TO

MARY WHARTON RANKIN

MY DEAR WIFE, BY WHOSE DEVOTION AND ASSISTANCE
LIFE HAS BEEN MADE HAPPY AND ITS LABORS A PLEASURE,
THIS VOLUME IS LOVINGLY DEDICATED.

As for man, his days are as grass; as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. For the wind passeth over it, and it is gone, and the place thereof shall know it no more; but the mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear Him, and His righteousness unto children's children, to such as keep His covenant, and to those that remember His commandments to do them.

—Psalm 103: 15-18.

EXPLANATIONS

Every name has an individual number. The number comes after the name when the name first appears as a child in a family; and the same number comes before the name when that child marries and has a family of his own. Look in the index for the name and number of your parent, and turn to the number preceding the name. In the female line the maiden name is given in the index. To find the name of your grandparent, turn back to the number coming after the name of your parent. By following the numbers you can trace the direct line of any family forward or backward.

Where branches of the family have intermarried, you are referred to the number in that family, thus avoiding a repetition of names.

PREFACE

In preparing these sketches and the genealogy of the Rankin and Wharton families the author has given much time. It has been a pleasant task; especially as the descendants of both families seem still to bear in character the old Scottish motto, "Fortiter et recte," which may be translated "Courage and rectitude." A few have attained noted distinction in their chosen professions and their names are in "Who is Who." We are proud of them; but something to be more proud of is that all have lived honorable lives.

It naturally fell to my lot to write this book. I was born and grew to young manhood on the original Rankin home place in North Carolina which adjoins the original Wharton farm. For four years I was pastor of old Alamance Church where so many of our relatives lived. For seventeen years I was Superintendent of Presbyterial Home Missions, which carried me to all places in this section of our State, and I was often entertained in the homes of kinsmen. My opportunities for gathering facts were unusually good.

In collecting information for these sketches the libraries of Washington, D. C., Philadelphia and Lancaster, Pa., Wilmington, Del., Greensboro and Raleigh, N. C., and many other places have been visited. The records in dozens of counties in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and North Carolina have been carefully examined. Scores of volumes of history and records have been read. The facts about Jacob de Rankin were obtained from the late Mrs. Melissa Rankin File, of Berkeley, California, and Sir Reginald Rankin, of Hereford, England.

I was fortunate in getting a copy of the "Whartons of Wharton Hall," by Professor Edmund Ross Wharton, of Oxford, England. From this I have gotten many of the facts here given. "The Wharton Family," by Miss Anne Hollingsworth Wharton, has also been of assistance. I hereby acknowledge my indebtedness to these authors. I have quoted freely from Burke's "Landed Gentry" and from Burke's "Peerage, Baronetage, and Knighthage of Great Britain."

There is a scarcity of printed material about both of these families in the United States. Most of the facts in this part of the sketches had to be collected from old records and by correspondence.

In the early days in our country the records were poorly kept. Sometimes the deeds were not recorded. Often a man died without making a will and no trace of his heirs is on record. When his estate was settled, the papers were filed away in the court house without being indexed and can not now be found. This was especially so in the colonial days. I have done the best I could with the material at hand. It is hoped that some day some interested member of the family may make a more thorough investigation of the records both in this country and England, and may be able to trace more definitely both families back to their origin.

Much of the genealogy and dates have been obtained from old family Bibles, from wills and marriage records in a number of counties, from church records, and from the stones in old cemeteries.

I am indebted to my uncle, Capt. S. C. Rankin (1831-1898), who collected data from the old people when he was a young man; to Prof. Jesse Rankin Wharton (1833-1904), who prepared a tree of the Rankin and Wharton families; to my father, Robert C. Rankin (1830-1921), who lived to be 91 years of age, and had a clear memory of what he had heard and seen; to Miss Elizabeth Whitehead, of Alhambra, Cal., and the late Mary C. Young, of Los Angeles, Cal., who together furnished a large part of the list of descendants of Jane Rankin Paisley; to Mrs. Mary J. Hawkins, of Donnellson, Ill.; and to many others too numerous to mention who have furnished lists of names, dates and marriages; and to Mrs. Mary Wharton Rankin, who assisted materially in collecting data and in preparing the manuscript for the press.

There are necessarily some mistakes in so long a list of names and dates. There are also some omissions, because hundreds of letters asking for information were not answered. If those who detect errors and omissions will write me the facts I will make corrections in a copy to be preserved in the Public Library of Greensboro for future generations.

THE RANKIN NAME

The name originated in Flanders during the twelfth century; and it was in this way: There were several small independent nations in the northern part of Europe at this time, and they were almost constantly at war among themselves. A certain man manifested great valor and cunningness in these wars, and his companions called him "Reynard," which means "fox." Webster defines "Reynard" when applied to man as meaning "Strong in council." C. W. Bardsley, in his book on the "Origin of English Surnames," says the name Rankin came from Reynard. It passed through many different spellings during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The first change was the addition of "chen" or "kyn", making Reynardkyn. This, Mr. Bardsley says, was to give a familiar or pettish ending, just as we add "ie" to John making "Johnie." Reynardkyn was soon contracted to "Reynkyn"; and "Reynkyn" was finally contracted to "Rankin."

The first record we have of a Rankin was about the year 1270. At that time a Mr. Rankin was the burgomaster, or as we would say, the mayor of the city of Ghent in Flanders. Ghent was a larger city than London or Paris at that time. There are Rankins in Flanders to this day. Some of our Rankin boys found them there while in service in the World War.

THE RANKINS IN SCOTLAND

During the latter part of the thirteenth century the Duke of Flanders made a friendly visit to King Alexander III, of Scotland, and carried with him as a member of his court Jacob de Rankin, the son of the burgomaster of Ghent. The "de" in his name means "of," or "son of," just as "Mac" in Scotch and "O" in Irish means "son of." "Jacob" in Flemish is "James" in English. We have a James in almost every family right on down the line to the present.

While visiting at the court of King Alexander, Jacob de Rankin fell in love with Margaret Keith, the daughter of Marshall Keith, and they ran away and were married. Marshall Keith, who held the second place of importance in the kingdom at that time, was very angry and sent his son to pursue and kill Rankin. Rankin killed young Keith and started to flee the country, thinking he would be condemned to death in a strange land. He was caught and brought into court. During the trial Rankin conducted himself in a becoming manner and with much decorum, and proved that he had not provoked the quarrel, and was found not guilty. Later Marshall Keith forgave him and received him into his family. Jacob de Rankin then became a citizen of Scotland. So far as the records show this was the beginning of the Rankin family in Scotland, and he is the progenitor of all the Scottish Rankins.

In 1567-1573, during the persecutions under the Duke of Alva, several thousand people fled from Flanders to England. Some by the name of Rankin may have come at this time. There seem to be some Rankin families in England, and America too, that we can not connect with the Flemish-Scotch family.

James Paterson in his history of "Ayr and Wigton," says that for many generations in Scotland they were called Mac-Rankin; but that later the "Mac" was dropped, as the family was not of Celtic but of Flemish origin.

They increased and multiplied, and scattered over all parts of Scotland; but the name is not so numerous as the names of earlier Celtic settlers of Scotland.

We can not trace the line of our family through the more than three centuries that they lived in Scotland. There is in Renfrew County an ancestral estate that remained in the Rankin family four hundred years. Laurence Rankin was called the Laird of Sheil by John Knox. John Rankin, the special friend of Robert Burns, was a descendant of Sheil. Sir James Rankin, of Whitehall, was also a descendant of Sheil. Robert Rankin, a descendant of Sir James, was the chairman of the Liverpool chamber of commerce for years. Sir James Rankin, baronet of Bryngwyn, was a member of Parliament for thirty years. The late Dr. John Rankin, of Edinburgh, was a great theologian. William B. E. Rankin, of Edinburgh, is a collector of art.

Some of the Rankins of Scotland followed the profession of music. When the celebrated Dr. Samuel Johnson, in company with James Boswell, made a tour of the Highlands and the Hebrides, he was entertained by Laird McLean, of Coll. In writing of this he says: "The bag piper played regularly when dinner was served, whose person and dress made a good appearance, and he brought no disgrace upon the family of Rankin which has long supplied to the Laird of Coll with hereditary music." Lieutenant Colonel Sir Reginald Rankin, baronet, is now the chief officer in the city of Hereford, England. He is also a writer of note. Many others of the name have been and are prominent in learning and leadership in Scotland and England.

THE RANKINS IN IRELAND

During the last years of the reign of Queen Elizabeth there was an organized rebellion among the Catholic earls of the province of Ulster, Ireland, against the English government. After much hard fighting this rebellion was subdued, and the earls fled to France. In 1603 King James VI of Scotland acquired the English throne, and became King James I of England. He restored to these earls their former lands and titles. In 1607 it was reported, perhaps falsely, that another rebellion was being organized among these earls. The English government began the collection of an army. The earls became frightened and fled to other countries, leaving thousands of tenants and over five hundred thousand acres of land. James I confiscated these lands to the Crown, and ordered all the tenants remaining there to move to other parts of Ireland. He then offered these lands to his favorites of Scotland. History tells us that within two years, 1610-1612, over ten thousand Scots, mostly from the Lowlands of Scotland, settled in Ulster, Ireland. Large tracts of land were also given to London land companies who obligated themselves to have the land settled by Protestants.

In 1610 Episcopacy, which lasted for only a few years, was forced on the people of Scotland, and this caused many Presbyterians to emigrate to Ireland. In 1663 Episcopacy was again forced on Scotland and there was another large movement from Scotland to Ireland. In fact there was a constant movement, but greater at some times than others.

In 1688, during the last year of the reign of James II of England, there were religious and rebellious persecutions in Scotland. Two of the brothers of William Rankin were assassinated, and he, and perhaps others of the same family, fled to Ireland.

We do not know when our ancestors emigrated to Ireland, but it must have been between 1610 and 1689. We do know that they lived in Ulster as much as forty years, and they may have been there a little over one hundred years.

John Fiske, the historian, tells us that by 1650 there were over three hundred thousand Scotchmen in Ulster; and that by 1700 their number had increased to nearly one million, largely "picked men and women." He relates that in 1718 a miscellaneous bunch of three hundred and nineteen were called upon to sign a paper and that all but thirteen could write their names, and he says that this could not have happened in any other part of the British Empire at that time. He furthermore says "in 1710 the percentage of illiteracy in Ulster was probably smaller than anywhere else in the world."

The industrious and thrifty Scotch caused Ulster to become the most prosperous province of Ireland, and it is still the most prosperous. They improved their lands and built better homes. They first gave their attention to cattle raising, and shipped beef, cheese and butter to England. This was hurtful to the business of the cattle raisers of England, and Parliament was persuaded to pass an Act forbidding the shipping of cattle, beef, cheese and butter from Ireland to England or to any of the English colonies. This was a great hardship on the Ulster farmers.

They then began to raise large flocks of sheep, and were soon extensively manufacturing woolen goods. This was hurtful to the business of the sheep raisers of England, and at their earnest request the English Parliament passed an Act in 1699 forbidding the exporting of wool and woolen goods out of Ireland. The woolen factories of Ulster were closed down and forty thousand hands were thrown out of employment. Dr. Joyce, in his history of Ireland, says that this Act ruined the Irish wool trade, and that twenty thousand Protestants, mostly Presbyterians, of Ulster emigrated the next year to America.

The Scotch of Ulster then turned their attention to the raising of flax, and were soon manufacturing Irish linens. The London merchants wished to make a profit out of these linens and they persuaded the English Parliament to pass an Act forbidding the shipping of linen goods from Ireland to any other country except England. Moreover the taxes of the Scotch in Ulster were constantly being raised, and the London landlords continued to increase the rents of those who lived on rented land. This accumulation of unfavorable legislation made the Scotch of Ireland more and more dissatisfied.

In 1704 the English Parliament passed the Test Act, which required all government officials, and all town, county and army officers, and all lawyers to take the communion according to the forms and rites of the Established Church of England. We can readily understand how this would irritate those Scotch Presbyterians and how they would resent it.

In 1714 the Schism Act was passed which required all school teachers to secure a license from a bishop of the Established Church, and a bishop could grant a license only to those who conformed to the Test Act. These were sad days for the Scotch Presbyterians of Ulster.

They were oppressed commercially, politically and religiously by the English government. It is no surprising thing that when America was opened for colonization that they emigrated in such large numbers. Nor is it surprising that when the colonies of America engaged in war for their independence that these Scotch-Irish were found fighting with such vigor and unanimity the country that had oppressed them. In fact, we are told, that most of the people of Ulster were in sympathy with the colonies in their war for independence. George Bancroft, the historian, speaks of the American Revolutionary war as a Presbyterian war.

The descendants of the Scotch who lived in Ireland for a time are called Scotch-Irish in America, although they are pure Scotch in blood. All historians tell us that there was no intermarrying, or at least very little, with the original Irish people.

THE RANKINS IN AMERICA

Columbus discovered America in 1492, but it was not until 1607, one hundred and fifteen years after the discovery, that the first permanent settlement was made at Jamestown, Virginia. In 1620 the Pilgrim fathers settled at Plymouth, Mass. One hundred years after the first settlement there were less than a half million people in the colonies. There were several reasons for the slowness of the immigration: Transportation was hard to procure at that day; the Indians were numerous and a terror to the new settlers; the new country, as is usually the case, was unhealthy; and the hardships incident to the new settlement were severe. However between 1707 and 1750 immigration was much more rapid, and by the latter date there were about two million people in the colonies.

In 1719 and 1720 some five hundred Scotch-Irish settled in the New England colonies. Among these there were three Rankin young men: James, Hugh and Andrew. The Rev. J. E. Rankin, D.D., who recently died in Washington, D. C., was a descendant of Andrew. There are a few Rankins in the New England States today; and from there they have moved to New York and farther west.

After 1720 the Scotch-Irish settled mostly in Pennsylvania and to the southward. There is a history in the library at Lancaster, Pa., which says that from 1740 to 1750 about twelve thousand immigrants landed annually in Pennsylvania from Ulster. They came in such large numbers that the landlords gave instructions to their agents not to sell any more land to the Scotch-Irish, lest they get complete control of the colony. Fisk tells us that by 1776 one-third of the population of Pennsylvania and one-sixth of the population of all the colonies were Scotch-Irish. This shows how fast they left oppressed Ulster when they once had a chance.

The William Rankin who fled from Scotland to Ulster in 1688 had three sons: Adam, John and Hugh, all of whom came to Chester County, Pennsylvania, in 1720. Rev. Adam Rankin, a grandson of Adam, went to Kentucky with a colony in 1784, and established a Presbyterian church where the city of Lexington now stands. He has descendants living in Texas and other western states.

John Rankin, one of the three brothers who came to Pennsylvania in 1720, had two sons: Thomas and Richard. Four of the sons of Thomas and three of the sons of Richard fought in the Revolutionary War under General Washington. In 1784 Thomas Rankin sold his farm in Pennsylvania and moved to Green County, Tennessee. He is the ancestor of most of the Tennessee Rankins. Four of his grandsons were with General Jackson in the battle of New Orleans. The renowned Rev. John Rankin, D.D., pastor of the Presbyterian church at Ripley, Ohio, for forty-four years, was another grandson of Thomas. The descendants of Thomas are numerous. Many are in Tennessee yet, and they have scattered over the great west.

Richard Rankin, the brother of Thomas, moved from Pennsylvania to Augusta County, Virginia, shortly after the Revolutionary War. Some of his descendants are still there, but most of them have moved west.

There was a Robert Rankin of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, who settled in Guilford County, North Carolina, in 1753. He had a large family, and his children were well grown when he came to Guilford. He was perhaps married in Ireland and only tarried a short time in Pennsylvania. No record of where he owned land in Pennsylvania could be found. Some of his male descendants were in Guilford as late as 1845, but all of the name have now disappeared. Some are living in Indianapolis, Ind.

There were other Rankins who emigrated to Pennsylvania and to other colonies in the early days. This is ascertained by looking over the old county records and the old grave yards of the Presbyterian churches, especially in Pennsylvania; also by inspecting the enlistments in the Revolutionary War, and the printed census of the United States of 1790.

In this printed census of the United States of 1790 we find listed seventy-five Rankin families, thirty-seven in Pennsylvania, nine in North Carolina, eight in Maine, seven in Maryland, six in South Carolina, four in New York, two in New Hampshire and two in Vermont. A large number of other Rankin families have come into this country from Scotland and Ireland since 1790. While the name is not so numerous, yet you can find a Rankin in almost every part of the United States.

JOSEPH RANKIN

Joseph Rankin, our ancestor, bought one hundred and fifty acres of land located on the south side of White Clay Creek in New Castle County, Delaware, in 1731. This is the first we know definitely of him. He died in 1764 at the age of sixty, and is buried at Christianna Presbyterian Church, near Newark, Delaware. A nice stone for that day marks his grave. No record of who his wife was could be found. After a thorough investigation the writer is of the opinion that Joseph was born in Ireland and came to America about the year 1730. We carefully looked over the early records in New Castle County, and the adjoining counties in Pennsylvania, and could find no earlier trace of him; nor could we find a record of any one we could even suppose to have been his father. If he came to America in 1730, he was then twenty-six years old, and may have been married before he came. The first positive date we have of any of his children is the birth of John in 1736. There may have been older children.

The children of Joseph Rankin were James, John, Robert, Thomas, William, Joseph and Anne and perhaps Samuel. We are sure about all of these except James, Robert, and Samuel. James and Robert appear to be, and for the following reasons: (1) Thomas, Robert and James Rankin, of New Castle County, all take oath of allegiance to Delaware at the same time at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War. (See colonial records of Delaware.) (2) Thomas, James and Robert Rankin were all members of Capt. Walter Carson's Whig Company. Thomas was a first lieutenant in this company. (3) The given names of James and Robert were handed down from generation to generation in the families of John, Thomas, William and Samuel. (4) We could find no place in the records of New Castle County where the Christian names of James and Robert were associated with any other Rankin family. (5) Robert Rankin married Martha Latimer in 1765, and this date fits in with the dates of the other children of Joseph Rankin, Sr.

We are sure that John and William were sons of Joseph Rankin, Sr., because in 1768 John Rankin and his wife Hannah, of Orange County, North Carolina, and their brother William

Rankin sell land in New Castle County, Delaware, which they "inherited from their father Joseph Rankin," to Thomas and Joseph Rankin, Jr. (See records in Wilmington, Delaware.)

The old John Rankin farm was located in that part of Orange County which became part of Guilford when Guilford County was formed in 1770.

We are sure that Thomas Rankin was a son of Joseph, Sr., because some of his children and his first wife are buried in the same plot with Joseph Rankin, Sr., and Thomas Rankin lived on the same farm where his father lived.

We are sure that Joseph Rankin, Jr., was a son of Joseph, Sr. The name shows this. And in 1820 Joseph Rankin, Jr., wills certain property to his nephews and nieces—"children of brother Thomas." (See record of wills, Wilmington, Delaware.)

We are sure that Anne was a daughter of Joseph Rankin, Sr., because Joseph Rankin, Jr., mentions his sister Anne in his will.

It is thought that Samuel was also a son of Joseph Rankin, Sr. The dates fit in. John was born in 1736, Samuel in 1740 and William in 1744. The family names also indicate that Samuel was a brother of John and William. There were children in each of the three families named Robert, Jane and Anne. Both John and Samuel had a child named Samuel, and both William and Samuel had a child named William. Furthermore the personal appearance and personal traits of character of the descendants of these three men indicate that they were brothers. Professor Jesse Rankin Wharton, who was in college with some of the descendants of Samuel Rankin, and who prepared a partial genealogical tree of the descendants of John and William Rankin, gave it as his fixed judgment that Samuel was a brother of John and William. The fact that no record of Samuel was found in New Castle County, Delaware, does not prove that he was not a son of Joseph. Only one record, and that in a deed, was found to prove that John and William were sons of Joseph.

Samuel Rankin bought a farm in Guilford County in 1760. In 1763 he sold his farm and moved to the western part of the state, and later settled in Lincoln County, North Carolina. He married Ellen Alexander. A large number of their descendants are now living in Lincoln and Gaston Counties, North Carolina.

This branch of the Rankin family held a reunion at the home of Rev. Frank B. Rankin, Mt. Holly, N. C., on August 13, 1930.

20 The Rankin and Wharton Families and Their Genealogy

There were about three hundred present, and all enjoyed a most delightful day of pleasant fellowship. Some of the descendants of John and William Rankin were present as invited guests.

There may have been other children of Joseph Rankin, Sr., but if there were, they must have been dead, or moved away, as John, William and Samuel had done, before Joseph Rankin, Jr., made his will in 1820.

*In this yard John Rankin erected his first log home in 1765.
The house now standing was built by his son,
Robert Rankin, in 1824.*

JOHN AND WILLIAM RANKIN

John Rankin (tall and slender) came from Delaware to North Carolina in 1764, and bought a farm of five hundred and eleven acres on the north bank of Buffalo Creek, just where the North and South Buffalos join, nine miles east of Greensboro. This land had been granted to John McKnight in 1759 by the Earl of Granville, and by John McKnight to Alexander McKnight the same year, and was deeded by Alexander McKnight to John Rankin in 1765. This farm remained in the Rankin family for one hundred and sixty years.

John Rankin married Hannah Carson just before or shortly after coming to North Carolina. She no doubt was from Delaware also, for there were Carsons in his community there. It is interesting to note how the Carson name has continued to be used in the Rankin families on down through the generations. John Rankin was born in New Castle County, Delaware, in 1736, and died in Guilford County, North Carolina, March 27, 1814, and is buried in the northwest corner of Buffalo Church cemetery. Hannah Carson Rankin was born in 1746, and died May 26, 1814, and is buried by the side of her husband.

William Rankin came to North Carolina the latter part of 1768 and lived with his brother John for about three years. In 1772 John Rankin sold to his brother William the eastern part of his farm—two hundred and eighteen acres. Later both John and William entered other adjoining public lands. The farms of these two brothers embraced eight or nine hundred acres.

William Rankin was born near Newark, Delaware, in 1744, came to North Carolina in 1768, married Jane Chambers, daughter of John Chambers, in 1772, died February 9, 1804, and is buried in Buffalo cemetery by the side of his wife, and his wife's father and mother.

It is pretty well established that these two brothers fought in the Revolutionary War. We do know that William Rankin was with the Regulators in their battle at Alamance against Governor Tryon in 1771, for on the following day when Tryon issued his proclamation offering pardon to the Regulators on certain conditions, he excepted William Rankin and several others. William must have been very active in that battle; and it is natural to suppose that his brother John, with whom he was living, was with him.

Shortly before the battle of Guilford Court House in 1781 General Cornwallis camped for several days on the Rankin farm. A hollowed out rock near the Buffalo Creek and on the boundary line between the farms of these two brothers has been repeatedly pointed out by the old people as the trough in which Cornwallis fed his horse. The Rankin brothers were staunch Whigs and had to hide out while Cornwallis was there. The General's soldiers plundered the homes and farms of both brothers, and carried off all the grain, cattle, sheep, hogs, and fowls (except one old setting hen) from both plantations. We are pretty certain that these two brothers joined their neighbors in the battle at Guilford Court House a few days later. Dr. Eli W. Caruthers bears us out in this, for he says in his "Life of Dr. David Caldwell," page 232, that "All the men in both these congregations (Buffalo and Alamance) who were fit for duty were either in the battle or employed in some other way under the direction of General Greene." Dr. Caruthers became the pastor of Buffalo and Alamance churches in 1821, just forty years after that battle. He took great interest in things historical, and wrote two or three volumes. He knew personally many of the men who took part in that battle and got his information first hand. He states in his history that he went over the battle field with Robert Rankin who was in the battle, and Mr. Rankin pointed out to him the positions of both armies, and the tree by which he himself stood while firing at the enemy. Furthermore tradition says that John and William Rankin were in that battle. Tradition in our family is direct. I was fifty-six years old when my father died, and he lived with my grandfather thirty-six years, and my grandfather lived with my great grandfather, John Rankin, (1736-1814) for thirty-four years; so these traditions have come only three steps, and through sons who lived with their fathers. They may have been with their neighbors in other battles. It is a pity that no roster of the Guilford soldiers in the Revolutionary War has been preserved.

PIONEER DAYS

There were but few settlers in Guilford County before 1749. During the next fifteen years it was rapidly settled. By the time John Rankin came in the latter part of 1764, most of the land had been taken up. However the families were still living in log cabins surrounded by the forest. They had not yet had time to clear much land, but these people had come to make this their permanent home. They worked hard and underwent many hardships. Within a surprisingly short time living conditions were more comfortable. Mills, tanneries, and various kinds of shops were soon in operation.

The land on the north side of Buffalo Creek where John and William Rankin settled was in heavy oak timber. It is not thought that Alexander McKnight did any work on the place during the short time he owned it. When John Rankin bought the farm he began to clear the land near the spring, and built a small log cabin. He lived in this a few years, then erected a large log house, two stories high and more than two rooms long. This he later weatherboarded. The first cabin was then used as the kitchen and dining room. There he raised his twelve children. When he gave the farm over to his son Robert, 1805, he had cleared and had in cultivation about 125 acres. Robert built another log house in the same yard. In this he lived until 1824. He then erected a large frame house, which is still standing (1930). When the writer was a very small child the first cabin was used as a smoke house. The large log house was used as a storage room for grain, fruit and other farm products; and the log cabin built by Robert Rankin was used as a kitchen and dining room. Before 1873 all these log houses were torn down and other more suitable buildings erected by Robert C. Rankin, a grandson of John.

William Rankin bought the eastern part of the John Rankin farm in 1772. This was also in large oak timber. He located near a spring and built a small cabin. Later he added a room to the end of it. This house was used as the kitchen and dining room until 1878. Shortly after the Revolutionary War he erected a large two-story log house which he weatherboarded and ceiled. This house stood and was used as the farm dwelling until 1900.

These men were real pioneers. They had to clear their lands and build their homes. They raised on the farm practically everything they had to eat. From the wool sheared from their sheep the women of the families carded, spun, and wove the cloth; then cut out and made the winter clothing. The other clothing and practically all cloth used for household purposes were made from flax and cotton raised on the farm. Their shoes were made at home from leather tanned in the neighborhood. There were carpenters, tanners, blacksmiths, weavers, tailors, hatters, coopers and men of other special trades in almost every community. These were called on when their services were needed; but the family did everything possible. Practically all of the household furniture and furnishings were made at home.

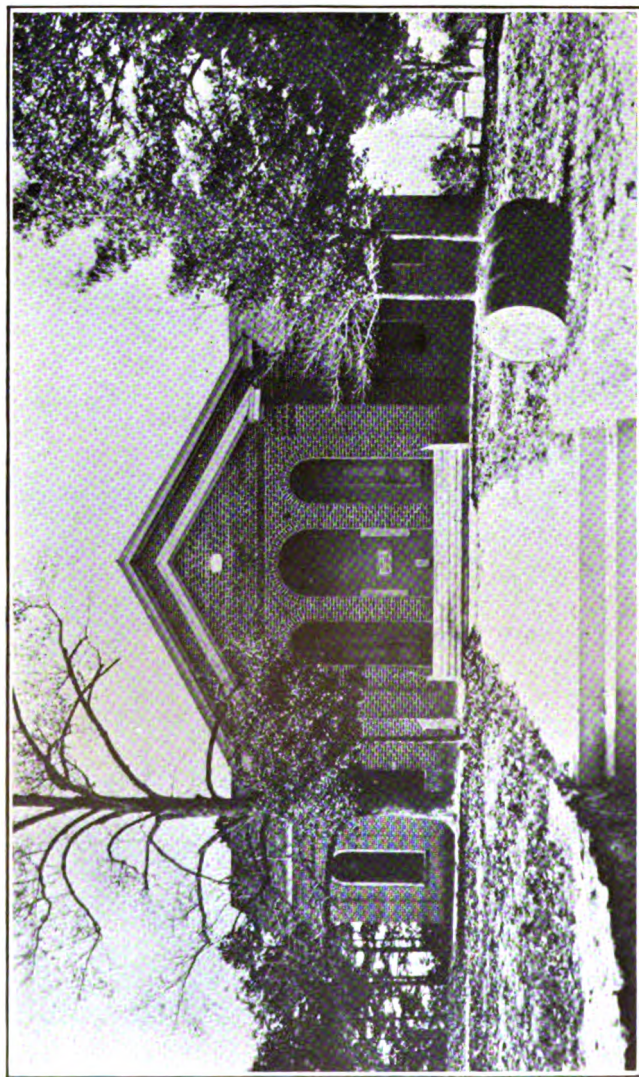

Their money crops were flour and meat. These had to be hauled by wagon to Fayetteville, New Bern, or Petersburg, Va., from one to two hundred and fifty miles. In the early days of bad roads it would take three or four weeks to deliver one load. The farmers could make very little ready money; but by the strictest economy, and by utilizing everything they could raise on the farm, and by the increase in their cattle, hogs, and sheep the Rankin brothers got to be in rather comfortable circumstances. It was by hard labor. They arose at four o'clock, worked hard all day, and went to bed early after dark.

Being accustomed, as we are, to all the modern conveniences, if we were placed back in their surroundings to experience all the hardships that they experienced, we doubtless would be very unhappy; however, they were not, for no doubt they thought that they were well fixed. Most of the people in this section were in about the same financial circumstances. There were no rich people with expensive luxuries and comforts to make others dissatisfied.

They had good neighbors, and there were wood choppings, log rollings, house raisings, corn huskings and quilting bees, and these were all turned into pleasant social gatherings. There was more hard work, but I verily believe that the people were as happy in those early days as the masses of the people are today.

CHURCH AFFILIATION

The Rankins have been, in the main, Presbyterians since the time of John Knox (1505-1572). This was their religious faith in Scotland and Ireland, and is now in America. They have always been rather liberal in their attitude towards other denominations. When a Rankin settles in a community where there is no Presbyterian church he usually unites with the church of the community. You generally find them active in their church.

Joseph Rankin must have been a member of Christianna Presbyterian Church in Delaware, where he is buried. John and William Rankin joined Buffalo Presbyterian Church after coming to North Carolina. Buffalo had been organized in 1756. They were fortunate in having as their pastor Dr. David Caldwell, who came to North Carolina in 1765. He was an ingenious and practical man, and could render assistance to his people in many ways. He was a good preacher, a great patriot, and a competent physician. His people loved him and followed his leadership. He was the pastor of Buffalo Church for nearly sixty years. No less than twenty-five of the descendants of John and William Rankin have become Presbyterian ministers.

THE WHARTONS

THE WHARTONS IN ENGLAND

The Whartons are English. They are descendants of a member of that band of Norsemen that made conquest of a province of France, later called Normandy, in 900. The first Wharton in England came over from Normandy with William the Conqueror as an officer in his army in 1066, and after the conquest of England, settled in what was later called Westmorland County. The original Wharton manor is located in the south-east corner of the county, less than a mile east of Kirkby Stephen. The river Eden runs through the estate, and on three sides there are high mountains. The manor is in a large deer park, surrounded by a wall nine feet high. The gate to the entrance has on it the Wharton Arms and is dated 1559. The oldest part of the building may date back more than a century before the date on the gate.

The first date we have is 1292. In that year Gilbert de Querton proved before the Justices at Appleby, the county seat, his right as the legal heir to the Manor of Querton. This estate remained in the Wharton family more than four hundred years. In 1735 it was sold, and later the manor was used as a farm house devoted to cheese making.

There was another ancestral Wharton home, located five miles northwest of Appleby, the county seat of Westmorland, called Kirkby Thore. This came into the family by marriage. Another Gilbert Wharton, seventh in descent from the first Gilbert, married Joan, the heiress of Kirkby Thore. This was about the year 1410. This is referred to as a very fine estate, located in the fertile valley of the river Eden. It remained in the Wharton family many generations.

There is another old Wharton home in Durham County called Old Park, located near the city of Durham. This was purchased by John Wharton, sixth in descent from Gilbert of Kirkby Thore, about the year 1600. The estate of Old Park remained in the Wharton family for at least eight generations, and it may still belong to a branch of the family.

There were many other large estates belonging to the Whartons. Some of these were purchased and others brought into the family by marriage.

From 1292 the Whartons multiplied and scattered all over England and to many foreign countries, but they were most numerous in the counties of Northern England.

The first spelling of the name was Querton in 1292. A few years later it was changed to Wherton, and a little later to Wharton.

It may be of interest to give a partial list of the Whartons of England.

THE WHARTONS OF WHARTON MANOR

Gilbert de Querton married Emma Hastings, about 1280, co-heiress of the Manor of Croglin in Cumberland County. By this marriage he greatly enhanced his fortunes, and since that time the Wharton Arms have borne the maunch, the ensign of the great family of Hastings.

In 1304 Gilbert and Emma Wharton settled their son Henry in the Manor of Croglin. This Wharton line descends from Gilbert, through Henry, the first by that name, Hugh, William and John to the second Henry.

Henry Wharton, the second Henry, of Wharton Manor, married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Musgrave, Knight of Harcla Castle, and had two sons, Sir Thomas, the first by that name, his successor, and Sir Gilbert. We shall speak more of Sir Gilbert Wharton later.

Sir Thomas, the first Thomas Wharton of Wharton Manor, attended the Duke of Bedford when that prince was regent in France from 1422 to 1435. He married a daughter of Lowther. His eldest son and successor was named Henry, the third Henry.

Sir Henry Wharton, the third Henry of Wharton Manor, married Alice, daughter of Sir John Conyers, of Hamby, Yorkshire. His eldest son and successor was named Thomas, the second Thomas Wharton of Wharton Manor.

This second Sir Thomas Wharton was a member of Parliament and held other offices of trust. He married Agnes, daughter of Reginald Warcop. His eldest son and successor was also named Thomas (1495-1568). This Thomas became the first Baron Wharton of Wharton Hall. There were nine generations from Gilbert of 1292 to Sir Thomas the first baron. We know but little of the families of these men.

THE WHARTONS OF WHARTON HALL

Sir Thomas (1495-1568) was the first Baron Wharton of Wharton Hall. He was knighted at Windsor in 1527. He was a member of Parliament for Appleby 1529-1536, and for Cumberland 1542-1544. In 1537 he was appointed warden of the west marches toward Scotland. In 1541 he was made captain of the Carlisle Castle. In 1542 he gained some distinction in his warfare with the Scotch, and for this service he was created baron by King Henry VIII in 1544, and took his seat in the House of Lords in 1545.

He is described as a stern masterful man, and a tyrant lord. He was constantly in a quarrel with some one of his community. Later in life he moved from Wharton Hall to Healough in Yorkshire, because he was in constant dread that some of his enemies might do him bodily or material damage.

He married first Eleanor, daughter of Sir Bryan Stapleton, of Wighill, Yorkshire. There were four children: (1) Thomas, his successor, (2) Henry, (3) Joan, (4) Agnes. His second marriage was to Lady Bray, widow of Lord John Bray, and daughter of Francis 5th, Earl of Shrewsbury. By her he had no children. He died in 1568, and is buried at Kirkby Stephen, and was succeeded by his eldest son Thomas.

Sir Thomas, second Baron Wharton of Wharton Hall (1520-1572), was a member of Parliament for Cumberland 1544-1545, and 1547-1552, and for Northumberland 1555-1559. He later succeeded his father in the House of Lords. When a young man he was appointed steward of the household of Princess Mary, the daughter of Henry VIII. He became a Roman Catholic and strongly supported Mary when she became Queen in 1553. He signed her will as a witness in 1558. When Elizabeth became Queen in 1558, Protestantism was again in authority, and stringent laws were passed against Catholicism. Sir Thomas Wharton was sent to the Tower where he remained a prisoner for more than a year for having had mass celebrated in his house at Newhall.

In 1547 he married Anne, daughter of Sir Robert, first Earl of Sussex. There were three children, if not more: (1) Philip, his successor, (2) Mary, (3) Anne. He died at Canon Row in Westminster in 1572 and is buried at the Abbey. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Philip.

Sir Philip, third Baron Wharton of Wharton Hall (1555-1625), was named for King Philip II of Spain, who had married Princess Mary, the friend of his father. King Philip II stood as godfather for the child when Philip was baptized. Sir Philip Wharton was a member of Parliament from 1580 to 1625. He was a member of the joint commission on Scottish borders in 1618.

In 1577 he married Frances, daughter of Sir Henry Clifford, second Earl of Cumberland. His second wife was a rich widow, Lady Dorothy Colby, whom he married in 1597. She had given the corruptible Lord Bacon a bribe of 310 pounds to decide in her favor a suit re her second husband's estate. Sir Philip Wharton had the honor of entertaining King James I at Wharton Hall in 1617. The Whartons, by the time of Sir Philip, had accumulated large estates, but he was a poor manager. He squandered his own and his wife's fortunes. His debts accumulated and, as we would say today, a trustee had to be appointed and Sir Philip was put on an allowance. His wife complained that he had taken away all her living, and she was dependent on the charity of friends. He had two sons by his first marriage: Sir George and Sir Thomas, both educated at Caius College, Cambridge. Sir George Wharton was a wayward young man. He followed the customs of the young sports of his day: card playing, horse racing, gambling and the like. He and his companion, Sir James Stuart, quarreled over a game of cards, fought a duel and were both killed.

Sir Thomas Wharton, brother of Sir George, was quite a different type of man. He was a puritan in faith and conduct from his youth up. A quotation says, "He was a professed enemy of Popery and profaneness, and a true friend and patron of all godly preachers." He lived at Aske, near Richmond. In 1611 he married Lady Philadelphia, daughter of Sir Robert Carey, first Earl of Monmouth. He had two sons: Sir Philip, the successor of his grandfather Philip, and Sir Thomas. This Sir Thomas Wharton (1615-1684) was a puritan like his father. We are told that "He loved the Word which he esteemed more than necessary food." He and his brother, Sir Philip, were both educated at Exeter College, Oxford. For twenty years he was an officer in the Army in Ireland. He was brave and much beloved and honored. The King made him a Knight of the Bath. He married Mary Carey, daughter of Henry, Earl of Dover. They are spoken of as two of the most congenial spirits that ever met. They had children, but we can not follow that line. In 1662 he retired from the army and bought a manor at Edlington, near Doncaster, Yorkshire, where he lived and died. His elder brother, Sir Philip (1613-1695), succeeded his grandfather, Sir Philip, the third Baron Wharton.

Sir Philip, fourth Baron Wharton of Wharton Hall, inherited large estates and by good business enhanced his fortunes. We are told "He was in his youthful days one of the handsomest men and greatest beaux of his times." He was a member of Parliament most of the time from 1639 to 1685. In 1642 he was appointed by Parliament a colonel and given several thousand soldiers to serve at Munster, Ireland. He was Speaker of the House of Lords, 1642-1643. He was a pronounced Presbyterian, and in 1643 was a lay member of the Westminster Assembly that formulated the Confession of Faith and catechisms for that denomination. He was Lord Lieutenant of Lancaster, Buckingham and Westmorland Counties from 1639 to 1685. He was summoned to Cromwell's House of Lords in 1657. He was offered membership in Richard Cromwell's Privy Council, but this he declined. At the restoration in 1660 he met King Charles II at his landing at Greenwich and escorted him to London. At the coronation in 1661, "His buttons were so many diamonds," and "His furniture for his horse amounted to 8,000 pounds." But Sir Philip Wharton was disappointed in King Charles, who proved to be a strong Catholic and selfish king.

There was great confusion in the kingdom at this time on the religious question. Harsh laws against the Protestants were passed. Many Protestants were persecuted and thrown into prison. Lord Philip Wharton was sent to the Tower, where he remained in prison for five months, for questioning the legality of the prorogation of Parliament.

When King James II, who was very much like his brother Charles II, ascended to the throne in 1685, Sir Philip Wharton was entirely out of sympathy with him. Wharton was a strong Whig and the Tories were in power, so he thought it advisable to leave the kingdom. He and his wife traveled through several countries on the continent and were well received. Frederick William, the great Elector of Brandenburg, made him a present of a team of six fine horses.

When Lord Wharton heard that the tide of feeling against King James II was rising he returned to England to assist in the revolution. His son, Sir Thomas Wharton, was a member of Parliament at this time, and he, with the other leading Whigs, had drawn up an invitation to Prince William of Orange to come over with an army and defend his wife's title to the throne. Prince William had married Princess Mary of England. William came and the people flocked to him, and King James II fled to France. This was practically a bloodless revolution.

Lord Wharton was one of the first and strongest supporters of King William III. The Tories had been in power, the Whigs now came back into power; Catholicism had been in authority, Protestantism now came back into authority. However, the political parties were not divided on strictly religious lines. The stringent laws against the Protestants were repealed. From that time, 1689, Protestantism has been the established religion of England.

Lord Wharton was the author of that satirical political ballad, "Lilli Burlero," which was sung all over England, and had a powerful influence in bringing about the revolution of 1688.

In 1692 he entertained King William and Queen Mary at his manor at Woodburn. In 1690 Queen Mary came from Windsor unexpectedly and dined with Lady Wharton.

Lord Philip Wharton was married three times and was the father of fifteen children; however, several of them died in youth. His first wife, 1632, was Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Rowland, of Wandesford; his second wife, 1637, was Jane, daughter of Sir Arthur Goodwin, a member of Parliament; and his third wife, 1661, was Anne, daughter of Sir William Kerr. Two of his wives were very rich and added materially to his already large estates. He expended 40,000 pounds on his manor and grounds at Woodburn and lived there from the year 1658 until his death. In 1652 Cromwell wrote him in regard to a proposed marriage between Cromwell's son Henry and Wharton's daughter Elizabeth, but the marriage was never brought about.

Of his children, (1) Elizabeth Wharton married Robert, Lord Willoughby de Eresby, third Earl of Lindsay, and left heirs; (2) Philip died before his father and left no heirs; (3)

Arthur died young; (4) Thomas (1648-1715) succeeded his father; (5) Sir Goodwin Wharton (1653-1704) was a member of Parliament in 1679. He married in 1679 and had one son, Hezekiah, but the son left no heirs; (6) Anne Wharton married William Kerr, but left no heir; (7) Margaret Wharton married first Major Dunch, second Sir Thomas Seyliard, and third Sir William, twelfth Lord Ross in the peerage of Scotland. The last of her line died in 1730; (8) Mary Wharton, the eighth child, (1649-1699) will be given later.

Philadelphia Wharton, the youngest daughter of Lord Philip Wharton, fourth Baron, married first Sir George Lockhart in 1679, and second Capt. John Ramsay. She left issue by both marriages. In 1775 her grandson, Joseph Lockhart Wishart, was Lord Chamberlain to Joseph II, Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire, Knight of the Order of "Maria Theresa" (named for the mother of Joseph II.), Count of the Holy Roman Empire, and a General in the Imperial and Apostolic Armies. In 1915 this line was represented by Lord Lamington.

Lord Philip, fourth Baron Wharton died in 1695, and is buried at Woodburn. The inscription on his monument reads, "An active supporter of the English Constitution; a loyal observer, advocate and patron of the reformed religion; a model alike of good works and of true and living faith." He was evidently a man of many good traits, and one of the recognized leaders of the Whig party. He was succeeded by his eldest living son, Thomas.

Lord Thomas, fifth baron and first marquis of Wharton Hall, was born in 1648. He was a member of Parliament from 1673 to 1695, when he took his seat in the House of Lords. He is said to have been the author of the invitation the Whigs sent to Prince William. After that prince was settled on the throne as King William III, he appointed Sir Thomas Wharton Controller of the Household, and member of his Privy Council. In 1706 he was created Viscount Winchendon (one of the estates inherited from his mother), and Earl of Wharton. In 1707 he was a member of the joint commission that negotiated and succeeded in bringing about the union of Scotland and Britain into one kingdom. He was appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, where he served from 1708 to 1710. In 1714 King George I made him Lord of the Privy Seal, and created him Baron of Trim, Earl of Rathparham, Marquis of Catherlough in the peerage of Ireland, and Marquis of Wharton in Great Britain. He was also made Knight of the Garter.

Lord Thomas Wharton was a man of intellectual force and wide political influence. In writing of him in 1705, John Macky says, "He is certainly one of the completest gentlemen of England; and hath a very clear understanding, and manly expressions, with abundance of wit; he is brave in person of middle stature, fair in complexion." By some of his rulings while Lord Lieutenant of Ireland he incurred the enmity of Dean Swift, who sarcastically ridiculed and criticized him in prose and verse. These writings did more damage to the good name of Lord Wharton after his death than during his life. Swift had been a Whig in politics and later flopped over to the Tories. Lord Wharton, like his ancestors, remained a true Whig. Macauley, the historian, says "Honest Tom Wharton had no virtues beyond consistency and courage." Lord Thomas Wharton married first, in 1673, Anne, daughter and heiress of Sir Henry Lee, fifth baronet of Ditchley, Oxford County. There were no children. In 1692 he married Lucy, daughter and heiress of Sir Adam Loftus, Viscount Lisburne, in the peerage of Ireland. There were three children: Philip, Jane, whose line will be given later, and Lucy (1710-1739), who married Sir William Morice, but left no heir. Lord Thomas Wharton died in 1715 and was succeeded by his only son, Philip.

Lord Philip, sixth baron, second Marquis and first Duke Wharton, was born in 1699. The sponsors at his baptism were King William III, the Duke of Shrewsbury, and Princess Anne. He was unusually bright in his studies and gave every promise of a useful life. In 1715 he inherited large estates in both England and Ireland, and succeeded to all the titles and abilities of his father, but "none of his virtues." He was a spoiled child. In 1717 he was created Duke of Wharton. No other citizen of the kingdom had been thus honored before he was twenty-one. He entered the House of Lords as Marquis of Catherlough, the only Marquis in the peerage of Ireland. But he became wild and reckless and profligate, and soon lost his large estates and the confidence and respect of his peers. In 1725 he left England and went to Spain, where he joined the old Pretender, Prince James Edward Stuart, and fought for him in the Spanish army before Gibraltar. For this he was declared a traitor, and outlawed for high treason, and lost all of his titles except the barony, which went to his sister Jane. When this line became extinct the barony reverted to the heirs of Mary, the daughter of Lord Philip, fourth Baron Wharton. His personal property was sold for his debts. His collection of art and family portraits was bought by Sir Robert Walpole. Sir Robert's grandson sold them in 1779 to Empress Catherine of Russia for 36,000 pounds. She stored them in the Hermitage at St. Petersburg. The landed estate of Wharton Hall was confiscated to the Crown, and later bought by Robert Lowther, Esq. The estate of Wharton Hall had been in the Wharton family for more than 400 years, and perhaps several centuries longer. Lord Philip, first Duke Wharton, and sixth Baron, died a charity patient at Poblet Abbey, Catalonia, Spain, in 1731. He was married twice, but left no living children. This ends the direct male line of the Whartons of Wharton Hall. There were fourteen generations from 1292 to 1731. There were no doubt many children in some of these families of which we have no record.

When Sir Philip, Duke Wharton died, the title to the barony went to his eldest sister Jane. Jane Wharton (1706-1761) married first Sir John Holt of Redgrave in Suffolk, and second Sir Robert Coke of Longford of Darbyshire. There were no heirs by either marriage. Lady Jane Coke died in 1761, and the title to the barony reverted to the heirs of Mary, the daughter of Lord Philip, fourth Baron Wharton. This Mary Wharton married first William Thomas, son of Sir Edmund, of Wenvoe Castle, of Glamorgan County, and second, in 1678, Sir Charles Kemeys, third Baronet of Cefn Mably, in Monmouth County. There were children by both marriages, but only those of the second marriage lived to have heirs. Lady Mary Kemeys died in 1699, and was succeeded by her oldest son, Charles.

Sir Charles Kemeys, fourth Baronet of Cefn Mably, was high sheriff of Glamorgan County, 1712-1713; member of Parliament for Monmouth 1713-1715, and again in 1716-1724. He never married, and died in 1734, and the title to the Wharton barony passed to the heirs of his sister Jane.

Jane Kemeys, -1747, of Cefn Mably, married Sir John Tynte, second Baronet of Halswell, Somerset County, in 1704. There were four children: Halswell, John, Charles and Jane.

Sir Halswell Tynte, third Baronet of Halswell, was a member of Parliament for Bridgewater, 1727-1730. He married, but left no living heir. He died in 1730, and was succeeded by his younger brother, John.

Rev. Sir John Tynte (1707-1740), fourth Baronet of Halswell, was Rector of Goathurst. He never married. He died in 1740, and was succeeded by his youngest brother, Charles.

Sir Charles Kemeys Tynte (1710-1785), fifth Baronet of Halswell, also succeeded to the Baronetcy of Cefn Mably of Monmouth County upon the death of his mother in 1747. He was a member of Parliament for Monmouth 1745-1747, and for Somerset 1747-1774. He married, but left no living heir, and at his death in 1785, the title to the barony reverted to the heirs of his sister Jane.

Jane Tynte married Major Russhe Hassell, and had one child, Jane. Jane Hassell married Col. John Johnson. By royal license they assumed the name and arms of Kemeys-Tynte. They had three children: Jane, Anne and Charles. The daughters died unmarried. Lady Jane Kemeys-Tynte died in 1825 and was succeeded by her son Charles.

Sir Charles Kemeys-Tynte (1778-1860) was a member of Parliament for 17 years. In 1845 he was declared by the Committee for Privileges of the House of Lords, to be by blood the co-heir of the Barony of Wharton. In 1798 he married Anne, daughter of Rev. Thomas Lewis. There were five children. He died in 1860 and was succeeded by his eldest son, Charles John.

Sir Charles John Kemeys-Tynte (1800-1882) was a member of Parliament for twenty-three years. He married Elizabeth Swinnerton. There were eight children. He died in 1882 and was succeeded by his eldest son, Charles Kemeys.

Sir Charles Kemeys Kemeys-Tynte, heir of Halswell, Somerset County; of Cefn Mably, Glamorgan County; and of Burleigh Hall, Leicester County, married three times and had three children. He died in 1892, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Halswell Milborne.

Sir Halswell Milborne Kemeys-Tynte, born 1852, inherited his father's estate. In 1875 he married Rosabelle Clare Walch. Their son, Charles Theodore Halswell Kemeys-Tynte, is the present Lord Wharton in the peerage of England. He was a lieutenant in the army during the World War. In 1899 he married Dorothy, daughter of General Ellis. They have two children: Charles John Halswell, born 1908, and Elizabeth Dorothy.

THE WHARTONS OF KIRKBY THORE

The Whartons of Kirkby Thore descended from those of the original Wharton Manor at Kirkby Stephen.

Sir Gilbert Wharton, the second son of Henry and Elizabeth Musgrave Wharton, of Wharton Manor, was collector of subsidy in Westmorland County. He married Joan, heiress of Kirkby Thore, near Appleby. They had four sons. He died in 1436 and was succeeded by his eldest son, John.

John Wharton married Isobel, daughter of John Lancaster of Brompton. There were two sons, John, Jr., his successor, and Christopher, ancestor of the Whartons of Offerton, Durham County. John Wharton, Sr., died about 1465, and was succeeded by his eldest son, John the third.

John Wharton, third, was counselor to Lord Clifford during the reign of Henry VII, 1485-1509. He married Elizabeth, daughter and co-heiress of Fenwick of Wallington, Northumberland County. Some of his children settled in Northumberland. He was succeeded at Kirkby Thore by his eldest son, Gilbert.

Gilbert Wharton married first Catherine, daughter of Sir John Machel, of Crackenthore, and had two sons, John and Charles. Charles was the ancestor of the Whartons of Old Park. Gilbert Wharton's second marriage was to Elizabeth, his first wife's sister, and by her he had two sons, one of whom was Anthony, the ancestor of the Whartons of Gillingwood. Gilbert Wharton died in 1551. There is some conflict and confusion in the records here, but it appears that he was succeeded by his eldest son, John, and that there were four John Whartons in succession at Kirkby Thore.

The fourth John Wharton came into possession in 1649. This John Wharton had no sons, and in order to provide marriage dowers for his three daughters he sold the estate of Kirkby Thore to his third cousin, Humphrey Wharton (1628-1669), of Gillingwood.

THE WHARTONS OF OFFERTON

The Whartons of Offerton descended from those of Kirkby Thore.

John Wharton, the second owner of Kirkby Thore, had two sons, John, his successor, and Christopher. Christopher Wharton settled on the estate of Offerton, Durham County. His grandson, another Christopher Wharton, married a Miss Shepperson. They had an only child, Elizabeth, who married Sir George Myddleton. When Elizabeth Wharton Myddleton died she was succeeded in the estate of Offerton by her second son, Francis Myddleton. Francis was succeeded in the estate by his son Richard Myddleton, who married Catherine, only daughter and heiress of Conyers. There were three children, Francis, who died without an heir, Catherine and Mary. Catherine Myddleton married Cuthbert Heron. There was one son, Sir Thomas Heron. He assumed the surname Myddleton under the terms of the will of his uncle Francis Myddleton, and inherited the estate of Offerton. Sir Thomas Heron Myddleton died without leaving an heir, and the estate passed to his cousin Robert Wharton, a son of Dr. Thomas Wharton (1717-1794), and a grandson of Robert, of 1690-1752, who had married Mary Myddleton. Robert Wharton then added Myddleton to his name under the terms of the will of his great uncle Francis Myddleton. The estate of Offerton thus passed into the hands of the Whartons of Old Park and Dryburn.

Mary Myddleton, the third daughter of Richard Myddleton, married Robert Wharton, of 1690-1752. This line is given under the Whartons of Old Park.

THE WHARTONS OF OLD PARK AND DRYBURN

The Whartons of Old Park and Dryburn, Durham County, descended from those of Kirkby Thore, of Westmorland County.

Gilbert Wharton, the fourth owner of Kirkby Thore, married twice and had two sons by each marriage. He died in 1551. Charles Wharton, his second son, had a son John Wharton, who moved to Winstone, Durham County. John Wharton's son John bought the estate of Old Park, near the city of Durham. Dr. Thomas Wharton (1614-1673), son of the last John mentioned, was a celebrated physician. He discovered the "duct" which is still called "Wharton's duct" in medical books. He remained in London during the plague of 1665-1666 to attend the Guards, and was rewarded by the King for this service.

Dr. Thomas Wharton, Sr., married Jane Askebridge. There was at least one son, Dr. Thomas Wharton, Jr., who married Mary Hall. They had three sons, Dr. George, Robert and Thomas

Wharton. Thomas emigrated to Virginia. Dr. Thomas Wharton, Jr., died in 1714, and was succeeded in the estate by his son Dr. George Wharton. He died in 1739 without leaving an heir, and the estate of Old Park went to his brother, Robert Wharton (1690-1752). This Robert Wharton was mayor of Durham in 1729. In 1715 he married Mary, daughter of Richard Myddleton, owner of Offerton, which he had inherited from his grandmother, Elizabeth Wharton. Mary Myddleton was a great granddaughter of Elizabeth Wharton, daughter of Christopher Wharton, of Offerton, who married George Myddleton. Robert Wharton's children were Dr. Thomas Wharton (1717-1794), and Richard Wharton (1721-). Dr. Thomas Wharton (1717-1794) married Margaret Wilkinson, of Crossgate. There were two sons, Robert and Richard.

(1) Robert Wharton (1760-), heir of Old Park, assumed the name of Myddleton, by the terms of the will of his great uncle Francis Myddleton, a brother of his grandmother. He died without a male heir and the estate went to his younger brother, Richard Wharton.

(2) Richard Wharton (1774-), was a lawyer, a member of Parliament, and one of the joint secretaries of the treasury. He also died without a male heir, and the estate reverted to the line of Dr. Thomas Wharton's younger brother, Richard Wharton (1721-). He was mayor of Durham in 1760. His father had been mayor in 1729. He married Anne, daughter of William Lloyd. They had one child, Robert. Rev. Robert Wharton (1751-1808) was chancellor of Lincoln Cathedral, and a profound scholar. He married Sarah, only child of Rev. John Whaley. Their children were William Lloyd, John Thomas, Robert and Henry. Rev. Robert Wharton died in 1808 and was succeeded by his eldest son, William Lloyd Wharton (1789-1869) of Dryburn. He was high sheriff of Durham County. William Lloyd Wharton died in 1869 and was succeeded by his younger brother, John Thomas Wharton (1795-1871). John Thomas Wharton married Mary, daughter of Rev. J. H. Jacob, in 1832. Children, John Lloyd and Mary. He died in 1871, and was succeeded by his son, John Lloyd Wharton (1837-1912). He was a member of Parliament for the city of Durham 1871-1874, and for Ripon Division 1886-1906. He married Susan Frances, daughter of Rev. A. D. Shafto, in 1870. Child, Mary Dorothea, born 1872. She is the present holder of the estate, now called Whartons of Dryburn of Durham

County. Mary Dorothea Wharton married Col. Charles Waring Dawin in 1894.

THE WHARTONS OF GILLINGWOOD

The Whartons of Gillingwood descend from those of Kirkby Thore. Anthony Wharton, the third son of Gilbert, the fourth owner of Kirkby Thore, settled in Reagill. He married Mary Berne. Their son, Humphrey Wharton, became the owner of Gillingwood, York County. He married Agnes Cleburn. Humphrey Wharton died in 1635, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Thomas, who married Elizabeth Lambert. Thomas Wharton died in 1641, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Humphrey (1629-1669). Another son, Thomas, emigrated to Virginia, U.S.A. This Humphrey Wharton purchased Kirkby Thore from John Wharton, his third cousin. Humphrey married Mary, daughter of Sir Christopher Byerley. Humphrey Wharton died in 1669. He had settled his fourth son, Anthony, at Gillingwood, his old home. Anthony Wharton married Margaret, daughter of Sir William Hicks. There were four children, William, Ann, Margaret and Mary. William, Margaret and Mary died unmarried. This Margaret Wharton, who was worth over 200,000 pounds, was given the nickname of "Peg Pennyworth," because she would often send to the store for a penny's worth of food for her dinner. Ann Wharton comes in the next line.

THE WHARTONS OF SKELTON CASTLE

The Whartons of Skelton Castle, Durham County, descend from those of Gillingwood. Ann Wharton, daughter of Anthony of Gillingwood, married Ambrose Stevenson, of Durham County. They had only one child, Anne (1695-1790). Anne Stevenson married John Hall, of Skelton Castle. When they were married, instead of giving his name to his wife, he added her name to his, making it John Hall Stevenson. They had two sons, John H., who died unmarried, and Joseph William H. Stevenson (1741-1786). Joseph William H. Stevenson married Anne, daughter of Sir John Foster. They had five children, John Hall, James, who died without issue, William H., Margaret, who never married, and Fanny, who married Hon. J. F. Rowdon. John and William, the heirs in this family, took upon themselves the surname and arms of Wharton under the conditions of the wills of their great great aunts, Margaret and Mary Wharton, daughters of Anthony of Gillingwood.

Joseph William H. Stevenson died in 1786, and was succeeded by his eldest son, John Hall Wharton, who married Susan Mary Anne, daughter of Gen. John Lambton, but left no male heirs. His brother, Rev. William Hall Wharton, vicar of Gilling, Yorkshire, married Charlotte, daughter of Sir Thomas, thirteenth Lord Dundas. They had four sons and two daughters. He died in 1842 and was succeeded by his eldest son, John Thomas Wharton (1809-1900) who married Charlotte, daughter of Sir Henry Walker Yeoman, in 1854. He died in 1900 and was succeeded by his eldest son, William Henry Anthony Wharton, the present owner of Skelton Castle.

OTHER WHARTONS IN ENGLAND

There are other Whartons in England whose names appear in various records.

Professor Edmund Ross Wharton (1844-1896) was a teacher in one of the colleges of Oxford, almost from the time he graduated. He was a thorough scholar, and gave much of his time to etymology. He wrote a number of books and papers on Latin and Greek philology and etymology. He is author of the book, "The Whartons of Wharton Hall," which his wife had published after his death. He prepared other manuscripts on the Wharton family from unpublished records. These manuscripts are filed in the Bodleian Library. He was the son of Rev. Henry James Wharton, vicar of Mitcham. We can not connect him with the Westmorland Whartons, but he no doubt descends from that family.

Thomas Wharton, a grandson of the second Baron, moved to Norwich, where he married and reared a family. His son, Edmund, was educated at Caius College, Cambridge. In 1660 he became Vicar of Worstead in Norfolk. He married Mary Burr, daughter of a wealthy manufacturer in Dedham, Sussex County. They had a son, Rev. Henry Wharton (1664-1694), who was chaplain to Archbishop Sancroft of Canterbury. Rev. Henry Wharton wrote extensively, and his name is found in many reference books.

Sir George Wharton (1617-1681) was rather a unique character. He descends from the Whartons of Kirkby Thore. His father was a blacksmith. Sir George studied astronomy and wrote almanacs. He was loyal to King Charles II, and when Charles was restored to the throne in 1660, he made Sir George Wharton paymaster of the ordinance with a good salary, and in 1677 created him a baronet. In the revolution of 1688 this family of Whartons lost their estate and baronetage.

It is observed by this sketch that the Whartons in England are numerous. There were sons in many of these families of whom we have no record. Rev. Robert Milner, pastor at Orton, Westmorland County, in 1843, wrote that the Whartons were numerous in his parish back in the year 1663, and that many by that name are still there.

THE WHARTONS IN THE UNITED STATES

Lord Baltimore was granted a charter for the province of Maryland in 1634 by King Charles I. From the records it appears that the first Whartons coming to America settled in this province.

Jesse Wharton was deputy governor of the province in 1667. Lord Baltimore gave him a large landed estate in St. Mary's County, called Notly Hall. The first estates in Maryland were all named, just as the estates back in England were named. Jesse Wharton had several sons. His grandson, Henry, lived in the same community and died in 1845, leaving a will in which he names two sons and four daughters. He specifies that if his son Francis should take holy orders he should not receive any part of the estate. Jesse Wharton's grandson, Rev. Henry Wharton (1748-1833), was during the first part of his ministry a Catholic, but later renounced that faith and united with the Protestant Episcopal church. He lived at Wilmington, Delaware.

In 1673 Lord Baltimore made a grant of 1,000 acres to Elizabeth Wharton. This was in the same community in which Jesse lived and she may have been his sister.

In 1664 a survey of 100 acres was made to Henry Wharton, called Hookland. We have no further record of him.

In 1678 Walter Wharton, a prominent lawyer and surveyor, died in New Castle, Del. He left a nice estate, but there does not seem to have been any direct heirs.

Thomas Wharton (1663-1747), a son of Richard, of Westmorland County, England, settled in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1683. He was a successful merchant. In 1688 he married Rachel Thomas. There were a number of children. Their son John settled in Chester, Pa., and John's son Thomas (1735-1778) was the first president of the Supreme Council of State of Pennsylvania at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War. This position was practically the same as governor.

Joseph Wharton, another son of Thomas, Sr., was a successful merchant. Joseph's son Robert was elected mayor of Philadelphia for fifteen terms. Another son of Joseph was Samuel Wharton (1732-1800). He was a merchant and diplomat. Philip Fishborne Wharton (1841-1880), the artist who painted so many noted pictures, was a grandson of Governor Thomas Wharton. Thomas Isaac Wharton, the grandson of Joseph, Sr., was a noted lawyer and writer. Dr. Francis Wharton (1820-1889) son of Isaac, was a lawyer and later a minister, then a professor, teaching international and ecclesiastical law in the divinity school Cambridge, Mass. He is the author of "Wharton's Criminal Law," and other legal books. Joseph Wharton, a nephew of Thomas Isaac, was a successful iron and steel manufacturer of Philadelphia. He aided very materially in establishing Swarthmore College and established Wharton's Business School of the University of Pennsylvania. United States Senator Wharton Pepper descended from Thomas Wharton, Sr. The members of this family have been prominent in the business, professional and political affairs of the city and state right down to the present.

George Wharton, the only surviving son of Sir George (1617-1681), previously referred to, came to America in 1685 and settled near Fredericksburg, Va. Tradition says he married into the Lee family. The descendants of George Wharton are numerous, and are living in many sections of the United States.

Col. Samuel Wharton (1740-1824), a grandson of George, moved to South Carolina before the Revolutionary War and settled in Laurens County. He married Madeline Sullivan, of Charleston. Their children were, George, Clement, Pleasant G., Samuel, Dillon, Jephtha, Stephens, Nannie, Lottie, Elizabeth and Martha. Col. Samuel Wharton has descendants living in many of the Southern States. Rev. Marvin T. Wharton, now pastor of the Triune Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Greenville, S. C., is a great great grandson of Col. Samuel.

Senator Jesse Wharton (1760-1833), another grandson of George, was born in Virginia and moved to Nashville, Tenn., where he died. He had two sons, William H. and John A. They were both lawyers and moved to Texas, where they were very active in politics in the trying days before and during the Texas Revolution.

The late Rev. Henry M. Wharton, D.D., of Baltimore, Md., a prominent Baptist minister, was a descendant of George; as was also Rev. Dr. M. B. Wharton, of Norfolk, Va.

In 1713 John Wharton was given a grant of land called "Wharton's Adventure," in Somerset County, later Worcester County, Maryland. He died in 1721, and willed his estate to his children, John, Isaiah, Francis, Thomas, Anne, Leshia, Mary, William and Wrixam.

In 1739 Isaiah Wharton moved to Kent County, Delaware. This line descends through five generations to William Walter Wharton, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Charles M. Wharton, of Dover, Del., who was the Democratic nominee for Governor of Delaware in 1928.

In 1706 Charles Wharton (planter) buys 300 acres of land for 3,000 pounds of tobacco, and in 1714 Charles Wharton (planter) sells 300 acres for 5,000 pounds of tobacco. This was in Somerset County, but it may have been in the present bounds of Worcester County, which was formed from Somerset in 1742. Charles Wharton died in 1719 and in his will mentions his wife Mary, and son William and an unborn babe.

In 1683 Richard Wharton buys 200 acres of land called "Wharton." In 1731 William Wharton (blacksmith) sells 200 acres which he and his brother Richard, Jr., now dead, inherited from their father Richard Wharton, Sr.

We can not make mention of all the names we have found in the records of Maryland, Delaware and Pennsylvania. Mr. N. E. Wharton, of Cambridge, Mass., made a wide and thorough investigation in 1915 by writing to every Wharton in the United States whose address he could get. He collected several thousand names. Later he wrote to me that he had found trace of thirteen distinct and separate Whartons who had entered the United States before the year 1800.

The printed census of the United States of 1790 gives the names of the heads of forty-eight Wharton families. The census of Delaware, the very one we wanted most, is missing. It is reported that those records were accidentally destroyed by fire before they were printed.

DANIEL WHARTON

Our ancestor, Daniel Wharton, in 1713 bought 100 acres of land called "Daniel's First Choice," located on Indian River, Delaware. This was in the disputed territory between Delaware and Maryland, but the deeds and wills were recorded in Worcester County, Maryland, until after 1767, when the line between the colonies was settled and this strip of territory was placed in Delaware. After that the deeds and wills are on record in Sussex County, Delaware.

The records show that Daniel Wharton did quite a bit of trading in land between 1720 and 1730. There were located in the same county, and it appears in the same community and trading in the same way, John Wharton, Henry Wharton, William Wharton and Charles Wharton. Richard Wharton had bought land there thirty years before Daniel's name appears on the records. There must have been a very close blood relationship between some of these men, if not all of them. But that can not be settled from the records available.

It is impossible for the descendants of Daniel Wharton to find out just the section he came from or who his father was without a personal investigation on the ground, and even that might not be successful. But our Whartons are descendants of those of Westmorland County, and it is the opinion of the writer that they came from those of Kirkby Thore.

Daniel Wharton died in 1753. His will is recorded in Snow Hill, Worcester County, Md. He must have been well advanced in years. Most of his children were married and settled, and some of his grandchildren were past twenty-one. His wife must have died before he did, as his will does not mention her. He disposes of 1,200 acres in his will. His children were Hinmon, Catherine, Daniel, Jr., Nannie, Baker, George, Elizabeth, who had married a Mr. Hickmon, Comfort and Sarah.

Hinmon Wharton's will was written in 1775 and probated in May, 1778, and is recorded in Sussex County, Delaware. He must have been rather old when he died for his eldest child was 47 years of age, and all of his children were married and settled. He mentions his wife Mary, but we do not know her maiden name. His children were Elizabeth, born 1731, married a Mr.

Smith; David, born 1733; Mary, born 1735, married a Mr. Baker; Hinmon, Jr., born 1737; Catherine, born 1740, married a Mr. Evans; Rhoda, born 1742, married a Mr. Aydelett; and Watson, born 1746. The dates have been copied from an old family Bible.

Daniel Wharton, Jr., son of the first Daniel, died in 1792. His will is recorded in Sussex County, Delaware. His wife was Eastor and his children were Diligence, married a Mr. Townsend; Betty, married a Mr. Townsend; Rhoda, married a Mr. Williams; Isaiah, Tabitha, Comfort, Maris, Sarah, Nanny and Eastor.

Baker Wharton, son of the first Daniel, died in 1781. His will is recorded in Sussex County, Del. His wife was Betty, and his children were George, Burton, Baker and Elizabeth.

George Wharton, the other son of the first Daniel, died intestate in 1764. The names of his children could not be found. William Tunnell, who had married into the family, was appointed to administer on his estate.

David Wharton, born 1733, son of Hinmon, died intestate about 1780, and left three sons, Jonathan, James and Matthew.

Hinmon Wharton, Jr., born 1740, son of Hinmon, Sr., died in 1801. His children were Elizabeth, married Burton Wharton; Polly, married John Roberts; Isaiah, Rebecca, Sarah, Hannah and Anna.

WATSON WHARTON

Watson Wharton (1746-1813), son of Hinmon, Sr., married first Martha Evans, 1769. She died about 1783. In 1784 he married Angeletta Evans. He came to North Carolina in 1787. In August of that year he bought 720 acres of land located on both sides of the Buffalo, just east of and adjoining the farms of William Rankin on the north side of the creek and Alexander Gray on the south side. We do not know on which side of the creek he lived, but the older settlements seem to be on the north side.

In 1796 he sold this farm to Andrew Gerrenger and bought of Robert Smith, Jr., 396 acres located on both sides of the North Buffalo, and 137 acres of William McGready located on the south side of the creek, and 21 acres of Andrew Wilson adjoining the Smith and McGready lands. Robert Smith, Jr., had inherited part of this land from his father, Robert Smith, Sr., and had bought of some of his brothers the acreage they had inherited. Robert Smith, Sr., had no doubt gotten it from Earl Granville about the year 1753 when the first settlements were being made in this section of the state.

There were two old home places on this farm, one on the north side of Buffalo and the other on the south side. One perhaps occupied by Robert Smith, Sr., and the other by Robert Smith, Jr. Watson Wharton built his home on the south side of the creek, near the top of the hill. It was a nice two-story frame building. There he lived and died. Many living today (1930) remember the old house. When William P. Wharton, Watson's great grandson, came into possession of the farm in 1872 he built a large and nicer home. Walter L. Wharton, son of William P., now owns the farm and lives there.

Watson Wharton traded extensively in land. He bought and disposed of no less than a dozen farms. Some of these he gave to his sons. In his will in 1813 he states that his sons, Elam, Elisha, John and Gideon, have been provided with farms and he does not give them any more land. He wills to his youngest son Evans, the home place, which he states was bought of Robert Smith.

48 The Rankin and Wharton Families and Their Genealogy

Watson Wharton had a family of nine children, only one of whom died in youth. He was a large heavy set man, and rather domineering. He had good judgment, and was often called upon to render public service. He accumulated a good estate. He died in 1813 and is buried in Buffalo Presbyterian Church cemetery.

CHURCH AFFILIATION

The Whartons were divided in their church affiliation. Some were Presbyterians, some belonged to the Established Church of England and some were Catholics. From the reign of Henry VIII (1509-1547) until after the reign of James II (1685-1688) all England was in constant turmoil on religious questions. Some of the sovereigns were Protestants and some were Roman Catholics. Religious persecution was the order of the times. Whichever party happened to be in power would pass harsh rules and laws against the other.

The first time religion is referred to in any of the books in connection with the Whartons they were Protestants. Sir Thomas, the second Lord Wharton, when a young man, became steward in the household of Princess Mary, daughter of Henry VIII. Her mother was Catherine of Aragon, and of course she was a Catholic. She later married King Philip II of Spain. Thomas Wharton became a Catholic while in the household of Princess Mary. He named his son Philip after King Philip II, who acted as godfather at the baptism of the child. This child became Sir Philip, third Lord Wharton, and he was also a Catholic.

Sir Philip, fourth Lord Wharton, was a grandson of the third Lord Wharton. He was a staunch Presbyterian. He was a lay member of the Westminster Assembly that formulated the Confession of Faith and the Catechisms of the Presbyterian church. His estates lay in the four counties of Westmorland, York, Cumberland and Buckingham; and in 1692 he conveyed certain of his lands to trustees as a perpetual gift, the income from which was to be used to supply the poor children of these four counties with English Bibles and Catechisms.

Sir Thomas, fifth Lord Wharton, renounced the religious faith of his father, and affiliated with no church. His son Sir Philip, sixth Lord Wharton, was a profligate and lost his titles and estates.

The Whartons in America were also divided religiously. Jesse Wharton, of St. Mary's County, Maryland, deputy governor of the province under Lord Baltimore in 1667, was a Catholic. His grandson, Rev. Charles Henry Wharton (1758-1833), was a priest in the Catholic church until the year 1784, when he renounced the Catholic doctrines and united with the Protestant Episcopal church.

Thomas Wharton (1663-1747), who settled in Philadelphia in 1683, is supposed to have belonged to the Established Church in England where he was baptized in 1664. He married a Quakeress in Philadelphia and united with that Society, of which many of his descendants are still members.

Most of Isaiah Wharton's family of Kent County, Delaware, were Methodists; but they may have belonged to some other denomination in Worcester County, Maryland, before they moved to Delaware in 1739.

We do not know what the religious faith of Watson Wharton (1746-1813) was back in Delaware. In North Carolina he settled in a Presbyterian community and most of his descendants are members of that church. Several have been and are Presbyterian ministers, and a large number have been and are active church officers.

Watson Wharton's son Elisha was one of the original members and a ruling elder in Bethel Presbyterian Church, and of his eight sons, six were ruling elders, one a Presbyterian minister and one a deacon in his father's church.

THE RANKIN AND WHARTON REUNION AT BUFFALO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, OCTOBER 12, 1929

Chairman of the Rankin-Wharton Reunion Committee

REUNIONS

The first reunion was held at the original Rankin homestead on August 9, 1905. This was in celebration of the fiftieth marriage anniversary of Robert C. Rankin and Mary Ann McLean. The Rankins and McLeans were invited, and there were two hundred and fifty present.

The second reunion was one for the Wharton family. This was also held at the original Rankin home place, on July 18, 1922. There were present eighty-seven. At this time a committee was appointed to arrange for a joint reunion of the Rankin and Wharton families.

The third reunion, arranged for by the committee, was for both Rankin and Wharton families, and was held on October 12, 1929, at old Buffalo Presbyterian Church, where John Rankin, William Rankin and Watson Wharton are buried. There were over five hundred and fifty present. All parts of North Carolina and several other states were represented. It was a most delightful occasion. The same committee was continued and instructed to arrange for another reunion.

PARTIAL GENEALOGY OF JOSEPH RANKIN

Joseph Rankin was born in 1704 in Ireland. It is not known who his wife was, or whether he married before or after he came to America in 1730. He bought a farm on the south side of White Clay Creek, near Newark, New Castle County, Delaware, in 1731. There he died in 1764 and is buried at Christianna Presbyterian Church. Children:

Many of the letters sent out by the author, asking for additional information, were not answered, therefore the record in some families is not complete. This refers to both the Rankin and the Wharton families.

THE PIONEERS AND THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

The first permanent settlements in this section, central Guilford, with but few exceptions, were in 1753. Within fifteen years, that is, by 1768, practically all the available public land was taken up.

These Scotch-Irish immigrants were men and women of sturdy character. Their ancestors had undergone persecution and trials in Scotland, and yet greater trials in Ireland. They had come to this country that they and their children might have both civil and religious freedom. This was the thought that was dearest to them. Some came bringing large families with them, others were newly married couples seeking to establish new homes in a new place, and some were young men seeking to find a suitable location before getting married.

In settling here in a wilderness they had all the hardships of pioneers. They had to work hard to clear their lands and build their homes; live on the plainest fare with little variety; make their own cloth from cotton, wool and hemp, and get along without any of the modern appliances and conveniences. They had been here but twenty-three years, and were just beginning to enjoy the fruits of their labors when war was declared. War is bad at its best, but it seemed unusually hard under these circumstances.

They met the conditions with courage and determination. They had tasted of liberty and found it sweet, and they were willing to defend it with their blood. Quite a number of the men of Guilford were in the service during the entire war, and all the men of the two congregations of Buffalo and Alamance churches, who were fit for service, were in the war at least a part of the time. The fact that all the men of these two congregations were in the service is established for us by Dr. Caruthers in his "Life of Dr. David Caldwell." On page 170 he says, "Although a large proportion of the men of Dr. Caldwell's congregations were not only Regulators, but took an active part in that conflict; (The battle of Alamance, 1771) yet so far as the writer has been able to ascertain, none of them became Tories, nor is it known that there was a single Tory belonging to these congregations during the war.”

On page 232, in writing of the battle of Guilford Court House (1781) he says: “All the men in both congregations who were fit for duty were either in the battle or employed in some other way under the direction of General Greene.” Dr. Caruthers came here just forty years after the battle of Guilford Court House, became pastor of Dr. Caldwell’s churches, talked with men who were in the battle, and took great interest in the facts of history. He knew whereof he spoke.

Another proof that all the men of these two congregations were in the service is established by the number of companies formed under officers from these congregations. On page 232 Dr. Caruthers says: “Col. John Paisley, father of Rev. William D. Paisley, was a patriot as well as a christian, and had all along taken an active part in the service of his country. He was present at the battle (Guilford Court House) with the men under his command.” Col. Paisley was a member of Alamance Church, and lived seven miles southeast of Greensboro.

On page 232 he says: “Major John Donnell, who was then a Captain, and a member of the Buffalo Church, was a man of great respectability and moral worth, a staunch Whig and an enterprising officer. Having embarked in the cause with zeal from the first he had been much employed in the service of his country. He served a six months campaign mostly in Georgia, on the Savannah river; and had been ever prompt to render his country any service in his power. He was not in the battle of Martinsville, because he and his company had been appointed by Gen. Greene on another service.” Capt. Donnell’s company must have had thirty or forty men in it, and composed principally of his neighbors on North Buffalo Creek.

On page 171, in speaking of Daniel Gillespie, he says: “He was a captain during the Revolution, and was a very skillful and enterprising officer. His older brother, John Gillespie, was a Colonel during the War; nor was there a more resolute man in North Carolina, or any where else to be found.” Capt. Gillespie’s company must have had in it thirty or forty men composed of his neighbors on South Buffalo Creek.

On page 232 he says: “Capt. Arthur Forbis, who lived on the Alamance, was there with a company of Volunteers, the Allison, the Kerrs, the Paisleys, the Wileys, and others, most of whom were his neighbors and belonged to the company of which he was Captain; and a braver band of militia was not on the ground." Judge Schenck, in his "History of North Carolina," in figuring out from the Colonial records the number of men North Carolina had in the battle of Guilford Court House, places the number in Capt. Forbis' company at one hundred. Inasmuch as there were three captains, Donnell, Gillespie and Forbis, with their three companies of soldiers, most of whom were from Buffalo and Alamanee Churches, also two colonels, Paisley and Gillespie, from these congregations, in charge of divisions of soldiers, this would certainly indicate that every available man in these congregations was in the war service. In those early days, only twenty-eight years after the first settlement in this section, there could not have been much over one hundred men, counting old and young, in these two congregations. This fact is established from a close inspection of the church records and the records in the court house. Furthermore, with all the neighbors staunch Whigs and active in the service, and with five active and enthusiastic officers from these two churches, no man at all fit for service could have remained out and still live in the community; these hot blooded Whigs would have forced him to enlist in the service or leave this section.

If any one thinks all the men fit for service in these two congregations were not in the war, let him prove it. The burden of proof is with him, the facts are with us.

No roster of the North Carolina militia and of the Guilford Volunteers, who fought in the battle of Guilford Court House, has been preserved.

INDEX

Every name has an individual number, which comes after the name when the name first appears as a child in a family. The same number comes before the name when that child marries. Look in the index for the name and number of your parent, and turn to the number coming before the name. If you come into these families by the female line, the maiden name of your mother is given. To find the name of your grandparent, turn to the number of your parent coming after the name. By following the numbers you can trace the direct line of your family forward or backward. The "J.R." refers to the John Rankin record; the "W.R." to the William Rankin record, and the "W" refers to the Wharton record.
