35 P.M. I fully expected, if the enemy had not retreated, to have to fight a battle in order to get across Gravelly Run near to J. Boiseau's, and, if the enemy had designed to stay, we undoubtedly must have done so. I so anticipated in my instructions to Gen. Griffin. About 5 A.M. Gen. Griffin left his position near the enemy on the White Oak Road, and moved directly and rapidly across the country to Crump's. He found the enemy had left the crossing of the Run open, and he moved on to J. Boiseau's, meeting at the forks of the road our cavalry, under Gen. Devin. At this point Gen. Griffin reported to Gen. Sheridan, as I had directed, should such a state of affairs as was found be developed.

I remained with Gen. Crawford's division, which we formed to retire in line of battle to meet the enemy, should he pursue us from his breastworks, as I confidently expected he would as soon as he discovered our movements.* I also deployed my escort to retire toward the Plank-road to take back any men or supplies which might be coming to that point through ignorance of the changes that had been made in the night. Gen. Griffin's march having been unobstructed, I did not reach him till he had met our cavalry. I then ascertained, too, that Gen. Ayres' division was massed about half a mile south of us near J. M. Brooks's.

It will be recollected that Gen. Ayres began to move back from the White Oak Road by an order from me, sent at 9.35 P.M., and was the first intimation of sending troops to Gen. Sheridan. No orders stopped him, nor did anything delay him but physical obstacles—such as the darkness, bad roads and broken bridge. I will now quote from his report the result:

“The division was ordered to move down the Boydton Pike during the night of March 31, and report to Gen. Sheridan at Dinwiddie C. H. Before arriving there it was met by a staff officer of Gen. Sheridan, with instructions to turn off on a road leading west into a road leading from Dinwiddie C. H. to the White Oak Road” (i.e., from R. Boiseau's to J. M. Brooks's), “and come upon the left and rear of the enemy, who was facing Gen. Sheridan's command near Dinwiddie. As we approached, just after daylight, the enemy hastily decamped.”

* The neglect of the enemy to follow up Gen. Crawford's division as he withdrew is still inexplicable to me, for had they done so, Gen. Lee would have been early informed of the movement of our infantry against his detached force at Five Forks, and either have reinforced them or warned them to withdraw, and the disaster to them which resulted might not have occurred. It seems to me an oversight not to have been expected from our previous experience.

This actual trial disposes of the question of the ability of my troops to reach Gen. Sheridan by midnight. It took Gen. Ayres till daybreak.

It may be said, in support of the expectations, that the state of the bridge and stream were not known when the expectations were formed; but they should have been. The route was used for communications between Gen. Grant and Gen. Sheridan the two preceding days. But even if not known then, they certainly were when Gen. Sheridan wrote his report and Gen. Grant authorized its publication, and it was but manly and just to have then corrected any unfavorable impression his lack of knowledge at the time may have caused him to take up concerning me.

But, let us suppose the two divisions that Gen. Grant directed to be moved by J. Boisseau's, were expected to reach Gen. Sheridan by midnight. The order which I received was written by Gen. Meade 10.15 P.M., five minutes after Gen. Grant's to Gen. Sheridan. It reached me 10.50 P.M., thirty-five minutes after being written. Supposing all possible dispatch used, twenty minutes at least would be required for me to make the necessary arrangements; twenty more minutes would be required to carry my orders to the divisions; twenty more minutes for them to transmit them to the brigades; and forty minutes, at least, for the troops to get ready to move; for it must be remembered that no bugles or drums could be used to sound calls or arouse the men. No general could make plans based on greater rapidity of execution than here allowed, and our experience rarely realized it on the most favorable occasions, while this was one of the least so. Summing up these intervals of time we have two hours to add to the time of Gen. Grant writing to Gen. Sheridan. I venture to say it took nearly this time for the note itself to reach Gen. Sheridan. Adding these two hours, would make it at least twelve o'clock before my two divisions could move. They then had four miles to traverse, taking the White Oak Road, before reaching the crossing of Gravelly Run, which would occupy till 2 A.M. They had then to cross the stream and strike the rear of the enemy opposed to Gen. Sheridan, enumerated by him as follows:

“The opposing force was Pickett's division, Wise's independent brigade of infantry, and FitzHugh Lee's, Rosser's, and W. H. Lee's cavalry commands. This force is too strong for us.”

To join Gen. Sheridan by midnight, on this route, I then had to capture or destroy whatever of this force was between me and Gen. Sheridan. Any expectations more unreasonable could not have been formed, nor would I attribute them to any one not wholly ignorant of the true state of the case.

In regard to intercepting the enemy, the facts show it was impossible under the circumstances. I learned from deserters that they had begun to move toward Five Forks as early as 10 P.M. the night before, believing their position would be untenable the next morning. They had consequently withdrawn in the night, carrying off their wounded and leaving only a cavalry picket in Gen. Sheridan's front, which, as Gen. Ayres says, “hastily decamped” as he approached at daylight. It will be seen by a dispatch of Gen. Meade to Gen. Grant, dated 6 A.M. (given hereafter), that Gen. Sheridan must have been aware of this withdrawal of the enemy early in the night.

While awaiting with Gen. Griffin for instructions from Gen. Sheridan, who had advanced with the cavalry toward Five Forks, I received, about 9½ A.M., the following order, written by Gen. Webb at 6 A.M.:

“Gen. Meade directs that, in the movements following your junction with Gen. Sheridan, you will be under his orders, and will report to him. Please send a report of progress.”

I sent the report of progress requested, which was in accordance with the facts hereinbefore given.

To show how Gen. Meade was led to send me this order, I will give a copy of a dispatch from him to Gen. Grant, written 6 A.M., April 1, an official copy of which was furnished me:

“The officer sent to Sheridan returned between 2 and 3 A.M., without any written communication, but giving Gen. S.'s opinion that the enemy were retiring from his front. The absence of firing this morning would seem to confirm this. I was asleep at the time this officer returned, and did not get the information till just now. Should this prove true, Warren will be at or near Dinwiddie soon, with his whole corps, and will require further orders.”

This dispatch shows an important circumstance also that affects the question of my ability to intercept the enemy. The officer that brought Gen. Meade this information from Gen. Sheridan, between 2 and 3 A.M., could not have left Gen. Sheridan less than two hours previous, the distance being about ten miles over the worst possible roads; so that Gen. Sheridan thought the enemy was retiring as early, at least, as between 12 and 1, and the information could scarce have reached Gen. Sheridan, from his picket line, in less than one hour's time, so that the enemy's movements in retiring must have become apparent as early, at least, as between 11 and 12. This confirms the reports deserters, in the morning, gave me, and which the completeness of the withdrawal sustains. Thus, at the very time of the night that Gen. Sheridan thought the enemy retreating, I was impressed, by repeated dispatches from Gen. Meade, that Gen. S. could not hold on without reinforcements, and I acted under that authority and belief.

The order from Gen. Meade placing me under Gen. Sheridan's orders, however, was not necessary for that purpose, as I should have obeyed any orders Gen. Sheridan might give me, recognizing him as my superior army commander.

BATTLE OF FIVE FORKS.

When I met Gen. S., at about 11 A.M., his manner was cordial and friendly. I had never served with him before.

After talking with Gen. Sheridan a short time, at the place I found him, while he was occasionally receiving reports from his cavalry, he mounted and rode off to the front. At 1 P.M. an officer brought to me an order to bring up the infantry. I at once dispatched Col. (now Brevet Brig.-Gen.) Bankhead to give the orders to the division commanders to bring up their commands, specifying the order which I thought they could most rapidly move in. I then went up the Five Forks Road in advance of the infantry, to see Gen. Sheridan and to inform myself of the use to be made of my troops, so that no time would be lost on their arrival. Gen. S. explained to me the state of affairs, and what his plan was for me to do. This I entered upon most cordially. Gen. S. had placed an officer back on the road to mark the point where my command was to turn off. I then rode back to the point indicated, turned up the road which led by Gravelly Run Church, and examined the ground, and employed my escort, which had by this time rejoined me, to picket the front I was to take up, so as to prevent the enemy, discovering the presence of the infantry.

Gen. Sheridan's order was to form the whole corps before advancing, so that all of it should move simultaneously. He specially stated that the formation was to be oblique to the road, with the right advanced, with two divisions in front and the third in reserve behind the right division. The number of lines and consequent extent of front he left me to decide. Upon examination, I determined on an equivalent of three lines of battle for each of the front divisions, arranged as follows: Each division was to place two brigades in front, each brigade in two lines of battle, and the third brigade in two lines of battle behind the centre of the two front lines. The third division to be posted in column of battalions in mass behind the right. To Gen. Ayres I assigned my left, Gen. Crawford my right, and Gen. Griffin my reserve behind the right. In moving, they were instructed to keep closed to the left, and to preserve their direction in the woods, by keeping the sun, then shining brightly, in the same position over their left shoulders.

Gen. Ayres placed the Maryland Brigade on his left, in two lines, and Gen. Gwin's Brigade on his right; this last brigade was formed in three lines instead of two, as the regiments could not be so well disposed in two lines. Gen. Winthrop's Brigade, Gen. Ayres formed as his reserve. Gen. Crawford formed his line so as to place Col. Kellogg's Brigade on his left, Gen. Baxter's Brigade on his right, and Gen. Coulter's Brigade as his reserve.

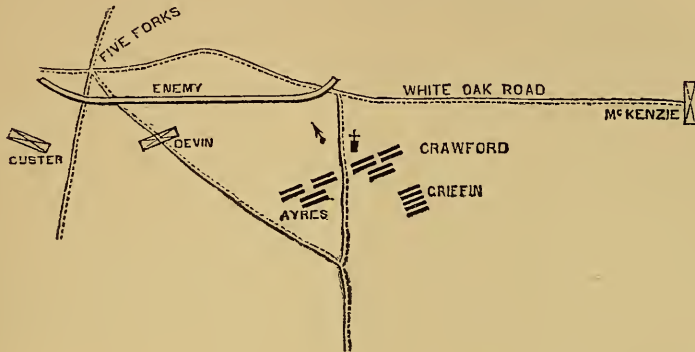

The length of the front we occupied was about a thousand yards. The casualties of the three preceding days, together with those who had given out from weariness, or were absent on detached duty, had probably reduced our effective force at least a thousand men in each division below that which we set out on the 28th, so that we had then present about twelve thousand men.

Notes on the Warren Family

While the troops were forming, I prepared the accompanying sketch, with explanations, for each division commander, and directed them, as far as time would admit, to explain it to the brigade commanders :

“ April 1, 3 P.M.

“ The following is the movement now about to be executed :

“ The line will move forward as formed till it reaches the White Oak Road, when it will swing round to the left, perpendicular to the White Oak Road. Gen. Merritt’s and Gen. Custer’s Cavalry will charge the enemy’s line as soon as the infantry get engaged; the cavalry is on the left of the infantry, except McKenzie’s, which is moving up the White Oak Road from the right.”

Gen. Griffin, in his report, says the formation prior to the attack was as follows :

“ The First Division on the right flank formed in three lines, with one brigade on the right en echelon.”

I supplied Gen. Griffin with the same sketch and plan of operations as I had Gen. Ayres and Gen. Crawford, in which I thought I indicated Gen. Griffin’s position in rear of the right. But the necessity for him to protect his own flank, and the wedge-like shape of the formation, as a whole, led Gen. Griffin to regard his division as on the right.

Gen. Sheridan says, in his report, that he directed “ one division to be formed in reserve opposite the centre.” This is a mistake, his order was to form it in rear of the right. The line was to be formed “ obliquely to and at a point a short distance from the White Oak Road,” this threw the right in the advance, and it was supposed by him, would strike the enemy first and need the support.

During the formation of my troops, I used all the exertions possible to hasten their arrival, and everything was so prepared for them, that they marched at once to their assigned position without a halt.

Gen. Sheridan expressed to me the apprehension that the cavalry, which continued to fire on the enemy, would use up all their ammunition before my troops would be ready. I informed him that they would not all be in position before 4 P.M., but that I was ready to move at once with whatever was at hand, if he directed, and let the rest follow; but he did not. His impatience was no greater, apparently, than I felt myself, and which I strove to repress and prevent any exhibition of, as it would but tend to impair confidence in the proposed operations. When everything possible is being done, it is important to have the men think it is all that success requires, if their confidence is to be retained.

Against Gen. Sheridan's most ungenerous statement, that I gave him the impression that I wanted the sun to go down, I simply place my denial, and trust that my whole conduct in life, and especially in this war, sustains me in it. The sun did not set until two hours and a half after the formation was completed.

In proof of the efforts I made to get the troops in position, and the rapidity with which they did move, I present the following communications from Brevet Brig.-Gen. Bankhead, of my staff; Brevet Maj.-Gen. Crawford, commanding Third Division; Brevet Maj.-Gen. Griffin, commanding First Division; Brevet Maj.-Gen. Ayres, Second Division.

Gen. Bankhead writes me, under date of June 27:

"Sir: In reply to your letter of the 17th inst., received the 25th, I have the honor to state that I was with you April 1st, at the time you received some instructions from Gen. Sheridan, through one of his staff officers. As to the nature of the orders I am not aware, further than that you immediately turned to me, and directed me 'to bring up the corps at once along the road we were at the time, and that you would meet the column yourself; that the divisions would march in the following order, viz., Third, First, Second.' I immediately galloped back, and gave the orders, in person, to Generals Griffin and Crawford. As I was directed to see the head of the column was started on the right road, I sent the order to Gen. Ayres, commanding Second Division (who was further off to the right), by one of your Aids, either Major Cope or Capt. Wadsworth.

"The orders were obeyed promptly, and the troops moved out as expeditiously as the nature of the road and the crowded state it was in (being blocked up with led cavalry horses) would admit. Every exertion appeared to be made by Gen. Crawford, who had the advance, to keep the road clear for the infantry to pass. I remained with the head of the column until within a short distance of the place it was halted and placed in position to make the attack.

The following is from Gen. Crawford, dated July 17:

"General: In reply to your communication of June 17, asking if my division did not move, with all practicable dispatch, in forming prior to our attack on the enemy at the battle of Five Forks, I have the honor to state, that the troops under my command moved at once, upon the receipt of the order, and that, in my opinion, no unnecessary time was lost from that time till they were formed as you directed.

(Signed)

" S. W. CRAWFORD,

" Brevet Maj.-Gen."

The following is from Gen. Griffin, dated June 26:

"General: In reply to your communication of the 17th instant, in reference to the movement of the First Division just prior to the battle of Five Forks, April 1, 1865, I have to state I was in command of that division on that day, and about 2 o'clock P.M., received, through Col. Bankhead, Corps Inspector, an order to move down the road leading northward with all possible dispatch, as the cavalry and infantry were to attack the enemy at once. I moved my troops as promptly as I could, and on arriving near the place where the corps was formed for the attack, was met by yourself. You immediately pointed out the ground that my troops were to form on, remarking, in substance, that you wished me to be as expeditious as possible. The order was executed at once, and I then reported in person to you. In my opinion, the division was formed without any halting or unnecessary delay.

(Signed)

" CHARLES GRIFFIN,

The following is from Gen. Ayres, dated June 24:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 17th inst., last evening, asking an official statement concerning the movement of the Fifth Corps on the 1st of April, from the position where it was massed to that where the lines of battle were formed previous to that attack. I do not know at what time the order was given to commence the movement. I was ordered to follow the First Division. This was done, and my division was kept well closed up on the troops in front. On arriving near the position where the lines were forming, you requested me to form my troops as expeditiously as possible, as Gen. Sheridan desired to attack the enemy immediately. Once again, during the formation, you desired me to be expeditious. My division being a very small one, was soon formed, whereupon I reported to you that I was ready. The order was then given, and the troops moved at once to the attack.

(Signed)

---

In view of this testimony, it is apparent that Gen. Sheridan had left out of his calculations the necessary time to make the formation he directed, and that, in his own opinion, his plan was endangered thereby.

The propriety of an army all moving at once pre-supposes, in order that the General who so employs it should be entitled to the credit of the results obtained, that he should have his information so exact that the mass falls directly upon a vulnerable and vital point of the enemy's position. If there should be a mistake in this, the chief merit belongs to those exertions and arrangements by which the mistake is corrected, or in the new dispositions which the occasion demands as requisite and which may be practicable. But Gen. Sheridan's calculation, as to the position of the left flank of the enemy's line, was faulty, and to a very serious extent, considering that he had placed all the troops in position for the move. The changes we had to make afterward required the greatest exertion of myself and staff, when everything was in motion, and in woods of the difficult nature usually found in Virginia, no one of the command being at all acquainted with the ground over which we were moving.

After the forward movement begun, a few minutes brought us to the White Oak Road, distant about a thousand yards. There we found the advance of Gen. McKenzie's Cavalry, which, coming up the White Oak Road, had arrived there just before us. This showed us, for the first time, that we were too far to our right of the enemy's left flank. Gen. Ayres' right crossed the road in the open field, and his division commenced changing front at once, so as to bring his line on the right flank of the enemy's position. Fortunately for us, the enemy's left flank so rested in the woods that he could not fire at us as we crossed this open field, and the part of it that faced us formed a very short line. This Gen. Ayres attacked at once, the firing being heavy, but less than usually destructive, on account of the thick woods. The rapid change of front by Gen. Ayres caused his right flank, at first, to get in advance of Gen. Crawford's, owing to the greater distance the latter had to move, and exposed it to being taken in flank by the enemy. Orders were sent by me to Gen. Crawford to oblique his division to the left and close up this interval.

As soon as I had found the enemy's left flank, orders were sent to Gen. Griffin, by several staff officers, to move also obliquely to the left, and come in to the support of Gen. Ayres. But as Griffin's division was moving out of sight in the woods, the order only reached him in the neighborhood of the place marked "Chimneys" on the map. While giving orders thus, I did not think it proper to leave my place in the open field, because it was one where my staff officers, sent to different parts of the command could immediately find me on their return, and thus I could get information from all points at once, and utilize the many eyes of my staff and those of my commanders, instead of going to some special point myself, and neglect all others.

The time had not arrived, in my judgment, for me to do that. It may be that at this time it was that Gen. Sheridan thought I did not exert myself to inspire confidence in the troops that broke under a not very severe fire. There was no such necessity for my personal presence for such purposes reported from any part of the field.

The time which elapsed before hearing from Gen. Crawford or Gen. Griffin convinced me they must have passed on beyond the right of Gen. Ayres. Leaving sufficient means to send any important information after me, I then rode rapidly to the right, near the Chimneys, and was received with a considerable fire from the enemy across the open field. As I afterward learned, this fire occasioned some unsteadiness in Gen. Ayres' right, and also caused the left of Gen. Crawford to oblique to the right, so as to keep the protection of the ridge and trees. I remained here till Gen. Griffin arrived with his division, when I directed him to attack the enemy on the right of Gen. Ayres, and this he proceeded to do. I then rode back to Gen. Ayres' position, and found that he had captured the enemy's extreme right and some thousand prisoners. This information I sent to Gen. Griffin, and then rode as rapidly as possible to direct Gen. Crawford, as circumstances might require.

Before proceeding further, I will give quotations from Major Cope's report relating to the preceding:

"You sent me to Gen. Griffin with an order to bring his division toward the White Oak Road, by the flank, in order to be in better supporting distance of the second division. Also to inform Gen. Crawford that he was going somewhat too far to the right. I found Gens. Griffin and Crawford to the right of the Chimneys, and gave them your orders. At this time the enemy had a line of skirmishers running from the left of their line of works, by the Sidney House, toward Hatcher's Run. You came to where Gen. Griffin was, and then returned to the White Oak Road, where I joined you a few minutes after. The part of the enemy's line where you were had been carried by Gen. Ayres, and you sent me again to Gen. Griffin, with this information, and with an order to push forward as fast as possible. He had already reached the Sidney House, and was pushing forward across the field. I delivered your order, and gave him the direction to advance, which was west."

I also annex an extract from Gen. Ayres' report, describing his operations after the forward movement began:

"After moving through a wood into an opening, the skirmishers engaged those of the enemy, pushing them back. Soon after crossing the White Oak Road, finding the enemy's fire to come from the left, I changed front to the left, by facing the second brigade to the left, and filing it to the left. Not to lose time, I also threw the first brigade (his reserve) into the front line on the left of the second. The third brigade, soon after engaging the enemy, finding its right flank in the air (I must confess that I experienced anxiety also on this account) portions of it were very unsteady, but subsequently moved up and bore their part of the action in a handsome manner. After this change of front, the troops were pushed forward and soon came upon the left flank of the enemy, which was thrown back at right angles with his main line, and covered by a strong breastwork, screened behind a dense undergrowth of pines, and about one hundred yards in length. This breastwork my troops charged, and took it at the bayonet's point, capturing, in carrying it, over one thousand prisoners and several battle-flags. Halting there a short time by Gen. Sheridan's order, till it was apparent the enemy were giving away generally, I pushed forward rapidly, holding my men in hand, and marching steadily in line of battle."

I have italicised the "halting there," &c., because it shows that Gen. Sheridan modified his own order not to halt. No order to halt was given by me. What caused the general giving way of the enemy while Gen. Ayres was halted by Gen. Sheridan's order, was due to the operations elsewhere directed.

It will be seen that the rapid change of front by Gen. Ayres, necessitated by the unexpected condition of things, unavoidably threw his flank temporarily in the "air." Had the line gradually swung round, by wheeling, Gen. Crawford would have been on his right, but as it was, the change had the momentary effect to leave Gen. Crawford "en echelon," in rear of Ayres' right. It happened, also, that the right of Gen. Ayres became exposed, too, to a fire from the enemy across the open field, around Sidney's. Gen. Crawford's left encountered this same fire, as it came up on Gen. Ayres' right, and the effect was to cause Crawford's line to oblique somewhat to the right to gain the cover of the woods and ridges, but it kept steadily moving on in the enemy's rear—a threatening movement which made the position of the enemy no longer tenable, assailed as he was both in front and flank beside.

I will now extract from Gen. Crawford's report. After giving a copy of the order to attack that I had furnished him with (see p. 32), he says:

"In obedience to this order we crossed Gravelly Run; crossed the White Oak Road, and changed direction to the left, and advanced directly west. We encountered the enemy's skirmishers shortly after moving, driving them steadily back. Our way led through bogs, tangled woods, and thickets of pine, interspersed with open spaces here and there. The connection between the Second Division and my line, could not be maintained. I received an order from both Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Warren, to press rapidly forward. I urged on the entire command. Gen. Coulter's Brigade, from being in support of my rear, was brought to fill the gap between me and the Second Division. I pressed immediately on and found myself in the enemy's rear on the Ford Road, which I crossed." * * "Just at this point the enemy opened on my centre and left flank a very heavy fire. Maj.-Gen. Warren arriving on the field at that moment, directed me to advance immediately down the Ford Road, and Gen. Coulter's Brigade was selected for that purpose. Two regiments, commanded by Major Funk, placed on what was then the left of the road, and the rest of the brigade were on the right, supported by the other two brigades en echelon, I advanced at once, and captured a battery of four guns and the battle-flag of the 32d Virginia Infantry. We then changed direction and advanced again in a south-west direction, the enemy flying before us, though keeping up a desultory firing."

Gen. Griffin's report says :

"Immediately after, the order to advance against the enemy was given, with instructions to the division that after it had crossed the road it was to change direction to the left, so as to strike the enemy in flank and rear. After advancing about a mile, and finding nothing in front, save a few cavalry videttes, and there being heavy volleys of musketry to the left and rear, and division was halted."

This halting, under the circumstances, was a commendable exercise of discretion. He says that a personal examination showing him the enemy on his left, he marched in that direction. To effect this same thing I had sent Major Cope to him, as already stated. A small portion of Gen. Griffin's Division became separated in the woods from the rest, and continued on with Gen. Crawford's division, and was used by me on the Ford Road. Gen. Griffin, having made proper dispositions, "moved against the enemy at double-quick," taking his breastworks and 1,500 prisoners.

As stated by Gen. Crawford, I came up with his division near B. Boiseau's after he had crossed the Ford Road. He had been driving back the enemy's skirmish line all the way, and continually turning the left of any force opposing Gens. Ayres and Griffin. I at once directed his line to swing round to face southward, as we had now closed up the outlet for the enemy's escape northward, and to move down upon the position of the enemy at the forks of the road, a point well indicated to us by the firing of some pieces of artillery there by the enemy. Gen. Crawford's troops soon encountered a stiff line of the enemy formed to meet him, and from the fire of which Gen. Coulter's brigade suffered severely. The contest, however, was short, for the enemy, now pressed front, flank and rear, mostly threw down their arms. Three guns of the captured battery were found on the road, where they had been stopped in their attempt to escape northward.

Immediately after the forks were gained I directed Gen. Crawford to change front again to the right, and march toward the sound of the firing, so as again to take the enemy in flank and rear, and this he at once did. I also directed a cavalry brigade, which had been kept mounted, and which now came rapidly along the Ford Road toward me, not to move along it further, but to file to their left and proceed in the direction Gen. Crawford had taken.

NOTE.—Gen. Sheridan's report states that he directed Gen. McKenzie to swing round on the right of the infantry, and gain the Ford Road, so as to cut off the enemy's escape that way. As Gen. McKenzie did not succeed in getting there till after the infantry had gained the road, I asked of him the nature of his operations. He informed me that in attempting to execute his order he found himself north of Hatcher's Run, and moving directly away from the battle, which seemed heavy. He therefore (as Gen. Griffin had done) moved back toward the White Oak Road, so as to take part in the action.

I then passed down the Ford Road, and on reaching the forks, turned to the right along the White Oak Road. The troops were joyous and filled with enthusiasm at their success, but somewhat disorganized thereby and by their marching and fighting so long in the woods. On my arriving at the point E (see map), I found that our advance there was stayed by the enemy, who had formed a new line for their left flank near the position F, while they yet maintained their front against our cavalry on the south. Though the orders had been not to halt, and many officers were then urging their men forward, the disordered men not feeling the influence of their commanders, continued to fire without advancing.

Accompanied by Captain Benyaurd and the portion of my staff then present, I rode out to the front and called those near me to follow. This was immediately responded to. Everywhere along the front the color-bearers and officers sprang out, and, without more firing, our men advanced, capturing all the enemy remaining.

During this last charge my horse was fatally shot within a few paces of the line where the enemy made his last stand, an orderly by my side was killed, and Col. Richardson, of the Seventh Wisconsin, who sprang between me and the enemy, was severely wounded.

I sent Gen. Bankhead, after the last of the enemy had been captured, to Gen. Sheridan, to report the result and receive his instructions. He returned with the reply that my instructions had been sent me. At 7 P.M. they reached me, and were as follows:

“Major-General Warren, commanding Fifth Army Corps, is relieved from duty, and will report at once for orders to Lieut.-Gen. Grant, commanding armies U. S.”

I at once asked of Gen. Sheridan an explanation of this order, but could obtain none.

The Fifth Corps, in this battle, captured 3244 men, with their arms, eleven regimental colors, and one four-gun battery with its caissons.

It lost, in killed and wounded, 634 men, of which 300 were in Gen. Crawford's division, 205 in Gen. Ayres' division, and 125 in Gen. Griffin's division. Among these were several distinguished officers of high promise. Their names will be duly recorded in the official reports.

CONCLUSION.

I believe there never was a previous period of my military life when the operations I have described would not have gained me the praise of my superior. I have seen nearly all the principal officers of my command, and all unite in telling me that they regard my treatment as unjust. Gen. Griffin assured me he would so express himself at suitable opportunity to Gen. Sheridan. Of the many expressions of sympathy I have received from members of my corps, the following letter, sent me unsolicited, but published here by permission, written by one of its most worthy officers—Col. T. F. McCoy, of the One Hundred and Seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers—is given as a type:

“I had expected to have the pleasure of meeting you before retiring from the service, personally paying my respects, and bidding you a kind farewell; but it was ordered otherwise. A mere glimpse of you, as we passed through Petersburg on our march North, was the last sight the Fifth Corps had of their beloved commander. I can most truthfully assure you of your great popularity with the Corps, both officers and men; and I can assure you further, that it was a prevailing sentiment that it was a well-merited popularity. I speak freely and frankly. I can realize how gratifying it is to a commanding officer to know that he has the love and respect of his men.

“On the 2d day of April, when it was known that you had been taken from us, there was mingled surprise, regret, and gloom. I have read and re-read, again and again, Gen. Sheridan’s report of the battle of Five Forks, and, in my humble judgment, he utterly fails in justifying his conduct in your removal. Even if what he asserted were true (which I do not believe), in view of your past valuable services to the country, and more especially to your Corps, and you in command, having, in a great measure, gained by its splendid conduct that afternoon, the most important victory of the campaign; and while thanks and shouts were going up to Heaven for the great achievement, to relieve from his honored command one of the principal heroes was an act most strange and no less astounding. This is merely the substance of what has been in my mind, and which I would have been pleased to have expressed to you personally, could I have met you at any proper period since. I look back upon this battle of the Five Forks with great interest, it being the turning point of the great movements from which flowed so many favorable and glorious results. Then, I have a more personal interest in it from the fact of my regiment conducting itself so well, that I had the honor of receiving the thanks of Gen. Baxter on the field.”

It is a source of much regret to me that the suddenness of my removal has prevented my taking an appropriate leave of my command, and thereby to express to them my warm wishes for their future, and my sympathy with them, whatever that future may be.

I feel, too, that many to whom it would have been gratifying to carry with them to their homes my testimony of their services have been deprived of it. So far as this can be remedied, I shall be glad to do so yet. I also hope that those who may have been overlooked in the distribution of honors will write to me, and I will endeavor to promote their just claims as far as my endorsement can.

APPENDIX.

I give herein an appendix of all the authoritative communications yet published on the battle of Five Forks.

LETTER FROM GEN. WARREN IN REGARD TO HIS BEING RELIEVED BY GEN. SHERIDAN.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER, Thursday, May 11, 1865.

TO THE EDITORS OF THE NEW YORK Times:

I respectfully request the publication in your paper of this communication and accompanying letters relating to the battle of Five Forks.

The only reason I have heard assigned for relieving me at that time were the surmises of newspaper correspondents, which there is no authority for. But an unfriendly spirit toward me apparently dictated their suppositions, and they have done me much injustice. I was relieved only after the battle was over, and while at the head of my troops, and when not even a fugitive of the enemy was in sight.

I personally sought of Gen. Sheridan a reason for his order; but he would not, or could not, give one, and declined to do so. I obeyed the order to report to Gen. Grant that night, and was by him assigned to the command of the defenses at City Point and Bermuda Hundred. After the evacuation of Richmond and Petersburg, I was given the command of the troops at the latter place and along the Southside Railroad belonging to the Army of the Potomac. When these troops were relieved by troops from the Army of the James, I was left in Petersburg awaiting orders. I then addressed a letter (copy sent herewith), dated April 9th, to Gen. Rawlins, Chief of Staff, soliciting an investigation. On the 22d April, I sent another, requesting permission to publish the first one, for the reasons set forth therein (copy sent herewith). On the 2d May, I telegraphed Col. Bowers, Adjutant-General, to ascertain if these had been received, and he answered, they "were received, the latter during Gen. Grant's absence. Orders have been sent you (me) to report here, when you can see the General."

On May 3d, I received by telegraph an extract from Gen. Orders No. 78, of May 1, assigning me to the command of the Department of the Mississippi. I at once proceeded to Washington, and after a personal interview with Gen. Grant, received, on the 6th of May, an answer to my communications of the 9th and 22d April, authorizing my publishing them, and stating the reasons for not granting me the investigation sought. A copy of this letter is herewith sent.

Having thus exhausted my means of getting at the cause of my being relieved by Gen. Sheridan, I present the following brief account of the operations on the 1st of April:

The operations of the enemy on the 31st of March made it necessary for me to send a portion of my corps during the night to support Gen. Sheridan's cavalry, which had been forced back to near Dinwiddie Court-house. One of my divisions was thus compelled to march all night, after having fought all day, and the rest of the corps moved toward the enemy that confronted the cavalry at daybreak.

GRAVE OF MAJOR-GENERAL GOUVERNEUR KEMBLE WARREN AT NEWPORT, RHODE ISLAND

Our presence on the flank and rear of the enemy compelled him to fall back rapidly to the vicinity of the Five Forks, and Gen. Sheridan, on advancing with the cavalry, found him slightly intrenched there. This force proved to be a complete division of the enemy's infantry, and all the cavalry of Lee's army.

I received an order from Gen. Meade, after joining Gen. Sheridan, to report to him for duty, which I did, and the corps was halted by his direction at the point where we joined him, about 8 A.M. At 1 P.M. I was directed to bring up the corps to Gravelly Run Church, a distance of about two and three-fourths miles from where they had been halted, and there form with two divisions in front and one in reserve, so as to move with the whole corps, and attack and turn the enemy's left flank on the White Oak Road.

My line was formed accordingly. Ayres on the left, in three lines of battle; Crawford on the right, in three lines of battle; and Griffin's division in reserve in masses. This occupied till 4 P.M. The forward movement then began. Gen. Ayres' Division became first engaged, wheeling to the left, from facing north to facing west as it advanced. Gen. Crawford's Division also wheeled to the left on Gen. Ayres' as a pivot, but owing to the nature of the ground and forests, and the greater distance to gain, he lost his connection with Gen. Ayres.

Into the interval thus left Gen. Griffin's Division was placed. These two divisions steadily drove in the enemy's left flank. Gen. Crawford's Division moved on westward till it gained the road leading north from the centre of the enemy's position, when it was wheeled to the south, and attacked the troops that were endeavoring to hold this road as an outlet for escape.

All the divisions now closed in upon the enemy, capturing the artillery that was attempting to move north, and nearly all the infantry, which their movements had thrown in the greatest confusion. I successively followed the operations of my divisions from left to right, being with Gen. Crawford when the position was taken.

While these movements above described were going on, the cavalry engaged the enemy along his whole front, which was facing south. The enemy still maintained the right of his line, confronting the cavalry, after we had swept away his left and centre; but the Fifth Corps crowding along the line without waiting to reform, captured all who remained as it swept along.

I was with the extreme advance in the last movement, and was relieved while there at 7 P.M., the battle being then over, and not even a fugitive enemy in sight.

The following are the copies of the letters herein referred to.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

G. K. WARREN,

GEN. WARREN TO COL. BOWERS.

PETERSBURG, April 22, 1865.

TO COL. T. S. BOWERS, A.-G.,

Head-Quarters Armies of United States:

Colonel: I beg leave forward a copy of communication addressed to Head-Quarters Armies United States, on the 9th instant, with the request to be allowed to publish the same. This will relieve me and my friends from an unpleasant relation to the public, will answer many letters daily received, and will prevent my silence being an injury to me. I can then patiently wait the investigation that I do not doubt will in due time be accorded to me.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

G. K. WARREN,

Maj.-Gen. Vols.

REQUEST FOR AN INVESTIGATION.

PETERSBURG, April 9, 1865.

TO BRIG.-GEN. J. A. RAWLINS, Chief Staff,

Head-Quarters Armies of United States:

General: The order of Gen. Sheridan taking from me the command of my corps on the evening of the 1st of April, after the victory was won, assigns no cause, and leaves me open to the inferences now finding expression in the public prints, and which are in every way to my prejudice.

I am unconscious of having done anything improper or unbecoming to my position, or the character of a soldier, or neglected any order or duty.

I therefore respectfully request a full investigation of the matter as soon as the exigencies of the service will admit.

I make this application now while awaiting orders, which I deem the most appropriate time; but I do not intend nor desire to press the matter upon the consideration of the Lieutenant-General until he can give it his attention without interfering with more important duties. The regard already shown me, in immediately assigning to me another command on the 2d inst., gives me the assurance that he will not deem it an intrusion to solicit an opportunity to vindicate the honor and reputation of a faithful soldier of the Union, who waits in silence under an unmerited injury, till such time as his superior shall be ready to give him a hearing.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

G. K. WARREN,

GEN. GRANT'S REPLY.

HEAD-QUARTERS ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES,
WASHINGTON, May 6, 1865.

TO MAJOR-GENERAL G. K. WARREN :

General: Your note, requesting authority to publish your application for an investigation of the grounds upon which you were relieved from the command of the Fifth Army Corps, or to have the investigation, is received.

It is impossible at this time to give the court and witnesses necessary for the investigation, but I see nothing in your application objectionable to have published.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT,

Lieutenant-General.

The following report, it will be perceived, contradicts no statement of my letter of May 11th :

REPORT OF MAJOR-GENERAL SHERIDAN.

CAVALRY HEAD-QUARTERS, May 16, 1865.

General: I have the honor to submit the following narrative of the operations of my command during the recent campaign in front of Petersburg and Richmond, terminating with the surrender of the rebel army of Northern Virginia, at Appomattox Court-house, Virginia, on April 9, 1865 :

During the night of the 31st of March, my head-quarters were at Dinwiddie Court-house, and the Lieutenant-General notified me that the Fifth Corps would report to me, and should reach me about midnight. This corps had been offered me on the 30th instant; but very much desiring the Sixth Corps, which had been with me in Shenandoah Valley, I asked for it, but on account of the delay which would occur in moving that corps from its position in the lines in front of Petersburg, it could not be sent to me. I respectfully submit herewith my brief accounts of the operations of the day, the response to which was the ordering of the Fifth Corps to my support and my command, as also the dispatch from the Lieutenant-General notifying me of his action. I understood that the Fifth Corps, when ordered to report to me, was in position near S. Dabney's house, in the angle between the Boydton Road and the Five Forks Road.

Had Gen. Warren moved according to the expectations of the Lieutenant-General, there would appear to have been but little chance for the escape of the enemy's infantry in front of Dinwiddie Court-house. Ayres' Division moved down the Boydton Plank-road during the night, and in the morning moved west via

R. Boiseau's house, striking the Five Forks Road about two and a half miles north of Dinwiddie Court-house. Gen. Warren, with Griffin's and Crawford's Divisions, moved down the road by Crump's house, coming into the Five Forks Road near J. Boiseau's house between 7 and 8 o'clock on the morning of the 1st of April. Meantime, I moved my cavalry force at daylight against the enemy's lines in front, which gave way rapidly, moving off by the right flank and crossing Chamberlain's Creek. This hasty movement was accelerated by the discovery that two divisions of the Fifth Corps were in their rear and that one division was moving toward their left and rear.

The following were the instructions sent to Gen. Warren:

CAVALRY HEAD-QUARTERS, DINWIDDIE COURT-HOUSE,
April 1, 1865, 3 A.M.

TO MAJOR-GENERAL WARREN,

Commanding Fifth Army Corps:

I am holding in front of Dinwiddie Court-house, on the road leading to Five Forks, for three-quarters of a mile, with General Custer's Division. The enemy are in his immediate front, lying so as to cover the road just this side of A. Adams' house, which leads out across Chamberlain's Bed or Run. I understand you have a division at J. Boiseau's; if so, you are in the rear of the enemy's lines, and almost on his flanks. I will hold on here. Possibly they may attack Custer at daylight; if so, attack instantly in full force. Attack at daylight anyhow, and I will make an effort to get the road this side of Adam's house; and if I do, you can capture the whole of them. Any force moving down the road I am holding, or on the White Oak Road, will be in the enemy's rear, and, in all probability, get any force that may escape you by a flank attack. Do not fear my leaving here. If the enemy remains, I shall fight at daylight.

P. H. SHERIDAN,
Major-General.

As they fell back, the enemy were rapidly followed by General Merritt's two divisions, General Devin on the right and General Custer on the left, General Crook in the rear. During the remainder of the day, General Crook's division held the extreme left and rear, and was not seriously engaged.

I then determined that I would drive the enemy, with the cavalry, to the Five Forks, press them inside of their works, and make a feint to turn their right flank; and, meanwhile, quietly move up the Fifth Corps, with a view to attacking their left flank, crush the whole force, if possible, and drive westward those who might escape, thus isolating them from their army at Petersburg. Happily, this conception was successfully executed. About this time, General McKenzie's Division of Cavalry, from the Army of the James, reported to me, and consisted of about 1,000 effective men. I directed Gen. Warren to hold fast at J. Boiseau's house, refresh his men, and be ready to move to the front when required; and General McKenzie was ordered to rest in front of Dinwiddie Court-house until further orders.

Meantime, General Merritt's command continued to press the enemy, and by impetuous charges, drove them from two lines of temporary works; General Custer guiding his advance on the widow Gilliam's house, and General Devin on the main Five Forks Road. The courage displayed by the cavalry officers and men was superb, and about 2 o'clock the enemy was behind his works on the White Oak Road, and his skirmish line drawn in. I then ordered up the Fifth Corps on the main road, and sent Brevet Major Gillespie, of the Engineers, to turn the head of the column off on the Gravelly Church Road, and put the corps in position on this road, obliquely to and at a point but a short distance from the White Oak Road, and about one mile from the Five Forks. Two divisions of the corps were to form the front line, and one division was to be held in reserve, in columns of regiments, opposite the centre.

I then directed General Merritt to demonstrate as though he was attempting to turn the enemy's right flank, and notified that the Fifth Corps would strike the enemy's left flank, and ordered that the cavalry should assault the enemy's works as soon as the Fifth Corps became engaged, and that would be determined by the volleys of musketry. I then rode over to where the Fifth Corps was going into position, and found them coming up very slowly. I was exceedingly anxious to attack at once, for the sun was getting low, and we had to fight or go back. It was no place to intrench, and it would have been shameful to have gone back with no results to compensate for the loss of the brave men who had fallen during the day. In this connection, I will say that Gen. Warren did not exert himself to get up his corps as rapidly as he might have done; and his manner gave me the impression that he wished the sun to go down before dispositions for the attack could be completed. As soon as the corps was in position, I ordered an advance in the following formation: Ayres' Division on the left, in double lines; Crawford's Division on the right, in double lines; and Griffin's Division in reserve, behind Crawford; and the White Oak Road was reached without opposition.

While General Warren was getting in position, I learned that the left of the Second Corps of the Army of the Potomac, on my right, had been swung around from the direction of its line of battle until it fronted on the Boydton Road, and parallel to it, which offered an opportunity to the enemy to march down the White Oak Road and attack me in right and rear. General McKenzie was therefore sent up to the Camp Road, with directions to gain the White Oak Road, if possible; but to attack at all hazards any enemy found, and, if successful, then march down the road and join me. General McKenzie executed this with courage and skill, attacking a force of the enemy on the White Oak Road, and driving it toward Petersburg. He then countermarched, and then joined me on the White Oak Road just as the Fifth Corps advanced to the attack, and I directed him to swing round with the right of the infantry and gain possession of the Ford Road at the crossing of Hatcher's Run. The Fifth Corps, on reaching the White Oak Road, made a left wheel, and burst on the enemy's left flank and rear like a tornado, and pushed rapidly on, orders having been given that, if the enemy was routed, there should be no halt to reform broken lines. As stated before, the firing of the Fifth Corps was the signal to Gen. Merritt to assault, which was promptly responded to, and the works of the enemy were soon carried at several points by our brave cavalymen. The enemy were driven from their strong line of works and completely routed, the Fifth Corps doubling up their left flank in confusion, and the cavalry of Gen. Merritt dashing on to the White Oak Road, capturing their artillery and turning it upon them; and riding into their broken ranks so demoralized them that they made no serious stand after their line was carried, but took to flight in disorder. Between 5,000 and 6,000 prisoners fell into our hands, and the fugitives were driven westward, and were pursued until long after dark by Merritt's and McKenzie's cavalry for a distance of six miles.

During the attack I again became dissatisfied with General Warren. During the engagement portions of his line gave way, when not exposed to a heavy fire, and simply for want of confidence on the part of the troops, which General Warren did not exert himself to inspire. I therefore relieved him from the command of the Fifth Corps, authority for this action having been sent to me before the battle, unsolicited. When the pursuit was given up, I directed General Griffin, who had been ordered to assume command of the Fifth Corps, to collect his troops at once, march two divisions back to Gravelly Church, and put them into position at right angles to the White Oak Road, facing toward Petersburg, while Bartlett's Division, Griffin's old, covered the Ford Road to Hatcher's Run. General Merritt's cavalry went into camp on the widow Gilliam's plantation, and General McKenzie took position on the Ford Road at the crossing of Hatcher's Run. I cannot speak too highly of the conduct of the troops in this battle, and of the gallantry of their commanding officers, who appeared to realize that the success of the campaign and fate of Lee's army depended upon it. They merit the thanks of the country and reward of the Government. To Generals Griffin, Ayres, Bartlett, and Crawford, of the Fifth Corps, and to Generals Merritt, Custer, Devin, and McKenzie, of the cavalry, great credit is due, and to their subordinate commanders they will undoubtedly award the praise which is due to them for the hearty co-operation, bravery, and ability which were everywhere displayed.

I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

P. H. SHERIDAN,

CAVALRY HEAD-QUARTERS, DINWIDDIE C. H.,

March 31, 1865.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL GRANT,

Commanding Armies United States:

The enemy's cavalry attacked me about 10 o'clock to-day, on the road coming in from the west, and a little north of Dinwiddie C. H. This attack was very handsomely repulsed by Gen. Smith's Brigade of Crook's Division, and the enemy was driven across Chamberlain Creek. Shortly afterward, the enemy's infantry attacked on the same Creek in heavy force, and drove in Gen. Davies' Brigade, and, advancing rapidly, gained the forks of the roads at J. Boiseau's. This forced Devin, who was in advance, and Davies, to cross to the Boydton Road. Gen. Gregg's Brigade and Gen. Gibbs', who had been toward Dinwiddie, then attacked the enemy in the rear very handsomely. This stopped the march toward the left of our infantry, and finally caused them to turn toward Dinwiddie and attack us in heavy force. The enemy then again attacked at Chamberlain's Creek, and forced Smith's position. At this point Caphart and Pennington's brigades of Custer's Division came up, and a very handsome fight occurred.

The enemy have gained some ground, but we still hold in front of Dinwiddie C. H., and Davies and Devin are coming down the Boydton Road to join us.

The opposing force was Pickett's Division, Wise's Independent Brigade of Infantry, and Fitzhugh Lee's, Rosser's and W. H. Lee's Cavalry commands.

The men behaved splendidly. Our loss in killed and wounded will probably number four hundred and fifty men; very few were lost as prisoners.

We have of the enemy a number of prisoners. The force is too strong for us. I will hold out to Dinwiddie C. H. until I am compelled to leave.

Our fighting to-day was all dismounted.

P. H. SHERIDAN,

Major-General.

DABNEY MILLS, March 31, 1865, 10.05 P.M.

MAJOR-GENERAL SHERIDAN:

The Fifth Corps has been ordered to your support. Two divisions will go to J. Boiseau's, and one down the Boydton Road. In addition to this, I have sent McKenzie's Cavalry, which will reach you by the Vaughan Road.

All these forces, except the cavalry, should reach you by 12 to-night.

You will assume command of the whole force sent to operate with you, and use it, to the best of your ability, to destroy the force which your command has fought so gallantly to-day.

U. S. GRANT,

Lieutenant-General.

COLONEL AND MRS. WASHINGTON AUGUSTUS ROEBLING
